- ¶ A beautiful copy of this "exceedingly scarce" book—as Lowndes described it—which has the additional and even more rare merit of being a Presentation Copy from the Author. It is throughout in clean state, and is quite perfect, having the blank leaf at end, which completes the four leaves of sig. Rrr. The original owner was doubtless John Everard (ca. 1575–1650), divine and mystic, who in 1618 dedicated to Francis

Bacon his sermon published under the title of "The Arriereban." Everard appears to have been justly proud of this gift from the great Lord Chancellor, for he not only recorded the fact on the fly-leaf (as above quoted), but two months later he wrote a similar inscription on the title-page, "Everardi. ex dono Autoris, July 1624." The collation of the book—which was intended to form the first part of Bacon's vast philosophical project, the "Instauratio Magna," and which was really a much enlarged edition of the "Advancement of Learning"—is as follows:—General title, Rawley's Address to the Reader, title to the "De Dignitate," etc., 4 ll., A 6 ll., B to Rrr in fours, last blank. It is printed on unusually fine, thin paper, and this copy measures 12½ in. by 8½ in.
