Tous les Mois.

A new, light, and nutritious aliment; prepared from the pith of the roots of the Canna Coceinea, which flowers every month, hence the French term, "Tous LES Mois."

It is highly approved of by Drs. Johnson, Ryan and Waterson. Dr. Waterson says of it, "My own experience makes me satisfied that it is a most nutritious diet, easily digested, and is consequently invaluable for infants and children, and eminently adapted for persons of dysenteric, diarrheeal, and consumptive habits; because there is, in my belief, less acid in it than any other farinaceous food with which I am acquainted. I have never known it to turn acid on the stomach."

For Jellies, Blanc-mange, Soups, Gravies, &c. This article will be found the most economical yet used for the above and similar purposes; it possesses all the nutriment without the impurities of calves' feet; is equal in purity and superior in strength to the finest Isinglass, and only half the price.

GREASE STAINS REMOVED, AND GLOVES AND SILKS CLEANED WITHOUT SMELL.

EUPIONE.

It removes all spots produced by greasy substances, such as oil, butter, suet, pitch, tallow, paint, grease on furniture or clothes, on all kinds of silks, satins, ribbons, furs, velvets, or other fabrics, and it improves their lustre without injuring the most delicate colour. The smell, which is not in the least disagreeable, disappears in a few minutes without leaving any traces. Eupione is also used for cleaning gloves, without changing the colour, to dilute colours mixed with oil, to wash Painters' brushes, and to remove all spots from paper. Eupione removes all grease spots from drawings, plans, and precious papers. It may be kept for years without losing its good qualities.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.

Place a piece of linen of several folds on a table, to act as a sponge in absorbing the Eupione as it penetrates, then stretch the article greased on the linen, taking care to remove any dust; then take a piece of cotton or flannel, dip it into the Eupione, and in the first place saturate the article well all round the grease spot, to prevent the grease from spreading; then rub the spot with the liquid, drying with blotting paper or fine linen, and moving about the linen underneath. The Eupione ought to be applied in a circular direction, and care must be taken not to leave off until the liquid evaporates; then expose the article to a good current of air. It is not necessary to unstitch the seams to remove any spots.

To Clean Kid Gloves.

Stretch the glove on a clean piece of paper or a wooden hand, and rub it with a piece of linen saturated with the Eupione. The dirt disappears instantly; expose the glove to the air, to remove the odour. Some gloves retain the smell longer than others, but exposure to the air, or before the fire, will not fail to carry it off.

The application of Eupione to the cleaning of gloves is one of the most economical uses to which it has been applied, as gloves of any colour can be cleaned an unlimited number of times, until they are entirely worn out, and will retain to the last the appearance of new gloves.

To remove Spots of Grease from Drawings, Plans, and other Valuable Papers.

Place some Blotting Paper under the Picture, then saturate the Cotton with some of the Liquid, hold it on the greasy spot for a minute, and dry up with Blotting Paper. With a fresh piece of saturated Cotton rub slightly in circles until the liquid evaporates.

It is important to know that the Eupione has no action on Silks or Colours. It dissolves Wax and Greasy Bodies, and therefore can be applied without danger to precious papers, &c.

N.B.—One great advantage which Eupione possesses over Benzine, and all other fluids used for the same purpose, is its Freedom from Unpleasant Smell.

The BEST Black Ink Known!

DRAPER'S INK,

(DICHROÏC.)

The black inks hitherto in use have been of two kinds: one in which a coloured precipitate is suspended by means of gum in a liquid; the other in which the colouring matter is held in solution. Ink of the first kind is always disagreeable to use, as it does not flow freely from the pen, and becomes more or less thick, and deposits in the inkstand. Inks in which the colouring matter is held in solution are nearly free from both these faults, but while they are sufficiently fluid and form but little deposit, they are open to the objection of corroding steel pens. They are also of a pale greenish-blue colour, not contrasting well with the paper, and the tint does not darken for a considerable time.

An ink which should combine the advantages of both kinds of writing fluid, which, while of an intensely dark colour as it leaves the pen, and becoming almost instantly deep black, should be without action on steel pens, and retain its fluidity unimpaired, has always been a desideratum.

Such an ink is now, after much care and attention devoted to the subject of writing fluids, and after much experimental investigation, for the first time offered to the public. It is confidently believed that the new ink, which, if not absolutely perfect, is at least incomparably superior to any other, will obtain general approval.

The following advantages are claimed for
