P R E F A C E

The scientific world has for a long time been engaged in trying to discover a preparation of a specific nature which, while in no way interfering with the digestive organs and their functions, should have the power of restoring invalids, persons suffering from over-work, both physical and moral, to perfect health by returning to them, their lost vitality.

Chemists, druggists, doctors of well-known repute had labored to find such an Elixir, but their researches were not altogether successful, for, while anything but disheartening, the results obtained were not proportionate to the object aimed at.

About several years ago, Mons. GODINEAU, a chemist in Paris, who had carefully studied this question and confident of final success, determined to try the effect of introducing into the human body, the essential parts of certain animals. His experiments were crowned with complete success. and two years later a statement made by one of our cleverest medical men, confirmed M. GODINEAU'S results, thus turning universal attention to this wonderful preparation.

The possibility of thus invigorating and protracting human life being recognised, it remained to find a means of so preparing this "life specific", that, while ensuring its keeping qualities, it should be in a form convenient of conveyance, but above all, be within the reach of every one.

To do this, delicate and careful experiments had to be made again: the results of these have far exceeded the most sanguine expectations.

Persons of both sexes with over-worked brains, affected by anemia, debilitated by illness and excesses of all kinds, are restored to physical and moral strength by taking this elixir, while old and infirm people are rejuvenated by it, and even recover full use of their faculties.

Strumous and lymphatic children are restored to health, as under a spell, by the judicious use of this wonderful product.

Girls on the verge of womanhood, suffering from chlorotic symptoms, subject to amenorrhœa, dysmenorrhœa, etc., are greatly benefited by it.

While very palatable, this life-giving specific is in no way injurious to any of the various organs of the body.

In short, modern science has solved the problem which able and patient alchemists of previous centuries had but hinted at, namely the "extension of human life".

ELIXIR GODINEAU is recommended and prescribed by the highest medical and scientific authorities.

ELIXIR GODINEAU

THIS CENTURY'S GREAT DISCOVERY

« No path which leads to health can be either toilsome or costly to follow. »

MONTAIGNE.

Anœmia is the most frequent and most serious disease of the present time.

Most frequent and most serious, for it affects indiscriminately both sexes at every stage of life. Setting apart the causes produced by an internal morbid state, it is more often a disastrous manifestation of the exchanges taking place between human economy, and its surrounding centres, the impaired elements of which largely contribute to the desintegration of the blood vessels.

The external agents contributing towards such a condition are the air, and its composites, the more or less salubrious condition of which depends upon where they are found; in big towns the air breathed is usually accompanied by other deleterious gases, which affect the blood and thus the whole body.

Judge then of the injuries inflicted, by such conditions, on the public health, and you will recognize at a glance, considering the great scope of evolution and human activity, the seriousness, as well as the number of diseases, accruing therefrom, which afflict each day, childhood, puberty, manhood, critical age at the change of life, and even old age often prematurely brought on.

The great centres, where this great life's drama is played out with its physical struggles, and psychical as well as physiological strife, may be compared to as many fiery furnaces in the livecoals of which mankind calcinates its blood, sees its blood vessels disappear, its flesh collapse, its discolored muscles give way, its brain soften, its marrow even melt away.

This bird's eye view of public health, which appears to be one of the key notes of human constitution during the latter part of this nineteenth century, called fin de siècle, has ever awakened the attention of professional medical men.

It has been, in consequence, studied on all sides: and lastly as to the nervous system.

Anœmia, the sad picture most of us see every day, leads in fact to an increase of nervous affections, by the production of a series of irregular symptoms of atomic origin due to the poorness of the blood occasioned by the weakness of the many organs of the body.

These phenomena, indicate constitutional modifications and, at the same time, disturb health. They are observable with anœmia in women, increasing their intellectual capabilities while rendering organic functions more difficult.

These troubles occur at the times of puberty, formation matureness, and critical age (change of life).

This disconglobulation of the blood vessels may be indicated in women by a scale, the two extreme notes of which are laughs and sobs. Later on, this state becomes known under the name of chlorosis, its cure depending on menstrual circumstances, which determine amenorrhœa and dysmenorrhœa.

Anœmia, on the other hand, leads generally to exhaustion or impotence, loss of appetite, muscular atrophy, affections of the respiratory organs, asthma, heart-disease, dropsy, tuberculosis, softening of the brain. parglysis.

It is to avert the spread of this affection, that professional men have increased their studies for many years and have endeavored to find a specific remedy, a compound which, without affecting the digestive organs or economy of human functions, should restore the organic system, suffering from fatigue, over work, or even affected by paralysis, or when the whole constitution is in a morbid state, so that by one fell blow, the most sure proofs of a higher hand seem about to be for ever lost to them, namely their intellect and intelligence.

Up till now, results have been obtained, by various tonic and ferruginous preparations, but only after long weary treatment and trials.

Change of residence into the country, that is to say, life in the open air, impregnated with the fragrance of the aromatic sap of pine forests or with the strengthening breeze of the sea, have been the real medicines in the cure of these invalids.

It must however be acknowledged that such a treatment is not within everybody's reach.

Chemists, medical men, pharmaceutical chemists, university professors, were constantly experimenting in the silence of their laboratories: but the results though not discouraging, did not accomplish the ends aimed at, and where not proportionate to the work done.

It is under the conditions, above related, as to the efforts attempted to restore the vital organism in exhausted or worn out subjects, that a pharmaceutical chemist of exceptional talent, M. Godineau, of Paris, after several years careful work, at this delicate task, conceived the idea of introducing into the human organism the elements extracted from the most essential, most generous, and most powerful organs of certain animals.

His experiments which were but the continuance of the triumphal theories of one of the men of highest standing in the learned world, M. Brown-Sequard, of the College de France, to whom this discovery revealed to the Biological Society, is due, his experiments, we repeat, were crowned with success.

To revive and prolong human life was the question; the answer is found; a new horizon, is opened out to present and future generations.

France has assumed, once more, her scientific sceptre over the world, and hoisted her standard over life's most remote limits in the dominions of mankind.

The means to place this specific within the reach of all persons, to insure its rational preparation, its transport, its preservation as well as the way in which it is to be made use of, had then to be sought for.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU has now fulfilled this programme, and is one of the greatest discoveries of the present century, a discovery, the therapeutic importance of which, science has revealed, a talisman taken from the animal kingdom, deposited by nature in the inmost tissues of the organs and glands of certain species of animals.

The results are already patent and are really marvellous.

The French and foreign political and scientific press testimonials, as well as those of the medical papers, certify these facts.

These public testimonials, as well as those of our colleagues, set aside, we produce those of many religious and private establishments.

The substance of all these testimonials, allows us to assert, that the "ELIXIR GODINEAU" restores physical vigor and moral strength to persons of either sex, when exhausted, impotent, suffering from anæmia, night-work, disease, or from all sorts of excesses.

"Old men and women" owe to it the return of their memory, of their intellect and the almost full use of their enfeebled powers.

Scrofulous, lymphatic children return to health as by enchantment, by a judicious use of this marvellous agent.

Young girls on the verge of womanhood, chlorotic or subject to amenorrhœa, to dysmenorrhœa, reap the greatest benefit from its use.

Life is strengthened, prolonged, and the perfect working of the organic system is ensured.

Returning to scientific considerations, we say that the ELIXIR GODINEAU is recommended and prescribed by the French and foreign medical authorities of highest repute: this life specific has never failed and has never disturbed the organic system.

This is strongly confirmed by the last medical observations, received from the practitioners of the medical profession in Paris.

All of these admit having prescribed it with success in lymphatic cases. to women suffering from anæmia, exhausted by hemorrhage or after laborious confinement, to old enfeebled people, to persons suffering from fevers caught in hot climates, from tropical anæmia, from disease of the spinal marrow, from partial paralysis, and senile softening of the brain.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU is prepared so that its assimilation with the gastric juices, far from neutralising its effects, only increases its strength and consequently its beneficial action on the whole organic system. No surer, more simple or more rapid treatment exists.

The above considerations together with the observations received by us as well as by our colleagues, have induced us to publish the present pamphlet with a view to the general interest of invalids affected with anæmia, by the making known of one of the greatest scientific conquests of the present era, and thus to contribute to the prolongation of life in mankind which poets have described as passing as a dream.

Dr JULES LAFAGE,
Laureate of the Paris Medical University,
etc., etc.

CURES AND TESTIMONIALS

Geneva, June 10th, 1890

Sir,

Your ELIXIR GODINEAU has been of the greatest benefit to me and I am cured of the persistent anæmia, of which I have been a sufferer, for the last two years, and which I had never been able to get rid of with any other remedy.

With many thanks,
I remain,

E. S., Rue du Rhône.

Paris, 30th, October, 1890.

Sir,

I have for many years been a martyr to anæmia and stomach affections. I tried every thing to allay these sufferings but nothing succeeded. Some body recommended to me your ELIXIR GODINEAU, and, since I began taking it, my strength has returned and the pains in the stomach have subsided ; I had almost lost my voice but am now entirely cured, tanks to your Elixir.

Believe me Sir, yours respectfully,

Paris, October 21st, 1890

Sir,

By my friend de Mey's advice, I procured two bottles of your ELIXIR GODINEAU, for my wife, who was most seriously affected with anæmia ; now, thanks to you, she is well. Her strength is returning and her appetite also. The present letter is to thank you for your kindness and to beg you to accept my sincere thanks, together with the assurance of my great regard.

Devotedly yours,

E. N., rue de Cléry.

A PARIS MIRACLE

A few deys ago a report was set about, that a real miracle had just taken place in the heart of the city of Paris. In the same way as the paralytic, spoken of in the scriptures, a very elderly lady had been suddenly restored to health — we should say to life — under such circumstances as deserve to be related.

This lady is well known. She is, in fact, one of our favorite and most esteemed actresses whom the spectators of the Gymnase and of the Michel théâtre at Pétersburg have often applauded.

As luck would have it I met the son of this lady yesterday. “Nothing that has been said equals the truth”, he declared — “My mother is 70 years of age. She had grown so weak that all hope was lost. Paralysis had set in and her memory was almost gone.

I was traveling, in great sorrow, to Boulogne, where I had to play that night, when I saw in the papers that the ELIXIR GODINEAU was a sovereign remedy in cases of feebleness of the organic system. I must own my first thought was that of entire disbelief. It seemed to me simply an advertisement. Still I sent my sister in Paris a telegram telling her to call at Godineau’s chemist shop and buy a bottle of the Elixir. — As I said to myself, what does it matter if it is useless, it is only twenty francs! We may as well give it a trial.

My sister telegraphed to me the next day: “Mother is much better” I returned home three days later. My heart was beating wildly. I feared lest I should find the poor old lady dead.

“Your mother has gone out”, said the servant. “I could not believe what I heard. Yet it was quite true. My mother soon made her appearance, strength had returned and with it the use of all her limbs had been restored to her. Truly this was resurrection.”

“In the face of such results I did not hesitate to relate the fact to everybody and I authorise you to publish it in the Figaro so that it may be heard of everywhere. I am sure that in so doing I shall be rendering the public a great boon.” Figaro, October 5th, 1891.

The above mentioned actor is M. de Mey, 2, rue de Compiègne, Paris.

Sir,

Laid low by anæmia and exhausted through over work, feeling very great bodily fatigue and brain-fag, slightest effort was fearful toil. Appetite had dissappeared and my sleep was constantly disturbed by nightmare. A few days after taking your ELIXIR GODINEAU I felt like another man, appetite returned as by magic, blood seemed to flow more vigorously through my veins, and that eternal feeling of weariness has now almost totally disappeared.

H. S., rue Saussier-Leroy, Paris.

Paris, le 19th Août 1890.

Sir,

I had lost my strength and was thoroughly out of sorts. I took your Elixir for two months and my health was completely restored. No more gloominess of spirit and my former vigor has returned, I fancy I am once more but twenty years old! A thousand thanks.

E. M., rue Manuel, Paris.

Paris, September, 1st, 1890.

Sir,

I had been ill for a year and a half and had been compelled to give up my profession. The medical men I had consulted ordered me, above all things, absolute rest and complete repose from work of any kind. I was, it seems, threatened with softening of the spinal cord, brought on by fatigue and overwork.

About four months ago. I was advised to try your "ELIXIR GODINEAU"; I have taken 7 bottles in 3 months and am cured. I have resumed my occupations as formerly and my friends as well as my acquaintances, who witnessed my illness and my semi-resurrection can scarcely believe their eyes. I am, etc.

D..., rue du Mont-Dore, Paris.

Paris, July 2d, 1891.

Sir,

My wife had suffered for a long time from idiopathic anæmia, accompanied by violent pains in the liver, in the sides, in the loins, as well as frequent fainting fits. Her stomach could not bear the remedies generally prescribed against exhaustion. A friend of ours, already acquainted with the properties of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, advised us to try it. About 3 days after, a marvellous change took place; the acute pains in the ribs and loins were no longer felt, the swoons had disappeared, and my wife is now wonderfully well. Believe me....., etc.

L..., rue Fauvet.

Paris, August 17th., 1890,

Sir,

My daughter Isabelle, 16 years of age, was affected several months since, with anæmia in its worst degree, she was low spirited and languishing through weakness. After taking 4 bottles of your Elixir, at the end of one month, her strength returned, the color returned to her cheeks, and she is now stronger, more cheerful and lively than she ever was. A mother happy for her daughter's rapid cure, takes the liberty to congratulate you on this really precious discovery, applicable to young girls in that state in which mine was ; to make it known to them, is to do them a good service.

Believe me Sir, yours very gratefully.

Vve POINTAL,
31, rue de la Butte, Blois.

INTERVIEW

Echo de Paris, October, 8th, 1890.

We called on M. Vesnier, formerly principal controller of the town-dues of the city of Blois, 19 and 21, rue Porte-Chartraine.

Imagine Philémon and Baucis, M. Vesnier and his wife are sitting side by side. A cheerful smile on the face of both. M. Vesnier is seventy-one years of age; he had ankylosis of both hands and had become extremely weak after an attack of influenza, and to crown this bronchitis had set in. M. Vesnier was so weak, indeed. that he often experienced fits of vertigo and was frequently subject to swoons.

“ I am saved, Sir ”, said M. Vesnier, “ and I can safely say that I owe it to the ELIXIR GODINEAU. I could not stir formerly. I could neither rise nor sit down without help. I now get about freely. I can make use of my hands ; and memory, intellect, strength, and life are mine once more. Over work had laid me low, the ELIXIR GODINEAU has set me again on my feet. I cannot say it too often or proclaim it too loudly, because it is the expression of real truth, because with all my thankfulness I am not able to repay the benefit received ”.

Mme Vesnier corroborates, in simple and heartfelt words, the facts revealed by her husband.

Fernand XAU.

Paris, August 18th., 1890.

Sir,

I beg to thank you for the rapid and brilliant results obtained through the use of your ELIXIR GODINEAU. Much affected once by anemia, without strength or appetite, a few days treatment sufficed to bring back strength, appetite and health.

J..., rue Milton.

Paris, August 26th., 1890.

Sir,

I have tried your Elixir on several of my patients, especially on chloro-anemic young girls and women enfeebled through loss of blood and successive confinements. The results have been excellent in all cases. Your remedy seems, however, to work the greatest marvels with old men and women weakened by disease and stricken with the weight of years. These after taking it some time, regain such strength and vigor as only youths ordinarily possess. In the face of such manifest results I beg to sign myself in all sincerity etc.,

of the Paris Medical University.

Buenos-Ayres, April the 1st, 1890.

Sir,

I received in February the Elixir you sent me.

The severe fever. I was subjected to, had left my system in such a state of feebleness and exhaustion, that I almost despaired of ever recovering my health.

After ten days treatment with your miraculous spécifique, my weakened powers had partly returned and I felt that exceedingly agreeable sensation for a convalescent formerly in despair namely "the pleasure of returning to life once more".

I am now completely cured and thank you from the bottom of my heart.

Accept, etc., etc.,

Sir,

Many years residence in hot climates, as well as overwork has brought on a state of serious anemia, so that, by my Doctors' advice I tried your Elixir.

I have taken it now for a week and already feel such benefit, as to my general state, that I think it my duty to inform you thereof, considering, as I do, your preparation to be a miraculous tonic, giving such results in so short a time.

THE WORLD'S CONQUEST.

(Autorité, November, 29th, 1891).

It has often been stated that gratitude did not exist in this world. Up till now, it is true, gratitude was as money, with but little currency. Yet with increase of strength mankind improves.

In consequence, no day lapses, without invalids, to whom the ELIXIR GODINEAU has restored strength, and whose name are legion, but send touching testimonials, expressing their gratefulness.

To quote only one instance among a thousand, here follows one of the letters received at the head office of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, rue Saint-Lazare, n° 7.

Buenos-Ayres (Argentine Republic),
Novembe, 1st, 1891.

To the Director of the ELIXIR GODINEAU,
rue Saint-Lazare, 7, Paris.

I received, in perfect condition, the bottles of ELIXIR GODINEAU which, at my request, you sent me last month, and I am anxious to inform you that I reaped great benefit from them. — I am, at present completely cured of serious anæmia which nothing previously could allay; my strength and cheerfulness of spirit have altogether returned, and I owe them to your Elixir. I am happy to proclaim it on all occasions.

Please accept the expression of my feelings of gratitude.

A. de Conore, 51, calle Florida.

If we have published this letter in preference, to this or that one, it is because it comes from the other side of the ocean. The ELIXIR GODINEAU after having journeyed round France and taken a turn around Europe, is now adopted in the most distant countries, as the surest and most active life specific. This is the highest praise that can be given to it. It can now be said of it as Lamartine said of the tri-coloured flag: "It has journeyed round the whole world".

Paris, September, 4th, 1890.

Sir,

Having reached, after two relapses of influenza, the last stage of anæmia and weakness; after trying all known tonics without success I am happy to be able to say that your ELIXIR GODINEAU has set me again on my feet, after a few days use. I have resumed my occupations as well as my old habits, and sleep and appetite are mine again.

With real gratefulness I remain, etc.,

F. K..., rue Custine.

Paris, August, 30th, 1890.

Sir,

Absolutely exhausted by marsh fever caught in the colonies I tried, by my Doctor's advice, your ELIXIR GODINEAU.

After taking three bottles, strength completely returned although I thought I had lost it for ever, owing to my illness and advanced age.

While thanking you for your discovery which, in my opinion, will render great service to all enfeebled subjects.

I remain, etc.,

Signed: M..., rue Saint-Lazare.

Paris, July, 19th, 1890.

Sir,

A fall from a horse had produced such concussion of the brain that I have felt serious inconvenience therefrom for the last ten years; fearful head-aches and lack of memory through weakness were constantly my lot. During the two months use of your excellent ELIXIR GODINEAU I have felt great benefit and my brain powers are restored to their former vigor.

I had certainly tried many remedies, but had never obtained so good a result, and I despaired of the future.

Thanks to you, Sir, and more especially to your discovery; I am saved, I remain, etc.

M. N..., rue Saint-Jacques.

THE TRIUMPH OF PROGRESS

The Brown-Sequard method, so strongly opposed until the present time, is now a brilliant success. Now that doctor Bernain has formally declared it, the ELIXIR GODINEAU is recommended to all persons in whom overwork, or other, excesses have produced weakness of some kind, or other, in their organic system.

The distinctive and characteristic qualities of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, are its absolute and perfect harmlessness. On no occasion, whoever the person making use of it, has its relieving action been counterbalanced by any internal disturbance.

Evidence in support of this is abundant. Yesterday as a house-surgeon of a Paris hospital declared, " he had never met with such an efficient preparation ". To-day, a lady, M^{me} veuve Escolier, 7, rue de l'Estrapade writes: « After various illnesses, my son, eight, and a half years of age, suffered so from anæmia that, I have lived in perpetual anxiety. Since the month of March last, I have had him take the ELIXIR GODINEAU. Although growing he has, now, become very strong. It is, therefore, from the very bottom of my heart that I thank you, and advise all mothers to follow my example. »

It is easy to see, then, that the ELIXIR GODINEAU has with good reason been called Life's Elixir, for in truth it really prolongs human life by procuring renewed strength.

PAUL BERNIER
(Figaro, July 11th. 1891).

NO COMMENTARIES

In this very place, I was finishing a few days ago, an article the Triumph of Progress by saying: " It is a fact that the ELIXIR GODINEAU has with good reason been called Life's Elixir " for it really prolongs human life by procuring renewed strength.

Today I receive the following letter from a magistrate, formerly notary, which corroborates once more the above statement.

Coirac (Gironde), August, 7th, 1891.

To the Director of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, 7, rue St-Lazare, Paris.

I am in my seventy-fourth year and have suffered for some time from brain affections, constant dizziness, almost complete lack of memory, great difficulty in finding words and in pronouncing them, extreme weakness and exhaustion in limbs and legs. As luck would have it, in April last, I happened to cast my eyes on one of your little books, and since the month of May last I have taken your « ELIXIR GODINEAU » (all other treatment put aside) and each time I found a most decided improvement, so that I have not the slightest hesitation at present in the interest of invalids, to proclaim that your ELIXIR GODINEAU is so excellent as to need no commentaries. I have not the slightest lack of memory, full strength has returned and I am so well that I have determined to go and open the shooting season in a few days.

Believe me, yours very gratefully.

E. THOUNENS, Justice of the peace.

You will agree that it is useless to comment in any way upon this letter.

PAUL BERNIER,
(Figaro, August, 13th, 1891)

A MARVELLOUS CURE

(Figaro, November, 7th, 1891).

We need no longer describe the "ELIXIR GODINEAU" it is now useless to relate again the services it has rendered to public health. All the newspapers have mentioned this wonderful specific and have borne witness to its marvellous effects.

Renewed vital strength, un hoped for vigor, youthful energy, are once more given to invalids using the ELIXIR GODINEAU, the most rational, and certainly the most effective agent of recovery yet known.

In addition here is a new testimony to add to many others. The following very touching and quite authentic letter addressed to "the Director of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, 7, rue Saint-Lazare, Paris" is more telling than many a long article.

Your elixir has operated on my wife, sixty years of âge, what may be termed a real miracle. After two years general weakness following influenza, after dreadful and continual sufferings, through various ailments such as ; intestinal inflammation, neuralgic spasms, of most painful character, etc.; after buying numerous pharmaceutical preparations without success, the idea struck me about three months ago to have her try your Elixir so praised, and which had produced, from what I had read in the Journal de la Santé (health gazette), the most marvellous cures. Good luck came with it, for appetite, youth so to speak, vigor or in one word recovery, due entirely to your precious preparation, were hers again. I am no longer astonished that learned medical authorities should have proclaimed and should still proclaim every day the miraculous properties of this Elixir which brings man back to life as if by enchantment.

In the interest of mankind, I will do all in my power to promote around me, the use of this matchless Elixir.

Accept, etc.

Signed: CAMPAGNOLE, Schoolmaster at Libaros, near Galan (Hautes-Pyrénées), October, 25th, 1891.

It is easy to judge from the above, that they are in great number, who acknowledge, from personal experience, that the ELIXIR GODINEAU is the best health restorer. Such testimonials as the above prove it. Let us add that the ELIXIR GODINEAU is distinctly the supreme tonic of human intellectual powers. It is perhaps on that account that in France, wits paradise, its success is so very great.

PAUL BERNIER.

Saint-Etienne, January, 12th, 1892.

To the Director of the ELIXIR GODINEAU,
7, rue Saint-Lazare, Paris.

I have duly received the newspapers you most obligingly sent me, in which I read the letters of cures effected, and which are reproduced therein; but they were unnecessary, for you were already addressing a couvert, a few bottles of your Elixir taken by me in September and October having greatly improved my health.

I had hardly any blood; the sinews of the neck were extremely enfeebled, as also those of one arm and the two feet, and I felt great pain when walking.

My pains have greatly diminished in all the above mentioned parts of my body, and I am now endowed with new strength. Persuaded that this may prove of interest to you, I write you this letter.

I beg, therefore, you will kindly send me 3 more bottles which will, I trust, quicken and finish my recovery, your Elixir being positively marvellous.

Accept, etc.

LINOSSIER.

rue du Soleil, n° 55, à Saint-Etienne.

Nimy, (Belgium) February, 29th, 1892.

Sir,

Suffering severely from dyspepsia for more than a year, and having already tried numberless remedies as well as followed a most severe diet without any satisfactory results, I must own that in asking you for my first bottle of ELIXIR GODINEAU, I had but very slight confidence, but I must say that I have been amazed, as I have only taken this remedy for two or three days, and I no longer suffer from my stomach. It is therefore with deep conviction that I recommend your Elixir.

O..., Landowner.

Paris, March, the 1st, 1892.

On the 25th, February last, I was taken ill with a severe attack of influenza, and lumbago, accompanied by intense fever, great irritation of the mucous membrane of the larynx, painful cough, etc. The day before, I had read your advertisement and I resolved to send for a bottle of your medicine, which I emptied in one day, taking a spoonful every hour.

On the 25th, I went out and resumed business, all traces of illness had disappeared and I now feel marvellously well. I write you this fact for the information and benefit of those who may be put to similar trials.

My thanks and grateful remembrances.

H. A.

Porte Sainte-Fay, (Gironde) March, 12th, 1892.

Sir,

Suffering for several years, from extreme weakness, my wife could not leave her bed; she has taken the "ELIXIR GODINEAU" for the last four months, and is now quite well.

C. J. C., Independent gentleman.

Sir,

Neuvic d'Ussel, (Corrèze) March, 20th, 1892.

The person who has taken the ELIXIR GODINEAU for the last two months is much better for it.

She is now in a stronger state of health.

Dame D...

Sir,

Hyères, March, 15th, 1892.

My second bottle has just come to an end and I find that your Elixir does me good, Please send me three bottles more and believe me, etc.

B..., Landowner.

Sir,

Paris, April, the 3d, 1892.

I beg to state that having been in a state of general weakness, of a dangerous character, which neither numerous remedies-nor country air could overcome, a few bottles of ELIXIR GODINEAU have transformed the invalid into a healthy man.

I beg you will, for the sake of suffering humanity, publish this letter.

With gratefulness for the ELIXIR GODINEAU, to which I owe my health. Believe me, etc.

C. FRANÇOIS, Manufacturer,
114, rue de la Chapelle.

Sir,

Paris, (Montmartre) April, the 5th, 1891.

Weakened by very severe anaemia and through repeated confinements, in pursuance of my Doctor's advice, I took the ELIXIR GODINEAU for some months previous to my confinement. I am happy to inform you that the ELIXIR GODINEAU has endowed me with vigor and energy enough to strive against fatigue and the trials of child bearing and birth, and that my newborn child is robustness itself.

In the interest of mothers, I authorise you to make such use as you please of my letter.

Dame GARNIER,

16, rue Lepic.

Sir,

Saint-Flour, (Cantal) December, 11th, 1891.

I beg you to be so kind as to send me six bottles of ELIXIR GODINEAU. I took seven last year which did me much good. My legs were always cold, I feared lest paralysis should set in and every winter I had constant colds and cough. All is set to rights since I began taking the ELIXIR GODINEAU so I mean to take some every year.

M..., Landowner.

Choumla (Bulgarie), 5th january 1892.

Sir,

I am now cured, thanks to the ELIXIR GODINEAU, which will surely become highly famed in Bulgaria.

K...

Saint-Petersburg, January 10th, 1892,

Sir,

As I feel much better, please send three more bottles of your eucellent ELIXIR GODINEAU.

de R...

Blois, February, 4th, 1895.

Sir,

I was suffering from the loins and back bone, but after taking six bottles of your ELIXIR GODINEAU I felt great relief ; I find also that my appetite is better, digestion more easily accomplished and that restoring sleep is mine once more.

At my age, that is to say, 80 years old, it is happiness, indeed, to be able to testify to such improvement in ones healt.

To maintain the results obtained by so marvellous a cure in so short a time I beg you will send me three more bottles.

Believe.

D., Formerly Professor.

Saint-Pierre-le-Vieux (Vendée) February, 15th, 1892.

Sir,

I thank you for your ELIXIR GODINEAU, I am much better. I have not found for the last six years such a precious remedy.

M...

Villandrault (Gironde) February, 7th. 1891.

Sir,

I must inform you that your Elixir has pduced in me the most surprising effects. I took 10 bottles during 1891, you see I am a serious client as well as convert, and every time I have felt its beneficial effect after a few doses : better sleep, good appetite and undeniable general comfort. If needed I could give you more precise and more elaborate détails and information as to its effects if you wish.

I thank with real gratefulness to the Inventor.

P. L., Landowner.

PRESS REVIEW NEWSPAPER EXTRACTS

The Temps

The ELIXIR GODINEAU is now constantly talked of by the press, it is the constant subject of their articles and the talk of town and country : it is a first class strengthening and restoring tonic of miraculous power.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU, the formula of which is derived from Dr Brown-Sequard's recent discoveries, is excellent for strengthening weak children and for restoring vigor to elderly people, or to those exhausted by anæmia ; its action is all powerful in young womens, or young girls, fits of langour, it cures them, also, very rapidly, of anæmia and chlorosis.

L'Evènement

The fairy tale of the founain of youth is now a true and real fact ; old age still scatters a few wrinkles on the face, a few snowy flakes in the hair, but it can non longer chill the hearts of men to whom the high-mettled spiritness of a youth of twenty years of age, is restored by the ELIXIR GODINEAU, one of the valuable conquests of modern science. The effects of this marvellous philtre are not limited to this : chlorosis, anæmia, paralysis, etc., disappear as by enchantment through using this Elixir and cures in great number, are an every day occurence.

An artist, of first class talent, named M. Charles Toché, has made it the subject of a composition which is a master piece.

Arts, as well as letters, will thus render immortal the services rendered by this absolutely unique specific.

L'Autorité

The marvellous properties of the ELIXIR GODINEAU having been duly proved by various experiments, this prowerful specific is now universally recommended as the best remedy against anæmia, tuberculosis and all cases of exhaustion of the organic system in general.

Le Figaro

To make gold, and find out the secret of everlasting youth ; such were the two problems which alchemists had tried to solve. The progress of science has shown the uselessness of the first, but it facilitated, on the other hand, the working out of the second.

What are, then, the chief qualities of youth? Strength and health. To remain, in spite of the weight of years, well and robust, is not that eternal, youth? Judge therefore of the sensation created by Dr Brow-Sequard's famous discovery.

Following out the eminent professor's theories a Paris chemist of high standing, with the assistance of eminent practitioners, has prepared the Elixir bearing his name the ELIXIR GODINEAU, the effects of which are suprising.

Le Mot d'Ordre

Several truly marvellous cures effected by the ELIXIR GODINEAU, and which have been echoed far and wide, have given this specific universal popularity. Henceforth anæmia, rachitis, paralysis, senile degeneration will cease to exist. The ELIXIR GODINEAU rapidly suppresses all these affections produced by partial or general exhaustion of the organic system.

Le Soleil

For alls affections bearing relation to oxhaustion of the organic system, such as anæmia, chlorosis, and nervous disease derived therefrom, the highest medical authorities recommend the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

Le Gaulois

A young girl, Isabelle Pointal, of Blois had become so exhausted by anæmia that her legs could no longer support her; her family was in despair. After taking the third bottle of ELIXIR GODINEAU she became convalescent and is now saved. She related herself all the phases of her illness to a colleague who went to see her.

L'Echo de Paris

The great success of the ELIXIR GODINEAU increases from day today, and is fully justified. This powerful specific restores health and vigor every day to numberless invalids whose cure was despaired of. All weakened or debilitated organic systems are speedily strengthened after treatment with the ELIXIR GODINEAU, the effect of which is as sure as it is rapid.

Le Gil-Blas

Several truly miraculous cures, amongst others that of Madam D..., mother of a well known actor, have been effected, thanks to the ELIXIR GODINEAU. A few days treatment restored, so to speak, this lady to life. She was 70 years of age, with paralysed hands and she had lost almost all memory. The ELIXIR GODINEAU (it has now been proved for a long time), is one of the most prowerful therapeutic agents of modern times.

Le Progrès des Théâtres de Bruxelles

Newspapers are full, at present, of articles about a discovery which created a great sensation in its day. We mean the "liqueur of Jouvence" and which has just come into practical use; that is to say, the Elixir of prolonged youth. The ELIXIR GODINEAU amongst other virtues, confirmed by illustrious scientific men, possesses that of restoring strength to old people and exhausted, overworked beings; causing physical and intellectual regeneration of mankind, without taking into account the absolute renewal of memory, and its powers, as well as having a notable anti-ancæmic propensity.

La France Moderne

Medical science makes every day new and important progress. After the cure of man, his regeneration has now been discovered. The fountain of youth is no longer a fable, thanks to the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

The researches in that line are well known, since many years ago M. Brown-Sequard's works acquired such renown that we need not lay them again before our readers. The communication presented by the illustrious professor to the academy created a real revolution in the medical world.

M. Godineau, long before this official declaration, had directed his studies towards the solution of the problem of prolonging life, and after many experiments and applications of a tentative method, he at last hit upon the desired formula; this specific preparation introducing into the human system the extracts of the most essential, most powerful, and most generous parts of certain animals, restores vitality to the organic system of weak and exhausted persons, stimulates and prolongs human existence, is assimilated with the greatest ease, without disturbing the digestive functions in any way, which is generally the only drawback to most medical and powerful preparations.

We put aside many questions of secondary importance in our estimation, although they are of great moment in practice. The ELIXIR GODINEAU, we proclaim to be an answer to all these questions: agreeable to the palate, it will not spoil in any way, and can be transported without fear of its becoming adulterated. It is easily taken. Here we have then, many qualities besides its therapeutic value; qualities which will ensure it great public favor. Then, you will say, now we shall never die! We shall ever be young, handsome and strong!

Wait a little. We have not yet reached that point, with another step or two towards further improvement the ELIXIR GODINEAU will satisfy that desideratum: perhaps we shall not witness it, but that will remain for our children. However the results already obtained, are, indeed, marvellous and almost incredible.

Life is given a stronger basis, is prolonged, youth is restored and lasts much longer, for, it is a fact, that, cheerfulness and beauty, those two seductive qualities, are the result of bodily strength and perfect working of the whole organic system.

Is it not marvellous that a chemist, from the depths of his laboratory, should thus offer to the world, long life, long youth and long cheeriness?

To return to the purely scientific consideration of the question, let us say that the ELIXIR GODINEAU, is recommended and prescribed by the highest medical authorities in France and abroad.

Since this life specific has been placed within the reach of all men, it has never been known to fail in its effect, neither has it been found that it has been hurtful to any of the organs on which its action was not intended to take effect.

Space is lacking for us to quote the conclusive testimony communicated to us on the subject.

Amongst the last we have received, we choose that of Dr Lunel, a well known practitioner who has made use of the Elixir in the treatment of young women suffering from anæmia enfeebled through loss of blood or from successive confinements, etc. This eminent practitioner adds that he has restored to old people the strength and vigor that only appertain to youth. Other diseases prove the real results of the Elixir such as cases of colonial fever, confirmed melancholy, influenza, tropical anæmia, lack of memory partial and senil paralysis, etc. It may well be said that ELIXIR GODINEAU is a sovereign remedy in all affections due to weakness or anæmia.

No other treatment is as agreeable, as sure or of such rapid effect.

The Galignani Messenger

THE OPINION OF MR. S. V. R. THE LEARNED AMERICAN PHYSICIAN. « What does anæmia consist of? Weakness of the blood, that is to say, absence of quality and of quantity. Anæmia affects an individual morally, and causes great disorders in the organism; it engenders chlorosis, lymphatism, and often consumption. What causes anæmia? It may be hereditary. It may be the outcome of fatigue or of bad hygienic conditions. What are the distinctive signs of anæmia? Change of complexion, and alteration in the tinge of the eyelids, the lips the gums, etc., etc. How is it that the ELIXIR GODINEAU cures anæmia? Because this tonic is derived from the best blood drawn from the best parts of certain animals, and, by introduction into the system, regenerates the quality and quantity of human blood in the shortest possible time. All those who suffer from debilitated constitutions; should at once make use of M. Godineau's specific ». These are the words of the celebrated American medical prince.

L'Alimentation

Poor André Gill had been allowed to escape from the lunatic asylum where he was confined. Pointing towards the large metropolis, the city of Paris which appeared bathed in the crimson hues of sunset, he exclaimed :

“ There! there lies the great brain crushing mill ” He was not mistaken.

We Men are, nearly, equally wise, one is hardly any wiser than another! During the first half of life, we throw away our health in seeking after wealth; during the second half, we squander our wealth in trying to obtain good health again.

Well! for those who, if not used up, are at least exhausted by the continual struggle for life, and seek to regain new strength, the full enjoyment of physical energy and intelligent capabilities, one remedy alone — but an all powerful one indeed — remains and that is the ELIXIR GODINEAU. The extraordinary virtues of this phyltre have caused it to become the universal restorer of modern times.

Journal de la Santé (n° du 7 juin 1891)

About Anæmia

Anæmia is an affection well known to the public, for the signs thereof are unmistakable: discoloration and paleness of the skin, whiteness of lips, gums, tongue and the conjunctiva, weakness and slowness of the pulse, palpitations caused by the slightest emotion, capricious appetite, slow and difficult digestion, constipation, etc.

The medical man is better acquainted with the destroying effects of anæmia; he sees consumption destroy with fearful swiftness those weakened by anæmia, he has witnessed a thousand occasions where most serious dyspepsia, disease of the uterus, leucorrhœal discharges, serious heart disease, affections of the nervous system, have had neglected anæmia as a starting point.

Anæmia is often hereditary and all causes of feebleness of the organic system may contribute to bring on the extension of this disease. The influence of life passed within the school room, the workshop, the apprentice room or the results of other acute diseases, fatigue, insufficient food, menstruation setting in, when the organic system cannot support the exhaustion, all tend to produce this disease.

The treatment of anæmia has not been, up till now, free from difficulties. Iron has been tried, but it cannot in many cases be assimilated, it is too energetic a stimulant, and in anæmia it is not prudent to stimulate too rapidly or too much, for instead of the desired beneficial effect, colic, fever and other symptoms of irritation appear, imprudently brought on in persons whose constitutional strength will not bear the exhaustive process of local inflammation; iron therefore, must only be used with extreme care, if given at all.

Cafein, more recently used, has not, any more than iron, given any very brilliant results, it is also a stimulant increasing the circulation of the blood, and it produces a rapid improvement which brings on in its turn, a final and great disease of vital energy.

Such is also the case with quinine. There is no hope of discovering the rational treatment of disease without having studied the primary cause of the disease. Thanks to the recent studies of Professor Hayem and of Professor Germain Sée, anæmia has reappeared in quite a new light.

Anæmia is a disease of the blood, of the globules, of the cells of the blood. We know that the blood consists of globules, or living cells, suspended in a liquid; the red vessels are the most numerous, they number five millions to one cubic millimetre of blood

In anæmia not only do the vessels diminish in number, but they become distorted, their form is altered, the weak and diminutive vessels are extremely abundant, especially in cases of moderately acute anæmia, the large sized vessels occupying the third degree, the vessels being, at the same time, almost without color.

This altered condition of the red vessels, as to form and color, prevents them altogether from fulfilling their important duties. The red cell's action is to convey into the innermost parts of the organic system, the oxygen absorbed from the lungs, and which is necessary to nutrition, to respiration and to the renovation of tissue.

Should the cell not contribute the requisite oxygen, then the affection, which was but local, is converted into a general disease, a kind of general morbidness sets in, as well as general weakness, which is the characteristic sign revealing the disease.

The theoretical discoveries, as to the nature and process of production of anæmia, can be made use of for clinical purposes, and the revolution which is taking place in the treatment of anæmia, may be compared to that created by the discovery of the bacilla in therapeutics, as regards infectious disease.

Anæmia is a lack of blood cell's. The task consists, then, in supplying to the organic system new cells, full of life, health and strength, drawn from a healthy organic system to take the place of the distorted, discolored and diseased ones.

Really, the remedy for anæmia; then, is the result of the studies and researches of Hayem, of Sée and many other foreign leardned men. Practical means had, however, yet to be discovered in order to introduce such healthy cells into the blood of invalids in such a way that they might live, prosper and multiply.

Painful sub-cutaneous injections often causing phlegmon, and intoxicating means have been abandoned, on account of the danger incurred, notwithstanding the few marvellous cures effected through their agency.

The answer to the question seemed indefinitely postponed.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU has just solved this problem in a notheworthy way. This Elixir is a remedy borrowed from the animal kingdom, it is taken from the cellular elements endowed with prodigious vital energy, elements deposited by nature in the most interior tissues of the organic system, and in the glands of certain species of animals.

The Elixir is prepared in such a way, that its assimilation with the gastric juice, far from neutralizing its effects, only creates a more intense, and consequently beneficial, action on the whole of the organic system

All medical practitioners acknowledge having made use of this Elixir with great succes in lymphatic cases, with anemic women exhausted through hemorrhage or through painful confinements, with weak aged patients, with persons suffering from jungle, and other hot climate fevers, from tropical anæmia, from affections of the spinal cord, from partial paralysis, and senile degeneration. We recommend it specially against anæmia in young ladies, aged people, and children

It is well known whit what suffereings, and under what painful circumstances, puberty is reached in large cities; for the blood being far too poor and lacking the red cells cannot furnish the supplementary work necessary for menstruation. A helping hand must therefore come, so to speak, to the rescue, in the shape of reserve troops of red cells, and the ELIXIR GODINEAU works marvels in such cases.

Essentially a tonic, and a restorative, with womenstricken by the fatigues and cares of maternity; with those in a state of weakness after child-labor, it also contributes towards the formation of healthy and vigorous children.

It is again still more satisfactory, and effective, with aged people and children, who, as we know, are so easily upset by the slightest remedies and must be treated with great prudence and delicacy. Iron and all energetic medicines which may agree with vigorous adults, coul't not be borne by the former, and that is the reason anæmia sends so many aged men and women, as well as children, to their graves.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU is, therefore, for invalids of this kind, the preeminent remedy, as well as the most miraculous one.

The medical world has too long had exclusive resource to the vegetable and mineral kingdoms, that is to say, to agents far distant from that kingdom which we form part of. It is now time to introduce into therapeutics, elements of the animal kingdom, for nature has always remedy, in close proximity to the evil.

Dr BERNAIN.

Alimentation

“ The ELIXIR GODINEAU is a constitutional strengthening element as well as an unequaled stimulant ” exclaimed in his conversation with me, one of the great masters of science. “ It is above all, in Paris that it should be appreciated, for it is principally a tonic, a restorative of the powers of intellect. Now Paris is the agglomerrtion of all kinds of intellects. In countries where dotage is the principal feature, and where fools are numerous the ELIXIR GODINEAU would be a virulent poison. ”

And after having uttered this slightly paradoxal statement, with a hearty laugh the aimiable doctor was about to go off. I was obliged to remind him — thanks to his having prescribed it — the ELIXIR GODINEAU had performed a few miracles, saving two little sisters worn out by anœmia, restoring to many an exhausted man fresh strength, unhoped for robustness and energy, which had faded away long since, and that it had also reendowed with memory a celebrated comedian, whose brain had ben overwrought by study.

The Doctor ran off with a laugh. He dislikes being spoken to about his cures. Nevertheless the next day his name was again mentioned in letters of thanks, with expressions of gratefulness such as the daily receive at the offices of the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

What luck!

For the youth wo has led life at too great a pace, to be able to resume his seat in the saddle, after a few days treatment with the ELIXIR GODINEAU,

For young women, young girls, victims of anœmia, to feel fresh blood coursing through their veins with strengthening power bringing a healthy color to their faces, as well as freshness and new vigor to the whole of their being.

For old men to recover the vigor of their youth, as well as their intellect, memory and health, which had almost gone. All these benefits are conferred by a little bottle containing an exquisite liquor, the composition of which strengthens the entire system, and is known and approved of by all our medical men.

Eternal Youth

How many people would part with half their wealth to postpone the fatal time when old age sets in, and to retain, in spite of years, the privileges of their twentieth year! Is it possible to remain young, or when work or pleasure in excess have sapped our strength, is it possible to return to youth once more?

From the experiments made with the ELIXIR GODINEAU, we can vouch for the cure of premature feebleness, and that without special diet, as well as without any danger to health in general; mature age and even old age can even gather once more the flowers of the spring of life; the ELIXIR GODINEAU is Faust's Elixir, so long dreamt of. (La Santé, November, 29th, 1891.)

La Défense Agricole

THE ELIXIR GODINEAU

This is the preëminent phyltre, the supreme restorative. I believe few beverages can be said to contain such qualities of so complete a nature, and, at the same time, so well proved by evidence. Fashion and Reason have soon made it a success.

One of my friends told me yesterday that the ELIXIR GODINEAU was the triple alliance of youth, strength, and health.

It is no longer astonishing to see orders pouring in from the four corners of the globe.

Le Tout-Bordeaux

Without specially mentioning exhausted club men, worn away by pleasure and feasting, such as our novel writers and theatres have given varied specimens of, I mean to speak of that numerous class of ailing people, not incurable, thank God, with whom fast life has nothing to do, but who have only lived as all do, picking a flower here and there and enjoying themselves on their way, indulging even in the luxury of some great passion, with its accompaniment of deceptions, jealousies, and heart breakings. I wish to speak of the fatigued ones! Something like influenza, the only symptôms of which are general weariness.

During dinner all is well! They resume a sort of animation. But before midnight they feel an overpowering wish to go to bed. Worldly pleasures, theatres, music, cards, and games seem to make them drowsy. They pass with indifference before a pretty little foot peeping out from a flood of lace; that beautiful little face with its confusion of golden hair, stylishly grouped under the large fashionable hat. They take no notice, but retire to their home and beds.

No one will recognise themselves in this gloomy like picture. What matters it, provided they recognize their friends.

Exhaustion in the present times, more extensive than it ever was, consists of two principal features: weakness, which reaches its maximum towards nightfall, and irritability, showing itself mostly on awakening. Now and again the human mechanism slackens its pace, and drags on like a time worn vehicle, at other times it rushes of full, till at the risk of running off the rails.

Our exhausted ones are, therefore, either weak or ill balanced beings. After taking big doses of quinine and more food than requisite, after going in for fencing, shooting, hunting, sports, and physical exercise of all kinds, with but little success, our enfeebled friends have found a good remedy: the ELIXIR GODINEAU. Thanks to it, the exhausted man is transformed, recovers health, as well as strength, and general tone. Under the influence of this marvellous liquor all these intimate changes take place, youth reappears as a mechanical, luminous, joyful and magnetic phenomena. — Something like galvanism in its effects on benumbed tissues! The ELIXIR GODINEAU is an allpowerful magician of the present century, and holds out hope to the nearly hopeless.

La Vie Parisienne

May, 9th, 1891.

Magic, incomparable, peerless phial, down on our knees thou shouldst be worshipped: since a benefactor of mankind has discovered it, the life Elixir of the Comte de Saint-Germain has become a true talisman. Death has not yet been done away with — who could wish that it should be — but since the discovery of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, the average duration of life has been increased. Surgery had already worked marvels (the stomach, the liver had been removed, etc, cleaned out or renewed) but the lacking blood, the vitiated blood, the blood which is unsparingly set to work, which undoubtedly is the main spring of our existence. no one had ever been able to renew it so as to gradually turn it into a young, healthy and vigorous stream, without recourse to those barbarous operations, which are scarcely ever a real success. The Vie Parisienne without hesitation votes that the great Prize of 100.000 francs for the most useful discovery of this century should be given to the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

A Regenerator

A great medical authority once said that disease engendered by anæmia can affect the organic system in every one of its parts, that it has an influence on every organ of life, and opens the doors of the human frame, for the most serious and most incurable affections to step in.

City life with its corrupted atmosphere is the seat of exaggeration, both as to breathing and combustion. This explains the frequent cases of anæmia in great centres of population, and the name « City Malaria » which has been given to it.

Woman is a special prey to anæmia and that affection is often added to other frequent derangements, such as to puberty and change of life in the menstrual functions. The lack of sufficient exercise, sitting up, too frequent hot baths, tea and alkaline drinks, and food are also accessory causes of female anæmia.

The treatment against anæmia consists in restrengthening the blood, in giving tone to the stomach and in destroying the symptoms brought into play in the human economy, through adulteration of the blood.

This result is surely obtained by using the ELIXIR GODINEAU which acts with full success as proved implicitly by observations, and experiments of hundreds of medical practitioners. The ELIXIR GODINEAU must be considered at the same time both as an excellent gastro-intestinal tonic and as a first class stimulant of the circulation of the blood.

Being the best blood regenerater and affording besides man new strength, it is pleasant to the taste and is taken by the most delicate and dainty invalids.

Under the influence of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, the stomach gains activity, appetite returns, the sinews and muscles increase in strength, the lungs seem more developed, and through a sort of therapeutical miracle, all the organs resume new vital activity and true physiological health.

(Journal de la Santé du 23 août 1891).

An official Consecration

Le Journal de la Santé (Health review) has devoted a number of articles to Brown-Séquard's method. This method, which has been heard of far and wide, and has, perhaps, created too great a sensation, rests on a truly marvellous principle, namely; to introduce into the weakened organic system of the patient, a vessel or cell possessing such virtues as to enable it to multiply indefinitely and give birth, through its multiplication, to tissues of all kinds.

The most perfected process, and at the same time, the most simple, for the practical use of the Brown-Séquard method, without calling in the medical adviser, is due to a learned chemist M. Godinéau.

We will now cast a glance on the various diseases which are amenable to cure, or can be much allayed, by using the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

In diseases affecting childhood or weakness from quick growth, the ELIXIR GODINEAU bestows fresh vigor and good health.

Disease of the bones: the skeleton often loses its shape during childhood, the back bone becomes crooked etc. The ELIXIR GODINEAU provides for the child with the necessary elements towards his growth and for the formation of bone. Under the effects of this Elixir, distortion is stopped and weakness disappears.

NERVOUS AFFECTIONS: Nervous affections, chorea, and hysteria, are frequent with enfeebled and overworked children; the ELIXIR GODINEAU gives battle to and overcomes such a state, so that calm is produced in the nervous system and nervous affections are rapidly cured.

Affections brought on by fatigue in women, and generally manifested by menstrual troubles such as chlorosis, hysteria, sterility, pains, whites, stomach derangement, etc.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU regulates menstruation, the blood circulation become perfect, and nervous disorders disappear rapidly.

In broken down men, disease assumes a very different appearance: sexual powers diminish, and then disappear altogether: intellectual weakness follows this physical decay, memory is extinguished, working power annulled, partial paralysis soon sets in, and death, sooner or later.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU restores to man, when enfeebled by excess of pleasure or work, his sexual and intellectual powers. This excellent preparation does away with all these ailments, and we therefore recommend it as the most carefully prepared and studied composition of modern therapeutics, and as the most beneficial discovery of this century.

A Therapeutic Victory

The tendency of modern science, during late years, is to consider nearly all affections as essentially contagious. We not only mean eruptive diseases, such as small-pox, scarlatina, measles etc., but rather, and chiefly, those affections formerly looked upon as being really constitutional: diabetes is contagious, cancer also, anæmia and chlorosis are contagious, and there is no reason why we should stop on so narrow a road, for everything must be contagious and contagion becomes truly a sword of Damocles, eternally suspended over our heads; with a suspicious glance at the hand we are about to grasp, the lips about to meet ours, and all pleasure is spoilt by this fear of contagion.

Hereditary causes are on the contrary, laid totally aside; the inheritance is abandoned, atavism as to disease is an old fashioned game. If the ancestor's wealth is still welcome, their physical constitution can have nothing to do with us. In our opinion, it is wrong to exaggerate and render general, these too exclusive theories, if we are to take into account the intervention of parasites in the production of certain affections, we must admit that we do not know whether these parasites are the cause, or the effect of disease; whether they engender disease, or appear when it has broken out, and as an unavoidable consequence, invade the weakened organism. The facts are not quite clearly known.

In the congress on hygiene held in London, the meetings of which created enormous sensation all over Europe, it was acknowledged that with science in its actual state, the contagious conditions of a great number of diseases were entirely unknown. Could we not maintain that cases of apparent contagion are the greater part of the time, merely the result of bad aeration, of work, of insufficient nutrition, bred together, in the same manner by almost similar organisms.

If we study, carefully, all contagious diseases at their outset the same symptomatic accompaniment will be discovered: fatigue resulting from the slightest cause, stomach derangement, irritability; that is to say all the symptoms of anæmia. If we examine this natural evolution of disease, it is not on account of its not being known but on account of the propensity to forget it. Anæmia has been most fashionable, it figured with reason in every disease; but jumping to the other extreme, anæmia is too much neglected at present. Anæmia is a disease, the study of which is far from complete, the blood is affected, circulates badly, is diminished as to its constitutive elements, being no longer sufficient nutrition to the enfeebled organism which, half dead, becomes, the prey of parasites, just as the worm gloats over dead flesh. Hippocrates said that diet, was the real medicine and many clever practitioners have looked at his saying as of great importance, seeing that diet and food were the only means of instilling into the blood fresh constitutive elements.

But, in a general way, whatever may be the disease, the stomach is affected, for as long as a patient eats and digests well, he has no anxiety, takes less care of himself and consults no medical man. It is then all important to present to the stomach articles of nutrition easily digested and thoroughly masticated. The ELIXIR GODINEAU is really a choice element of nutrition, a typical article of food, and a most excellent one, for it is the solution of the problem of nutrition, that is to restore vitality to man, increase his organic powers, and repair the loss of strength experienced.

It is, in fact, well known that the ELIXIR GODINEAU is composed of testicular and ovaric cells, and that these cells extracted from testicles and ovaries have the exceptional quality that when introduced into the circulation, they multiply indefinitely thus bringing to the whole frame and constitution, as well as to its tissues, bone, nerve and muscle, fresh elements taking the place of old ones, and renewed vitality.

M. Godineau's process is the application of the Brown-Séguard method, which has so often been turned into ridicule, although tried in secret by so many invalids; but Godineau's system is merely Brown-Séguard's method rendered more simple, improved upon and deprived of its more painful, and more dangerous parts.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU can be given in every kind of disease and, often, renders, unnecessary, any recourse to antiseptic remedies. Therapeutics, in relation to microbes, present in reality many unsatisfied requirements and unfilled blanks. With many patients, the addition of antiseptics to the treatment and diet is impossible on account of the bad state of the digestive organs. The antiseptic comes into action, not only against the microbe it is intended to destroy, but it affects, besides and chiefly, the gastric ferment whose function it often impedes, and this difficulty will always be an insuperable obstacle to the generalisation of the antiseptic method; antiseptics and the organs of mankind living, so to speak, very unhappily together.

The next point to know is, what antiseptic is to be made use of? The congress of hygiene has shown us that science did not yet possess sufficient knowledge to discover the elements of contagion; it has acknowledged that as a preventive against contagious diseases, either accidental or constitutional, only the recourse to a good system of hygiene existed; it is therefore hygiene which is to be consulted, and its most important part, that is to say, alimentation.

Experiments show that the ovaric, or spermatic cells, which compose the ELIXIR GODINEAU produce notable modifications in the whole being; very rapidly, almost in a few hours. Through prolific action of the cells, an enormous afflux of new anatomical elements is brought into play. Sudden and intense irruptions of new cells appears, not only in one part, but in the whole of the organic system, by means of diffusion of the therapeutic agent. The afflux of embrionate elements being enormous they appear in the lungs, the liver, the muscles, the cellular tissues, and which ever the affected organ may be; battle rages between these new elements and the bacilli, in order that the latter may be absorbed and destroyed, then the morbid tissue is slowly reabsorbed and disappears, the young cells, on the contrary, prosper with wonderful activity, and soon form into new tissues.

No disease or affection exists for which the ELIXIR GODINEAU may not be prescribed; in all cases of affections tending to diminish the powers of nutrition; diabetes, obesity, chronic rhumatism, and even in long protracted convalescence, it has produced marvellous results. The only wish, then, that can be expressed, is, that this new remedy should make rapid strides and come into every day use.

Dr PAUL BLYTTE.

(Journal de la Santé du 6 septembre 1891.)

The Elixir Godineau

Of all expressions ridden ta death, so to say, by medical science in our times, the most common is that of tonic or restorative to make the debilitated man stronger, more hardy, to alter, reform, reconstitute the weakened or used up being; such is the ideal ever sought after, by medical scientists, by means of therapeutics and hygiene.

The microbe has always existed, whether it has been discovered or not; if the bacilli of tuberculosis, for instance, has more victims then formerly it is because the organic system collapses through the effort of man as well as in women, when wealthy and without occupation, for then the general indolence of the whole being produces atrophy.

Tonics have been a necessity; to enable man to offer resistance, is to make him invulnerable against microbes of all kinds. As many great medical men have demonstrated, the bacilli only invades weakened or degenerated organs. How is this degeneration estblished? Life, it is a well known fact, is but the motion of new born, self reproducing or dying cells. Should the reproduction of such cells become less active or stop atlogether, then illness sets in, disease follows, and accordingly, as this lack of activity affects a certain organ, so does disease wage war against this organ.

The remedy is at hand : cells are to be introduced into the ailing organism, so as to furnish completely formed materials for regeneration.

Brown-Sequard certainly made the greatest medical discovery of this century when he conceived the idea af applying for the regeneration of these choice and exceptional cells, other generative cells, one of which suffices for the evolution of a human being, that is to say cells having unlimited power of multiplication, since millions and millions of other ones may burst forth from this cell, which is besides endowed with the power of transformation, since the new born cells have various and different properties, constituting nerve, bone, or cartilage, etc.

However wonderful this discovery may prove, it may, with experience as a basis, be affirmed that it cannot be perfected in its tiers. It must pass through and be worked by other hands, probably less genial, but which feel better than the inventor himself, the weak and defective qualities of the discovery, lessen them, correct them by new ways of proceeding, thus making the discovery acceptable to most men and thoroughly practical.

Such is the case with the Brown-Séquard method; It was a purely theoretical, scientific, method, requiring modifications to meet with universal approval. The inventor's scheme was not to be changed, the form only was to be altered. The process of introduction of the generative cells was defective in the Brown-Sequard method, ly sub-cutaneous injections of the cells the tissues are injured, abscess and phlegmon often resulting; children and many delicate and nervous women cannot stand the painful puncture; the mode of introduction is unnatural, it is not the way to produce assimilation, nutrition not being obtained through the agency of the sub-cutaneous tissues.

The real thing was to introduce this choice nutritive preparation by means of the natural digestive process. Brown-Sequard himself was convinced of it; he admitted that an emulsion containing generative cells, has the same advantages as a hypodermic puncture, without its disadvantages, but in the rectum the organs of absorption are but few, and only feeble assimilation is effected.

M. Godineau, on the contrary, has taken a giant's stride with his new method, both as to its introduction and to its preparation.

The remedy in the Godineau process, is introduced by the natural digestive main road, it passes from the mouth into the stomach, then filters into the flood-stream of the blood and is conveyed to the different tissues and various organs, presenting these with their necessary elements of repair.

The preparing process is perfect. While in the ordinary and original method, the extract from testicles or ovaries of guinea pigs was employed, and as these animals are weak and subject to tuberculosis, in the Godineau process the liquid extract from testicles and ovaries of vigorous, and healthy animals are solely made use of.

This is then the reason of the notable results obtained through the ELIXIR GODINEAU. Let us add that the ELIXIR GODINEAU, is absolutely harmless. No uneasiness or dangerous excitement is the consequence. It is liquid strength, it can be taken without danger by everybody, at any age, with the restriction in the number of doses as indicated. In these times of struggles, of physical and intellectual overwork, every man however vigorous or stoutly built he may be, is liable to be stricken with anæmia, and anæmia is the door to disease, to ailings, to premature old age, to losses of hair and teeth, eye and ear diseases, etc.

How many women have we seen who, considered as being consumptive, were given up by medical men and who gave their despairing friends no hope of recovery, and yet these women recovered and felt new life in them by making use of the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

In woman anæmia is yet again often attended with troubles of the genital organs; cessation or exaggeration of menstrual functions, heaviness and pains while walking, abundant and seemingly incurable whites, all set to rights or made to disappear under the influence of the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

With men the characteristics of anæmia are some what different; there is at first a diminution or cessation of the genital powers, followed by unbearable nevrosis which often lead either to melancholy or madness.

Anœmia is also manifested in man through muscular affections, and symptoms almost of a similar kind to paralysis; stiffness in the limbs, weakness, fatigue without any reason, drowsiness and disinclination to move.

Anœmia is yet again revealed in both sexes by dyspeptic troubles such as loss of appetite, strange tastes, cramps in the stomach, slow and painful digestion, erructations, flatulence, enlargement of the stomach, palpitation, for it should be remembered, that the stomach and heart are only muscles, and that every muscular diminution of activity, produced under the influence of anœmia, forcibly affects both the heart and the stomach.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU has only one defect, which consists in its being too simple a remedy, dispensing with all costly therapeutics.

On the other hand, it seems proof against the present times of scepticism, where even what happens under our very eyes is scarcely admitted as true; almost immediately after making use of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, there is an increase of muscular strength, a surplus of activity in the actions of life, and in the vital functions, the whole accompanied by a sensation of comfort.

Is it not rather the tendency of modern science, to lay aside all old fashioned and traditional treatments, and to seek after rational treatment, proved and affirmed by experience?

Dr BERNAIN.

(Journal de la Santé, August the 9th 1891).

An Energetic Reconstitutive Remedy

In these times where life is spun out at a reckless rate, where intellectual overwork, pleasure in excess, weakness and debility become, unfortunately, more and more frequent every day in our cities, and thus calls the attention of both the medical practitioner and the economist.

Not only is this fearful infirmity one of the principal causes of unhappiness in married life, and of the lack of population in France, but it causes and brings on brain affections, nervous irritability, melancholy, hypochondria, and eventually often leads to self destruction.

We do not speak here of the absolute loss of genital powers, brought about by physiological anomalies, or a peculiar pathological state: the evil is, we regret, without possible remedy.

But when the loss of power is merely accidental, brought on by fatigue or sorrow, by anœmia or general organic debility, by long residence in hot climates, or excesses, the practitioner is fully armed against it, and can rapidly change this state of things and restore full possession of his former strength to the unhappy patient.

Remedies are numerous, and aphrodisiacs have played a great part in the pharmacopeia. Some remedies are so strange that we need not speak of them; others are the more dangerous the more effective they are.

Phosphorous, cantharides and strychnine are the general basis of these preparations intended to awaken to their duty, the seemingly drowsy genital organs.

It is useless to describe the disorders caused within the organic system by such remedies: dreadful sufferings, cruel disease, even death; such are the results most ordinarily, contracted by their absorption.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU is Brown-Sequard's discovery bottled; naturally it contains no harmful substance, requires no special diet, and, used in prescribed doses always produces satisfactory results.

An effective remedy, without incurring any danger to the organic system, had long been sought for, in order to restore to the genital organs their lost powers. This talisman has now come to light and we proclaim it to be one of the most precious discoveries of modern therapeutics, while we predict its long and deserving success.

(Journal de la Santé, June 21th 1891).

Doctor BERNAIN.

A Reconstitutive Remedy

Winter is, for chronic disease in general and for heart and loin or kidney disease above all, the most critical period of the year, in every way. It is then that the crisis comes, for the functions of the skin are performed less actively, and all the morbid elements which are no longer eliminated through the epidermic pores, accumulate in the organism, producing fearful disorders. Therapeutics are powerless in such chronic affections; they are the doctor's despair, but they make his fortune. The remedies, used in such cases, and they are but few in number, form deposits in the tissues and turn into poison, thus causing more disastrous effects than the disease itself, or else the body becomes so accustomed to their presence that their action ceases and they are therefore useless.

On the contrary the ELIXIR GODINEAU, is not a particular remedy against this or that disease, it is not a specific against a certain illness, but a remedy against all and every acute or chronic disease, bringing, as it does, elements of nutrition and reorganisation to the whole organic system. It gives the required strength to struggle against disease and to master it. It furnishes the sick man with cells in sufficient stock for reparation. This Elixir is, consequently, ever precious in cases of anæmia, convalescence, nephritis and far advanced heart disease, etc. The action of ELIXIR GODINEAU can be well compared to the action of electricity, so often applied now a days to affections of all kinds. It whips up, so to speak, and gives new vigour to the entire body, but it is infinitely superior to Electricity, for, while the latter borrows for its treatment the necessary elements from the organic system itself, the ELIXIR GODINEAU furnishes the whole of the necessary armament required for the patients renovation, after having borrowed this from elsewhere, new cells are actually brought into play and supply the place of the old, used up, ones.

We cannot too highly recommend the use of the ELIXIR GODINEAU in treatment against influenza; the only way of escaping from influenza is to remain in a perfect state of health and to offer sufficient resistance against this sad affection. We have seen on many occasions people, who had suffered from this malady in 1889 and who were exposed to that contagion last year also, but who, thanks to having used the ELIXIR GODINEAU, escaped the relapses which would probably have had fatal consequence.

One of the uses, much neglected however, of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, and yet one of the most practical is the taking of the Elixir during the weaning period. How difficult it is to go through this period without accident is well known, particularly for weak and sickly children. The ELIXIR GODINEAU given in doses of from one to two tea-spoonsful a day, facilitates the transition from exclusively liquid to solid food, transition, which ordinarily taking place abruptly, is often most dangerous to children. How many children have we not seen remain weak and languishing during the suckling period but obtain vigour, health, and strength by means of the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

Dr BERNAIN.

A New Consecration

Remedies derived from animal source are becoming more and more common every day.

In the presence of such slow, such useless and often such noxious effects, produced by medicines extracted from the vegetable and mineral kingdoms, science has resolved to change its ways, and to treat man by means of various substances borrowed from the animal kingdom.

Brown-Sequard, that great master of science, first adopted this course, but in spite of his great authority, surprise and mockery were the first sentiments shown in reference to this first-rate discovery; the learned however, as curious as women, tried the new process in secret and obtained such marvellous results that they felt bound to make known some of the cures effected.

At the Marseille congress which ended on the 24 of September 1891, animal therapeutics gathered fresh proofs of their most effective powers.

All ordinary ideas were upset, and Dr Onimus has shown, with manifest evidence, the excellent results obtained by the exclusive use of extracts from animal tissues, as remedies against the most varied affections; heart disease, loin and kidney disease and particularly in illnesses affecting the nervous system.

The Godineau method has now cured numberless patients; it is free from the dangers of the Brown-Sequard method, phlegmon or serious abscess caused by, and following closely after, hypodermic injections; it has moreover the advantage of being applicable even to children, to the aged and to women.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU made up of juices extracted from the testicles and ovaries of various animals, always chosen on account of their exceptional vigour health, is always easily taken and well assimilated.

One of the ELIXIR GODINEAU advantages is its numberless uses.

What is disease according to our modern theories?

Our body is a vast workshop in which the working cells labor unceasingly, patching up here, repairing there, nurryng together in mutual action. It happens however, now and then, that these working "cellsstrike", if we may use that term, when overworked, then the bodilye difice suffers in one or more of its parts: either the heart beats more slowly, the brain gets out of gear, our bone columns crumble away, or our skin cracks and opens. What is needed? We must replace these working cells. The ELIXIR GODINEAU is the very thing. an agency for working cells: It contains infinite numbers of those model cells maids of all work, furnishing bone, nerve and muscle, so that the effects produced by using it are quite worthy of notice.

The convalescent resumes vigour and health through its influence; the weak, pale, scrofulous child with enflamed joints and white swelling, recovers health and is free from taint; the chlorotic girl finds relief, and a healthy color returns to her face, as well as strength, and regular menstruation; woman exhausted by cares, household duties and constant child bearing is restored to her former vigour, the youth overworked by study, can step forward towards fresh success: mature manhood worn out by life and excess, is once more strong and powerful, the enfeebled old man, with diminished intellect, discorted by paralysis and at death's door finds his health restored and again enjoys the use of his limbs and his intellect.

The ELIXIR GODINEAU when better «nown will be more extensively made use of, for it is the only remedy which rapidly cures disease of the spinal chord, anœmia, utter prostration from fatigue, and contagious disease; it is the only remedy which restores and lengthens life by inserting into the blood new strength and fresh richness, and it is the only one after doing all this, which is never noxious and ever useful.

Dr ALBRET.

(Journal de la Santé, of October, 18th 1891).

The Elixir Godineau

Fifty years ago, anæmia was of rare occurrence in cities and unheard of in the country: at present nearly one half of the people are victims of this, and many die from it, for anæmia kills. If slight cases do exist, the medical man is more often called upon to observe that anæmia is a general disease and of a very serious kind in itself, and still more serious on account of its dire effects on the organs essential to life: lungs, heart, etc. Anæmia is a general weakness, a sort of exhaustion of the entire being, a fatigue which may be due to the most different causes; it is also due to lack of food or air, intoxication by alcohol or other liquors, pleasure, work, or passions, all in excess. Again anæmia manifests itself sooner or later by more serious phenomena, by affections of the stomach caused by improper digestion, tension and heaviness of the bowels after meals, painful fits, cramps, want of appetite, repulsion for meat, which proves indigestible, nausea and vomiting of the food taken, and also by very great constipation.

Anæmia also brings on disorders of the brain, disorders of all kinds which are included under the name of nervous: all persons suffering from nervous affections are affected with anæmia — and as for continual head aches, vertigo, morning exhaustion, weakness of memory, inability to work, fixed ideas and delirium, fright, madness, wandering thoughts, etc., all these nervous states of such various kinds and of so painful a character, disappear, as with the enchanter's wand, when anæmia ceases.

To anæmia are due the functional disorders of the blood system; palpitations, loss of consciousness, pangs and distraction, cold hands and feet, etc.

Anæmia has, above all, a most intense effect on the genital system; that the affections of this system seem to become of an epidemic character. In women diseases of the womb are exceedingly frequent, women absolutely free in this respect are very rare indeed, nearly all complain of whites irregular menstrual functions, painful monthlies, displacement and congestion of the uterus, ulceration of that same organ; and how many women remain barren or become so on account of these injuries of the genital organs!

In man, this evil, although less apparent, is perhaps more serious still: if many women are barren yet a greater number of men are impotent, even youths; through excess, intemperance or overwork, they become incapable of procreation, and as the lack of viril power has a notable connection with, and influence over, both the nervous system and the brain powers, how many hypocondriacs, male hysterics, general paralytic affections, have no other cause save that of premature impotency.

All these consequences due to anæmia are perfectly rational, for on the whole, what is life? According to modern discoveries, a perpetual motion of cells, a constant multiplication of organic constitutive elements in the human frame; under the influence of sufficient nutrition, the bone forming cell, gives birth before its disappearance, to other bone forming ones, the nerves creating others of similar kind, the muscle making cell to new muscular ones, and the blood cell to fresh blood vessels; should nutrition prove imperfect, anæmia steps in, the cells no longer multiply as quickly, the blood globules become poor, the nerve, bone, and muscle creating material become atrophied and dwindle away. In the beginning the procreative organs become useless, for these organs, ovaries or testicles, are intended to bring a surplus, so to speak, to the organic system, we mean those miraculous cells which alone have the property by means of their multiplying powers, of putting forth fresh cells of all kinds and consequently of creating a really and entirely new being.

What was then natural remedy to this cellular degeneracy in patients suffering from anæmia? The introduction by artificial means, into their tissues of young and vigorous new cells intended to fill up the place of the enfeebled and dying ones, that is to say, cellular transfusion.

The transfusion of the blood is in reality but a cellular transfusion; but the transfusion of the blood is a most delicate operation; it can only be accomplished in man by means of human blood, that of any other kind being rapidly disassociated and eliminated after causing obstructive disorders, and more or less severe pains to elimination; the again, anæmia increases, as a great number of blood vessels are dissolved by the contact of strange blood; even human blood cannot be transfused with success unless it has been preserved from all communication with the atmosphere, made antiseptical and therefore changed in its very nature.

Besides, the blood vessel or cell is not the preeminently ideal cell, the primeval cell intended to give birth to all other cells. Since men have ventured to try the transfusion of the blood cell, why should we not, with better reason, transfuse the only living cell which can procreate and bear forth; that is the spermatic or ovular cell.

A man of genius, known to the whole world, by his scientific discoveries was bold enough to dare to advocate this cellular transfusion. He demonstrated by facts that the introduction of these fundamental cells could produce marvellous results in cases of anæmia, and its consequences, as well as against paralysis, impotency, barrenness, etc., and even in old age that final anæmia, against which no remedy had ever been found.

In France where mockery is the commencement of belief, Brown-Sequard's remedy was laughed at. We must own however that this jesting has died out, little by little, the greatest scoffers, having themselves tried the new process in secret, are bound to hold their tongues, conviction of its wonderful powers compelling them to do so.

The ELIXIR GOCINEAU rests on the same principle as the Brown-Sequard injection, but the method has been altered and corrected.

The injection necessitates minute precautions, it always causes the puncturing of blood vessels, the opening of the derm and of the skin making it a painful operation often producing abscess and even phlegmons.

The liquid injected superficially into the tissue is, before it reaches the circulative system, disassociated from its primary elements, it is filtered and changed by the dynamical power of the active organs of absorption.

Accidents due to poisoning, or infection, have often been incurred in a large number of cases, where the puncture had been well made.

With the ELIXIR GODINEAU no such dangers exist, while the advantages remain, and are greater, for not only is the patient free from pain, but the renovating cells introduced by means of the stomach, follow the natural courses of absorption and penetrate into the very depths of the organic system.

Not only is the ELIXIR GODINEAU all powerfull against impotency, barrenness, chlorosis, and menstrual disorders, but it is also a sovereign cure for consumption, if it does not destroy the bicilli of tuberculosis. it increases the individual resistance, arrests the progress of the evil, repairs the breaches effected, for it is an essential element of reparation ; it supplies in abundance new cells intended to form fresh pulmonary tissue in place of those wasted away by tuberculosis having become cavernous and honey-combed through disease.

When will man give up seeking for salvation through minerals and plants? When will humanity try to obtain new life by drinking at the very fountain head of life? Dr ALBRET.

(Journal de la Santé du 12 juillet 1891).

Influenza in 1892

This scourge exercices its direful effets over all parts of the globe, on the coast as well as inland; cold climates, as well as hot not ones, are subject to it, even the cities celebrated for their healthy situation are not free therefrom, it must then be fought against on the spot.

Cherbourg, Lille, Toulouse, Saint-Etienne, Nice, Toulon, Alger, Paris, Berlin, London, Dover, Bruxelles, Malines, Vienne, Copenhague, Stockholm, Madrid, Barcelone, Alicante, Turin, Genève, Milan, Rome, Venise, Palerme, Constantinople, New York, Boston, Chicago, Montréal, etc., have been specially affected by it.

In Milan the undertakers have been so overworked, that the persons who died on the 1st of January were only buried on the 5th; Chicago there were ten thousand sufferers, in Ohio, two hundred thousand.

The causes of this disease are not known as yet; it begins by an undefined uneasiness, afterwards to assume a more definite form, it assails the weak part of the individual so attacked and takes the form of lung disease, pulmonary affections, gastritis, bronchitis, nervous affections and all ailments pertaining thereto, etc., according to the special constitution of the individual. A relapse is often still more dangerous and the invalid must be well attended to during the convalescent state.

The principal victims are persons debilitated by disease, also those of weak constitution, children, aged people, sufferers from anaemia; we cannot, therefore, too highly recommend as a preventive against influenza, the use of the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

This absolutely harmless restorer has effected numberless cures and produces fresh blood of incomparable richness.

It rapidly endows people with the strength required to struggle against illness.

(Soleil, january the 8th 1892.)

The Elixir Godineau in all Climates

I find in different scientific papers curious opinions on the ELIXIR GODINEAU. In the steppes at a certain season the sufferers from anaemia, chlorosis, overworked individuals, from Russia, Germany, Sweden, etc., cross these steppes to join the roving tribes of kirghizes in order to cure themselves of any disorders by means of the "Koumiss", mare's milk fermented.

Now in Russia, as in France, the supreme restorer, the notable efficiency of which has been proved a thousand times is the ELIXIR GODINEAU, the most powerful of all tonics, the best restorative, that which not only science but the sick and ailing proclaim to be the world's great benefactor.

On the black continent, a French explorer has just accomplished, exactly, the same journey, which Stanley took.

In the pestilential forests and the immense fever breeding marshes, during scorching days and ice cold nights, he underwent fatigue and exhaustion, defying mortal anaemia itself, which is the unavoidable attendant of every day's journey, through torrid zones and amidst privations of all kinds.

This far seeing and judicious explorer had taken care to provide himself with ELIXIR GODINEAU.

Life was composed formerly of four stages, or ages. Only three remain now : childhood, youth and mature age. The ELIXIR GODINEAU has lifted old age and infirmities from human life.

CHANTEROSE.

THERAPEUTICS AND THE ELIXIR GODINEAU

Clinical Observations

PROGRESSIVE ATROPHY. — M. P. forty years of age, was affected with progressive atrophy. He experienced great muscular enfeeblement and could no longer lift any weight; painful cramps contracting his limbs frequently agitated by shocks and starts of spasmodic character, gradually falling off, and growing thinner from day to day, his right hand and arm were almost reduced to the state of a skeleton. Electricity and iodides had been tried in vain. ELIXIR GODINEAU was then made use of with most rapid effect, and suppression of cramps and contractions. A slight plumpness returned, little by little, as well as muscular vigour : after one month's treatment the patient had resumed his normal state.

CHRONIC DIARRHŒA. — Young L..., five years of age, was suffering from the time he had been weaned, from diarrhœa which only ceased a few days to reappear in a more lasting character : the ejections were yellowish, liquid, of very offensive smell and often containing undigested particles of food, no remedy had been found, although many medicines had been tried, and the child remained small slight, delicate and lacking in intellect. The ELIXIR GODINEAU was given to this child, three times a day without any change of diet ; after two days the stools became solid, then less frequent, and at present after two months treatment there is but one motion each day and the child has not only grown but is stouter and more energetic in body and mind.

DYSENTERY. — M. L. 25 years of age, after residing for two years in Tonkin, returned much enfeebled and affected by chronic diarrhoea ; he had frequent stool ejections of a serous liquid nature, of greenish color tinged with blood and containing glairy lumps and minute parts of the intestines ; he felt each motion a burning and very painful sensation in the anus, the stomach had become delicate, even the intellect had grown weak. His Doctor advised him to try the ELIXIR GODINEAU which produced an immediate and beneficial effect ; the ejections became yellowish and appeared as if cast in a mould ; all traces of dysentery have now disappeared and M. L..., having now recovered, has been able to resume his trade.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH. — M H..., tailor, sixty years of age suffered from cancer of the stomach with the ordinary symptoms, such as blackish and blood tinged vomiting, pale and yellow complexion, notable falling of an thinness, as well as general decline. No food could be taken, nutrition no longer existed, and the patient seemed, doomed to die shortly. The ELIXIR GODINEAU was tried and not only was this food remedy taken with pleasure, but it was perfectly digested and during the one year that this treatment has been adopted, the general state instead of growing worse, has, on the contrary, much improved.

CHRONIC RHUMATISM. — Madam B..., an independent lady had suffered for many years from rheumatism, and witnessed with terror the visible decline of her health through these successive attacks ; she was very pale indeed, easily got out of breath, was subject to palpitations, could hardly move her limbs, the joints being almost unable to work and remaining swollen, distorted and painful ; it was almost impossible for her to move, appetite was gone. Madam B. was given the ELIXIR GODINEAU and after taking about four bottles of it, her general state was altogether so improved that the joints had resumed their normal size and form, and that motion had become comparatively easy.

SCURVY. — M. G..., 30 years of age, sailor, after a long journey at sea, was taken with scurvy, his gums were purple, swollen soft, presenting deep ulcerations ; his breath was offensive, his teeth were loose and painful, not only mastication but even the absorption of solid food of any kind was quite impossible, and this patient was rapidly growing weaker and weaker, he was given regularly ELIXIR GODINEAU ; general health returned, his teeth were set firm again, his gums resumed a healthy state, in a word the sufferer was cured.

PERITONITIS. — Madam L..., ironer, after each of her confinements was threatened with peritonitis, of a serious character : in order to escape this affection, she was obliged during several weeks to take nothing save liquid food, so that enfeebled by such a diet she became, and remained, very weak and quite unfit for work. After her last confinement, she took the ELIXIR GODINEAU and not only were there no intestinal ailments, but the patient finding nourishment in the Elixir, became rapidly convalescent and nine days after her confinement was on her feet and quite well.

SICK HEAD-ACHES. — Miss S..., dressmaker, 30 years of age, suffered since she was 15 years old from sick head-aches every week, and these head-aches were accompanied with fearful pain and violent vomiting, making eating quite impossible during 48 hours; Miss S..., had grown very thin, her health was far from good, the nervous system being quite out of tone; she was advised to try the ELIXIR GODINEAU. The vomiting first disappeared, pain was less acute and not of such long duration, the sick head-aches became less frequent and they have now altogether disappeared.

VERTIGO. — Madam M..., 60 years of age when rising in the morning, felt a sensation of vertigo, with dizziness and tendency to fall; her head seemed to be quite empty, her sight was hazy, every thing appeared whirling around her, the different hues and colors remained confused as in a sort of fog: this patient was advised to take a small glass of ELIXIR GODINEAU before going to bed and another when getting up. At the end of 8 days vertigo had disappeared and it has never made its appearance again.

VOMITING DURING PREGNANCY. — Madam S., 28 years of age, five months enceinte, from the first month, of her then condition had been seized with dreadful and continual vomiting fits, either of liquids or solid kind, and of bile also and blood; and these fits were accompanied by epigastric pains; every thing had been tried to remedy this state; chloral, morphia, opium, etc., but all without success. This patient had grown fearfully thin and pregnancy seemed about to bring on some fatal result. The ELIXIR GODINEAU was recommended to madam S..., and thanks to it, the wasting away was arrested and vomiting ceased, she only had one or two fits of vomiting per day, and the whole ended in a happy confinement.

TUBERCULOUS MENINGITES. — Young P., ten years of age, in good health was suddenly taken ill with head-ache, general uneasiness, constipation alternating with vomiting: a complete change had taken place in his manners and character; this child who was of lively disposition and good tempered, became irritable, naughty and fond of teasing. A child belonging to this family had died from tuberculous meningitis and affected by the same symptoms. The frightened parents tried the ELIXIR GODINEAU which was given regularly for some time. Under its influence, all the symptoms altered; the stools and nutrition were effected regularly, in fact the child is now perfectly well.

SCROFULA. — Young T..., 8 years of age, had all the characteristic signs belonging to the diathesis of scrofula: fine white skin, frequent eczema, chilblains. almost continual cold in the head and sore throat, inflammation of the eyelids, general obstruction of the glands of the neck and jaws, with great sufferings through general feebleness and languor. Young T..., then took the ELIXIR GODINEAU and by means of the new elements brought into play in his organic system, his disease was wonderfully modified; the glands seemed to melt away, the cold in the head, the sore throat, the chilblains ceased to appear and this young boy is now a remarkably vigorous youth.

ULCER OF THE STOMACH. — Madam O., 35 years of age, had an ulcer in her stomach accompanied with slow gnawing pain in that part, vomiting after taking food, loss of appetite, fearful pains during digestion. She was put on a milk diet but could not bear it, as milk produced pains and vomiting; the wasting away was positively fearful to behold. This patient took the ELIXIR GODINEAU which was well retained by the stomach; the vomiting ceased, a certain stoutness ensued and the patient was fully cured in a month.

HEMORRHAGE OF THE BRAIN. — Manam G..., 70 years of age, was taken in June last with brain hemorrhage; shortly after getting out of bed she fell down, the whole left side becoming paralysed. In spite of the most attentive cares, motion could not be restored to her limbs, a sore had come in the lower part of her spine and mortification was about to set in; this lady was treated with the ELIXIR GODINEAU, nutrition so quickly ensued that the sore was closed within a week; motion was restored gradually to her limbs and in spite of her old age this stroke, which was thought to be a fatal one, has not left a trace.

CONGESTION OF THE BRAIN. — M. D..., 50 years of age, cabman, while sitting on his box, in December last, was struck with congestion of the brain; he lost all consciousness and it left fearful traces, at the slightest cause he felt as if heat pervaded his face, dizziness, gidiness and vertigo followed, the face became purple and the eyes were injected with blood, M. D..., took ELIXIR GODINEAU, his blood seemed to flow regularly through his veins, the vertigo and congestion, which had caused him so much anxiety, have now altogether subsided.

TEETHING. — Young M..., 7 months old, was cutting his teeth, but with much trouble. The child diminished every day in weight, would hardly be suckled and shrieked with pain during the night. Several children of this same family had already died during the teething process and the parents were fearfully anxious. The Doctor ordered ELIXIR GODINEAU, prescribing the proper dose for such a tender age. After finishing one bottle the child was well again, appetite had returned, and two incisive teeth had cut through the gums of the lower jaw.

INFLUENZA. — Miss M..., 60 years of age was taken ill at the end of last winter, with influenza attended with rather serious symptoms. Besides the cough which was almost continuous, the intestines seemed also to be suffering, violent stomach-ache, and colic, yellow and offensive diarrhoea, mucuous coated tongue, repulsion for food. Considering the patient's age, the case was serious and the Doctor feared a fatal end. The patient insisted on taking ELIXIR GODINEAU, the abdominal affection ceased almost immediately, the cough diminished and then disappeared and a fortnight after the old lady was in perfect health.

CONVALESCENCE AFTER PLEURISY. — Madam F..., 25 years of age, had suffered from pleurisy and although almost recovered she remained exceedingly weak coughed frequently, had from time to time pulmonary congestion brought on by the slightest cause, and menstruation no longer existed. It was feared that this young woman would become a prey to pulmonary tuberculosis, chiefly because having married in early life she was enfeebled through numerous confinements, and also as several cases of tuberculosis had been noticed in her family. A trial was given to the ELIXIR GODINEAU, the effects were excellent, the lungs resumed perfectly their office, the monthlies reappeared and this patient's health is now in quite a satisfactory state.

CONSTITUTIONAL FEEBLENESS. — Young C., 16 years of age, born of parents who were too young, was weak when born and had remained so : thin spare limbs undeveloped thorax, wizen voice, coughing after the slightest fatigue, perspiration appearing directly, there was the slightest increase of temperature and pervading the whole body during the night. At the age of puberty, this constitutional weakness only increased and threaned this boys life. The ELIXIR GODINEAU was tried, the youth resumed his growth his chest is now widened, his limbs are strong and he enjoys robust health.

DYSPEPSIA. — M. G., at 40 years of age, after the too free use of alcohol, was a prey to dyspepsia, his stomach would no longer fulfill its duty, Although this patient had given up taking acohol, greenish vomiting in the morning continued, each meal was followed by these vomiting fits, and the sufferer had been compelled to give up taking any solid food and to drink nothing but milk. He was advised to make use of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, and his stomach was rapidly set to rights, morning vomiting ceased, the fits of indigestion no longer raged, M. G., was able to give up taking milk, and is now able to take his usual food.

ULCERS. — Madam P., 70 years of age, had from her youth upwards, after several confinements, been afflicted with swelled varicose veins, which through too long wales had opened and formed ulcers. They were, situated on both legs near the ankles and in spite of much rest, these ulcerations, far from healing, only tended to extend : and grow deeper while inflicting great suffering. The patient took ELIXIR GODINEAU which supplied the necessary closing elements, now tissues were formed on the edges of the ulcers which were healed a fortnight after.

UTERINE HEMORRHAGE. — Madam F., 28 years of age, linen seamstress, after her first confinement, was taken with very serious hemorrhage which was only stopped with great trouble. This hemorrhage caused her general health to be greatly debilitated, the patient wearing rapidly away, a greenish paleness pervading her complexion, the blood of the monthly, assuming but a liquid rosy hue, Madam F., following, a friend's advice, took ELIXIR GODINEAU, strength almost immediately increased, this lady became slightly stout ; her complexion became as fresh and as rosy as formerly, menstruation resumed its course and no traces of anæmia were any longer to be found.

PULMONARY HEMORRHAGE. — M. D., school master, at the end of the school year, was suddenly taken, during teaching time, with pulmonary hemorrhage, which returned again a fortnight afterwards : this patient remained very weak, and pale, his voice was hoarse, muffled, and he was obliged to give up his occupation. Having been advised to try the ELIXIR GODINEAU, after taking one bottle his voice resumed its natural tone, after the second bottle he was no longer pale, M. D. has now recovered he has all his former strength, hemorrhage has not reappeared and the fulfilling of his professional duties is no longer an exhaustive practice for him.

LYMPHATISM. — Young D., aged 10 years, was of very lymphatic constitution, when younger he had mumps, he suffered every winter from chilblains, persistent cold in the head and inflammation of the tonsils ; his eyelids were usually red and swollen, his neck was distorted by inflamed glands one of which had given rise to an abscess, forming a deep wound. This youth was given ELIXIR GODINEAU ; all traces of lymphatism disappeared one by one, the eyelids resumed their natural state, he no longer had chilblains, colds in the head, or inflamed tonsils, and all the swellings in the throat and neck have disappeared.

RACHITIS. — Young F., 12 months old, was diseased with rachitis, the bones of his head were almost in a loose state, teeth had not yet put in an appearance, constipation was intense, the child's face was sorrow stricken and wizened, his limbs were bent and distorted and he could not stand on his feet. All other remedies were abandoned and the ELIXIR GODINEAU was tried.

The teeth cut through the gums almost immediately, constipation ceased, growth resumed its action, the bones became more consistent and two months later this child was able to walk perfectly well.

HYSTERIA. — Miss D., bonnet maker, 30 years of age, had hysteria with frequent fits, of dyspepsia, violent pains in the stomach; constipation, headache, lack of sleep resulting therefrom, she had tried bromides but had not improved her condition. she then tried the ELIXIR GODINEAU; the fits of hysteria became less frequent and then disappeared, the digestive process became more regular, the pains were no longer felt, she resumed her sleep and the patient may now be looked upon as cured.

FIBROUS BODIES. — Madam F., 45 years of age, had a fibrous excrescence in the uterus for the last ten years, which caused violent hemorrhage, compelling this sufferer to lie constantly in bed and thus becoming very weak. She had become so affected by anæmia that the cutting out of this fibrous lump was judged imprudent, as she was not fit to undergo such an operation. She took the ELIXIR GODINEAU, the fits of hemorrhage were less violent and less frequent, the operation could then be performed and the patient has now recovered.

HEMORRHAGE OF THE TEETH. — Young P., 12 years of age, after a tooth of hers had been extracted, was taken with hemorrhage of a serious character which ceased, only to commence again with greater severity. Not being strong, she fainted several times a day; her state was dangerous. The Doctor prescribed ELIXIR GODINEAU which furnished the organic system of this young girl with elements of nutrition, hemorrhage ceased altogether, strength returned and a few days later no danger was to be apprehended.

GENERAL PARALYSIS. — M. D., fifty years of age, after numerous family troubles, was threatened with general paralysis. Under the influence of emotion of any kind, his speech was embarrassed, his hands, arms, and legs began to tremble, his walk was unsteady, his limbs grew stiff and contracted now and then, his intellect and memory were gradually windling away. He took ELIXIR GODINEAU, these affections no longer made any progress, motion and speech returned, liveliness of intellect and memory were his again.

INTERMITTENT FEVER. — M. V., formerly an official in Senegal, had been taken with chronic marsh fever, after numberless fits he had reached what is called marsh cachexy, and he was but a skeleton, his complexion was of a bronzed yellowish tint, his spleen as well as his liver were very large, stomach was greatly distended and he seemed dropsical: digestion was bad and vomiting frequent. M. V., resolved to try the ELIXIR GODINEAU he improved very much in health, his complexion has lost that bronzed hue, he is less thin and has had no fever since he took up the latter treatment.

CHRONIC BLENNORRHOEA. — M. S., thirty five years of age, suffered from chronic blennorrhœa, the discharge was small but continuous, particulary occurring in the morning, the urethral canal was reduced by stricture and inflammation had even reached the bladder. The passing of water was often painful, the urine was thick, and often contained a mucous deposit. M. S., took ELIXIR GODINEAU, three small doses a day, the discharge had ceased after two months, the urine could pass easily and not only was it clear but no deposit was to be seen.

HEREDITARY SYPHILIS. — Young M., born of syphilitic parents, had enjoyed pretty good health until his second year, when the first signs of hereditary syphilis made their appearance; nutrition diminished, the child became thin, his features had a pinched appearance, the skin was dry and thin, and then cutaneous diseases burst forth. The wrinkles of the hands, the soles of the feet, the eyelids, the neck etc., became covered with a sort of thick white scaly substance, which came away in one piece showing a copper colored surface of metallic brilliancy. The ELIXIR GODINEAU was ordered, nutrition was effected with great rapidity, appetite was very good, a few frictions with neapolitan ointment were employed at the same time, and now the child is perfectly cured.

STIFF NECK. — Young L..., thirteen years of age, was suffering from that form of rheumatism very common amongst children and known by the name of stiff neck. This youth was suffering from it for the third time, hard nodes, painful when touched, could be felt all along the tendons of the neck. This child, of naturally weak constitution, underwent treatment by the ELIXIR GODINEAU with very good results; his general health became excellent and he has not suffered in any way from rheumatism during the last year.

CHOREA. — Young V..., 13 years of age, who was for a long time subject to great irritability, uneasiness, digestive troubles, creeping and tingling sensations in the limbs, was suddenly taken with contraction of the muscles, occasioning disordered motion and gesticulations, etc. producing a slouching, unsettled, jerky gait, ludicrous faces; and disturbed sleep. The ELIXIR GODINEAU was given to this child and through its influence the passionate hasty disposition abated and disappeared, and growth resumed its ordinary course.

AFFECTION OF THE BRAIN. — M. P..., 40 years of age, was threatened with a serious affection of the brain; he experienced a creeping and tingling sensation in his limbs, brain fag and vertigo, violent pains in the extremities of the limbs, pains followed alternately by a burning or icy cold sensation; he had besides short fits of delirium, frequent nausea and vomiting, palpitation and pains about the heart. The ELIXIR GODINEAU was immediately prescribed to M. P...; under its influence the painful phenomena at first disappeared, then the brain fag as well as the vertigo, and M. P..., is now in a perfect state of health.

CEREBRO-CARDIAC NEVROSIS. — Madam B..., was affected with cerebro-cardiac nevrosis after confinement; she felt a sensation of emptiness in the brain, of a most painful kind, all outward objects seemed changed, her own voice seemed strange to her; yet she was not insane. The heart affection consisted in palpitations and swoons, accompanied by a feeling of strangulation. Neuralgia in the head aggravated by this state of sleeplessness was a common feature and if the patient slept she was suddenly awakened by fits of night mare. Madam B..., took ELIXIR GODINEAU for four months and after the first bottle all symptoms of nevrosis had abated.

SOFTENING OF THE BRAIN. — M. G..., 70 years of age, suffered from softening of the brain. His intellectual powers were much affected, he complained of head-ache, dizziness, vertigo, tingling in the fingers, numbness in his feet. M. G. being very weak, often cried without any reason. His family, being much distressed with his case caused him to take 3 little glasses, every day, of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, and two months later all physical derangement as well as vertigo, dizziness, etc., were gone and now after this last month's treatment he has recovered his intellect altogether.

GASTRIC FORM OF INFLUENZA. — M. S..., baker, inhabiting Vichy, having been attacked by influenza in 1889 had remained weak and sickly ever since, and had a relapse of the same affection in 1891 with violent head-ache, loss of appetite, vomiting of solid articles of food whenever he attempted to eat. Four small doses a day, of ELIXIR GODINEAU were given to him. The head-ache instantly vanished, appetite quickly returned, vomiting ceased the very first day and now this patient is not only cured, but his general health is very greatly improved.

RHEUMATIC FORM OF INFLUENZA. — Madame L..., linen draper, 38 years of age, was taken ill eight days ago with acute influenza, accompanied by high fever, general stiffness with violent pains in the joints, which made it absolutely impossible for her to stir, or make the slightest movement. Madam L..., never having been affected with rheumatism was therefore suffering from influenza. Large doses of ELIXIR GODINEAU were tried with marvellous success. A few hours after the fever, had abated and two days later all pains had disappeared without leaving any traces.

INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, ACUTE NEPHRITIS. — M. D..., currier, 28 years of age, having taken cold, felt acute pain in the two sides of the loins, this pain increased under pressure or when the body was in motion, it extended towards the bladder and groin, the passing of water from the bladder was painful, the urine was scanty, reddish and contained a small quantity of blood. The symptoms of acute nephritis were noticed, and the ELIXIR GODINEAU was immediately given and continued for one month. At the end of that time the pains had disappeared and the urine had resumed its normal state.

CHRONIC NEPHRITIS. — Madam P..., sixty years of age, ironer, suffered from chronic nephritis. The action of the kidneys, was imperfect, she passed water 5 or 6 times during the night, her urine was often thick; she felt pain continually in the loins and she was wasting away very fast. This lady took the ELIXIR GODINEAU for two months; she no longer is disturbed during the night, her urine is clear, and all pains in the loins have subsided.

SPINAL DISEASE. — M. T..., blacksmith, 50 years of age, was affected with chronic spine disease; he had an uncomfortable feeling of chilliness, and constant numbness, as well as weakness, of muscular motion which disappeared through physical exertion, but only to return with more weakening effects, convulsive, movements of the limbs were frequent, and he suffered from very great constipation. His doctor ordered for him ELIXIR GODINEAU; every one of the above symptoms have each, in turn, disappeared, and M. T... is now vigorous and well.

LYPEMANIA (Hypocondria) — M. S..., 30 years of age, of nervous temperament, met with sorrow and discouragement which plunged him into great anxiety and grief: he thought himself pursued by enemies, this state of mistrust and of imaginary fears, grew more and more serious and lasted more than three months; besides, this young man hardly eat or drank remaining in a continual state of apathy and of stubborn silence: the ELIXIR GODINEAU was prescribed and given; appetite returned after the first bottle, his indifference to every thing diminished, his apathy, his moody silence vanished after the third bottle and this patient resumed his occupations as well as his ordinary course of life.

SPERMATORRHOEA. — M. D..., 50 years of age, was affected with spermatorrhoea: he had seminal discharges occurring when passing a motion or passing water, impotence, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, hypochondria, all kinds of digestive troubles; cramps in the stomach, dry colic, constipation alternating with diarrhoea; all the usual remedies in such cases had been tried by him: baths and cold lotions, vegetable food, etc., at last the ELIXIR GODINEAU was prescribed for him; the seminal discharges ceased after the first bottle, after four bottles had been taken these symptoms had fled and health had resumed its rightfull sway.

IMPOTENCE. — M. D..., 40 years of age, had given way to sexual excesses during his youth, and was reduced to almost absolute impotence; he was becoming affected with hypochondria, his memory was sinking, his chest was getting out of order, he suffered from oppression, had a dry cough, the blood no longer circulated as of yore; palpitation, anæmic shortness of breath ensued, he then took the ELIXIR GODINEAU and his strength returned, and impotence is gone.

OVERWORK IN CHILDHOOD. — Young D..., four years of age, had been overworked by his parents. Very intellectual, he could read, write, recite poetry and fables and he had been allowed the bad habit of sitting up at night. This overwork soon brought the child's organic system to a very low state, he became feeble, pâle, silent, his memory dwindled away and signs of idiocy became evident.

The child was given ELIXIR GODINEAU, memory returned, sadness disappeared and he resumed his former state with his brilliant intellect and sound health.

BACK FROM TONKIN. — M. Z... on his return from Tonkin seemed worn out, he no longer talked, he was in a fearfully depressed state, could hardly eat, constant diarrhoea was exhausting him: he had seemingly aged 20 years during the two years spent in Tonkin. He is taking the ELIXIR GODINEAU, strength is now returning his appetite is better and he is once more able to fulfill his duties as accountant.

WORDLY FATIGUE. — Madam F..., a very fashionable lady, much liked and well known, exhausted through balls and evening parties, towards the close of the winter had become very low spirited and nervous. Nothing interested her, she would not even go to parties. she had grown quite thin, her complexion was yellow and tinted with a lead gray hue; her Doctor prescribed the following treatment; plenty of out door exercise, a small glass of ELIXIR GODINEAU twice a day: sleep which was hers no longer, is now quiet and deep and she was all right again in a fortnight's time.

HÆMORRHAGE. — M. D..., carpenter, fell from a scaffolding, and was severely wounded on the forehead, he lost a great deal of blood. Serious anœmia set in. M. D..., remained weak pale, he had lost both strenght and courage; 30 grammes a day of ELIXIR GODINEAU were prescribed for him: the patient's face has once more its natural color and he is able to work again, after eight days treatment.

INTELLECTUAL OVERWORK. — M. D..., was preparing for his preliminary test examination for the Ecole Polytechnique; overworked, he was low spirited, saw nothing but mathematical figures which he could not grasp, he sought the solution of equations which were out of sight before he could examine them. A fortnight's rest and two small glasses, a day, of ELIXIR GODINEAU were prescribed for him; the geometrical figures assumed regular shapes, his thought and memory became clear, and he passed his examination with success.

MENTAL TRIALS. — M. L..., 45 years of age, exhausted, by work and study, became heir to a legacy, his joy was very great; soon however anxieties arose and difficulties met him at each step; bailliffs, lawyers and judges were constantly his bugbear, he no longer slept, he could no longer attend to his ordinary matters of busines and seemed threatened with madness.

He was made to walk constantly, and after each trip to take a smale dose of ELIXIR GODINEAU and then to lie down: three months later he was once more in posession of all his strength and energy.

CHLOROSIS. — Miss F.r., 22 years of age, was affected with chlorosis in the highest degree, her skin was yellowish, almost greenish. her flesh soft and unresistant.

Menstruations were scarce and irregular in her case, her appetite was dainty, she oely fancied acid or raw articles of food, digestion wns painful, she suffered from cramps, her legs were often swollen and she experienced trouble in walking. Miss F... took the ELIXIR GODINEAU; all these morbid symptoms disappeared, menstruation resumed its regular course, as did digestion, her flesh became firm, and her complexion, is now a healthy color.

ATAXY. — M. P..., 50 years of age, was attaked with the second stage of ataxy: after suffering severe pains in the limbs, which pains continually changed places, he felt great weakness in his legs, had an unsteady gait, frequent fits and starts, numbness and vertigo. The Lamalou waters had only given temporary relief. The ELIXIR GODINEAU was given in doses of 30 gammes a day, vertigo fled as by enchantment, the gait became steady, all pains disappeared and we may consider the patient as quite cured.

Testimonial from Sister Mary of Saint-Clotilde

Saint-Rémy de Sillé, January 12th. 1892.

To the Director of the ELIXIR GODINEAU,

Sir,

7, rue Saint-Lazare, Paris.

Allow me to thank you once more for your kindness. I have received the bottle of ELIXIR GODINEAU I asked you for, in my letter of the 8th instant.

I am happy to see my dear patient recovering her health, from day to day. I have, therefore, greatest confidence in the ELIXIR GODINEAU, experience having taught me its manifold virtues, and I recommend it to mothers of families as well as to elderly persons, and to nurses, who have the care of sick people or invalids.

I beg you will accept, with my sincere thanks ; the expression of my earnest respect.

Soeur MARIE DE SAINTE-CLOTILDE,

governess at the district school of St-Rémy de Sillé (Sarthe), via Sillé-le-Guillaume.

P.-S. — You may make such use as you think proper of the contents of my letter.

EXCELSIOR

(Soleil, Mai 17th. 1892.)

We have also received the following communication :

Paris, May 10th. 1862.

To the Director of the ELIXIR GODINEAU,

7, rue Saint-Lazare, Paris.

I am happy, and my conscience prompts me to bring to your notice a fresh result produced by the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

The fact, to which, I wish to call your attention, is the following :

On the 30h of April last, I was called upon to attend M. H. A., 71 years of age, a retired magistrate, who, in waking un in the morning, had found himself unable to move the limbs on his left side, in which he felt cramp and a tingling feeling. Vertigo, continual diarrhoea, as well as nousea, had also set in.

After consulting with Dr F..., medical authority of the Beaujon hospital, the diagnosis concluded that the patient was suffering from hemiplegia brought on through softening of the brain, resulting from intellectual overwork and sexual excesses. We prescribed the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

Vertigo, nausea, tingling feeling, heaviness in the limbs, all disappeared after the first bottle. This patient was able to use his left hand a little, after the second bottle, and now, after taking the fourth bottle, he is able to walk without fear of accident, from Montmartre to Belleville. He therefore intends to persevere with this treatment, in which he has placed his utmost confidence.

You may, Sir, make whatever use you think fit of the present letter, both, in the interest of the sick and ailing, as well as in that of this exceptional remedy.

(Signed) : Docteur A. DUCAT,
Formerly physician to the Assistance public, and Army Surgeon Major, 31, rue de Romainville, Paris.

It is needless to add any comments to this letter save, that every day, facts and facts alone, establish the ELIXIR GODINEAU, in the entire Globe, as one the necessaries of life.

ANSWERS TO THREE QUESTIONS

FIRST QUESTION

Is it possible to avoid old age, or at least not to grow old too rapidly?

Answer : Yes ! by taking the ELIXIR GODINEAU.

SECOND QUESTION

Why do we grow old ?

Answer : Because our blood consumes itself till exhausted, and as its influence extends over all the phenomena of life, without any exception, the weakening of this vital fluid brings on old age, that is to say, physical and moral decay, with its whole train of griefs, sorrows and regrets.

THIRD QUESTION

Why does the Elixir Godineau restore us to health?

Answer : Because the method (having as its basis certain fundamental principles of the method of D' BROWN-SEQUARD, the eminent professor of the College of France), of the EELIXIR GODINEAU introduces into the organism, the most pure and richest blood matter extracted from the most powerful and most generous parts of certain young and vigorous animals. It is to new blood of incomparable strength, and of very great richness, immediately supplying the place of exhausted blood in old men and women, (whose blood has almost entirely lost its strength) that these marvellous and rapid cures are due and have formed the subject of press articles, in both hemispheres, ever since the ELIXIR GODINEAU has been made use of.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE

By adults the ELIXIR GODINEAU should be taken in doses of, one tablespoonful or small glass, a quarter of an hour before each meal. Should the effects be too slow, a fourth tablespoonful should be taken at bedtime. Although the taste of this constitutional remedy is most agreeable, patients, who find it too sweet, can mix the spoonful or small glass with the same quantity of Bordeaux wine, or of white wine, or, better still, of Madeira; the mixture should be made just before taking it. For children under eight years of age the dose should consist of one teaspoonful four times a day, at the same hours as indicated above. For infants no mixture with wine must be made or given. Several people have written telling us that a good method of taking the Elixir after meals was either as a liquor, or by sweetening their coffee with it, or mixing it with hot or boiled milk.

SPECIAL NOTICE. — The treatment by the ELIXIR GODINEAU must be proceeded with without interruption; this is all the more easy, as the use of the ELIXIR GODINEAU requires no particular diet or treatment, nor need the usual habits of life be changed.

DURATION : The duration of the treatment is by no means absolutely limited, but remains subjected to the degree of the disease, or illness. the doses may be doubled if it is necessary. Each patient must ascertain the degree of strength obtained, as also that which he seeks to procure for himself; in general, great punctuality and continuance in the use of the ELIXIR GODINEAU insures the successful result sought for.

The EIXIR GODINEAU, thanks to the great care and great attention brought to bear in its preparation, is perfectly harmless; it never produces irritation of the stomach, inflammation of the digestive organs or nervous troubles of any kind.

The bottles must always be kept in a cool place and in an upright position.

Combined with a hydropatic treatment it has a marvellous effect. In such cases the above prescribed doses of ELIXIR GODINEAU must be taken almost immediately after each bath, or shower bath.

NOTICE. — Open the bottles with the same care as if dealing with efferecent liquids.

Place the bottles which froth (effervescence), in a pail of cold water for 24 hours and the froth will disappear of itself, or, if preferred, cook it again in a Bain-Marie, that is, place the bottle, opened, in a pail of boiling water.

PRICES FOR FRANCE

20 francs par bottle; fifty francs for three bottles; in either case one franc for transport and packing, is to be added to the post office order which must accompany each order, and be made payable to the Director of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, 7, rue St-Lazare, Paris (we repeat number seven).

The bottles are delivered in Paris, free of transport and packing.

PRICES IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES

The prices and modes of payment, for the orders coming in from foreign countries, are the same as for those concerning France alone; all supplementary expenses, if any such exist, being defrayed by the purchaser of the goods.

NOTE. — To incur as little expense as possible in the transport of goods, send the postal order with the order; in this way the commission, demanded by the Railway companies for collecting the amount of the bill, is saved.

On the other hand we never send goods to persons unknown to us unless remittance accompanies the order.

Our goods are always payable in francs in Paris or in the equivalent foreign money without loss in exchange.

Custom house duty to be paid by the consignee.

EXCEPTIONAL PRICES

Special arrangements are made for certain orders such as hospitals, dispensaries asylums, public and private charitable institutions, and establishments, public relief office, charitable boards, and private hospitals.

Special prices are also granted to Doctors, physicians, other medical officers and practitioners, midwives, officers of the army and navy, public officials, officers of state, etc.

ORDERS — CONCESSIONS

All orders made by correspondence, all requests for deposits or concessions for the Provinces or for foreign lands, in fact all communications must be addressed to the Director of the ELIXIR GODINEAU, 7, rue Saint-Lazare, Paris (Seven) at the head office.

In cases of urgency, the telegraphic address is Godinélix, Paris.

It is of great importance that the name and address should be distinctly written and given, and also that it should be stated whether the parcel is to be delivered at the private address, or at the railway station, or at the nearest port.

VARIOUS NOTICES

The ELIXIR GODINEAU is always sold in our special bottles bearing our Trade mark similar to that of this pamphlet.

Each bottle has a label, the model of which has been deposited at the Tribunal de commerce de la Seine for France, and with the properly qualified authorization as to commercial matters in most foreign countries.

All preparations and bottles, sold without the above mentioned name, and not under the above conditions, are to be considered as counterfeit imitations, and all customers are begged to call the attention of the Director, to such facts by communicating with the Head office in Paris, rue St-Lazare, n° 7 (Seven); the Director will take the necessary steps to suppress such imitations. Any one doubting the authenticity of our bottles is respectfully requested to send a sample bottle to our address; we will return a real one charges paid.

Please Circulate this pamphlet which has been translated in all principal languages.
