CHARLES LANCHESTER NEALE.

MEDICINAL LOTION.

LONDON:

PRINTED BY GEORGE E. EYRE AND WILLIAM SPOTTISWOODE,

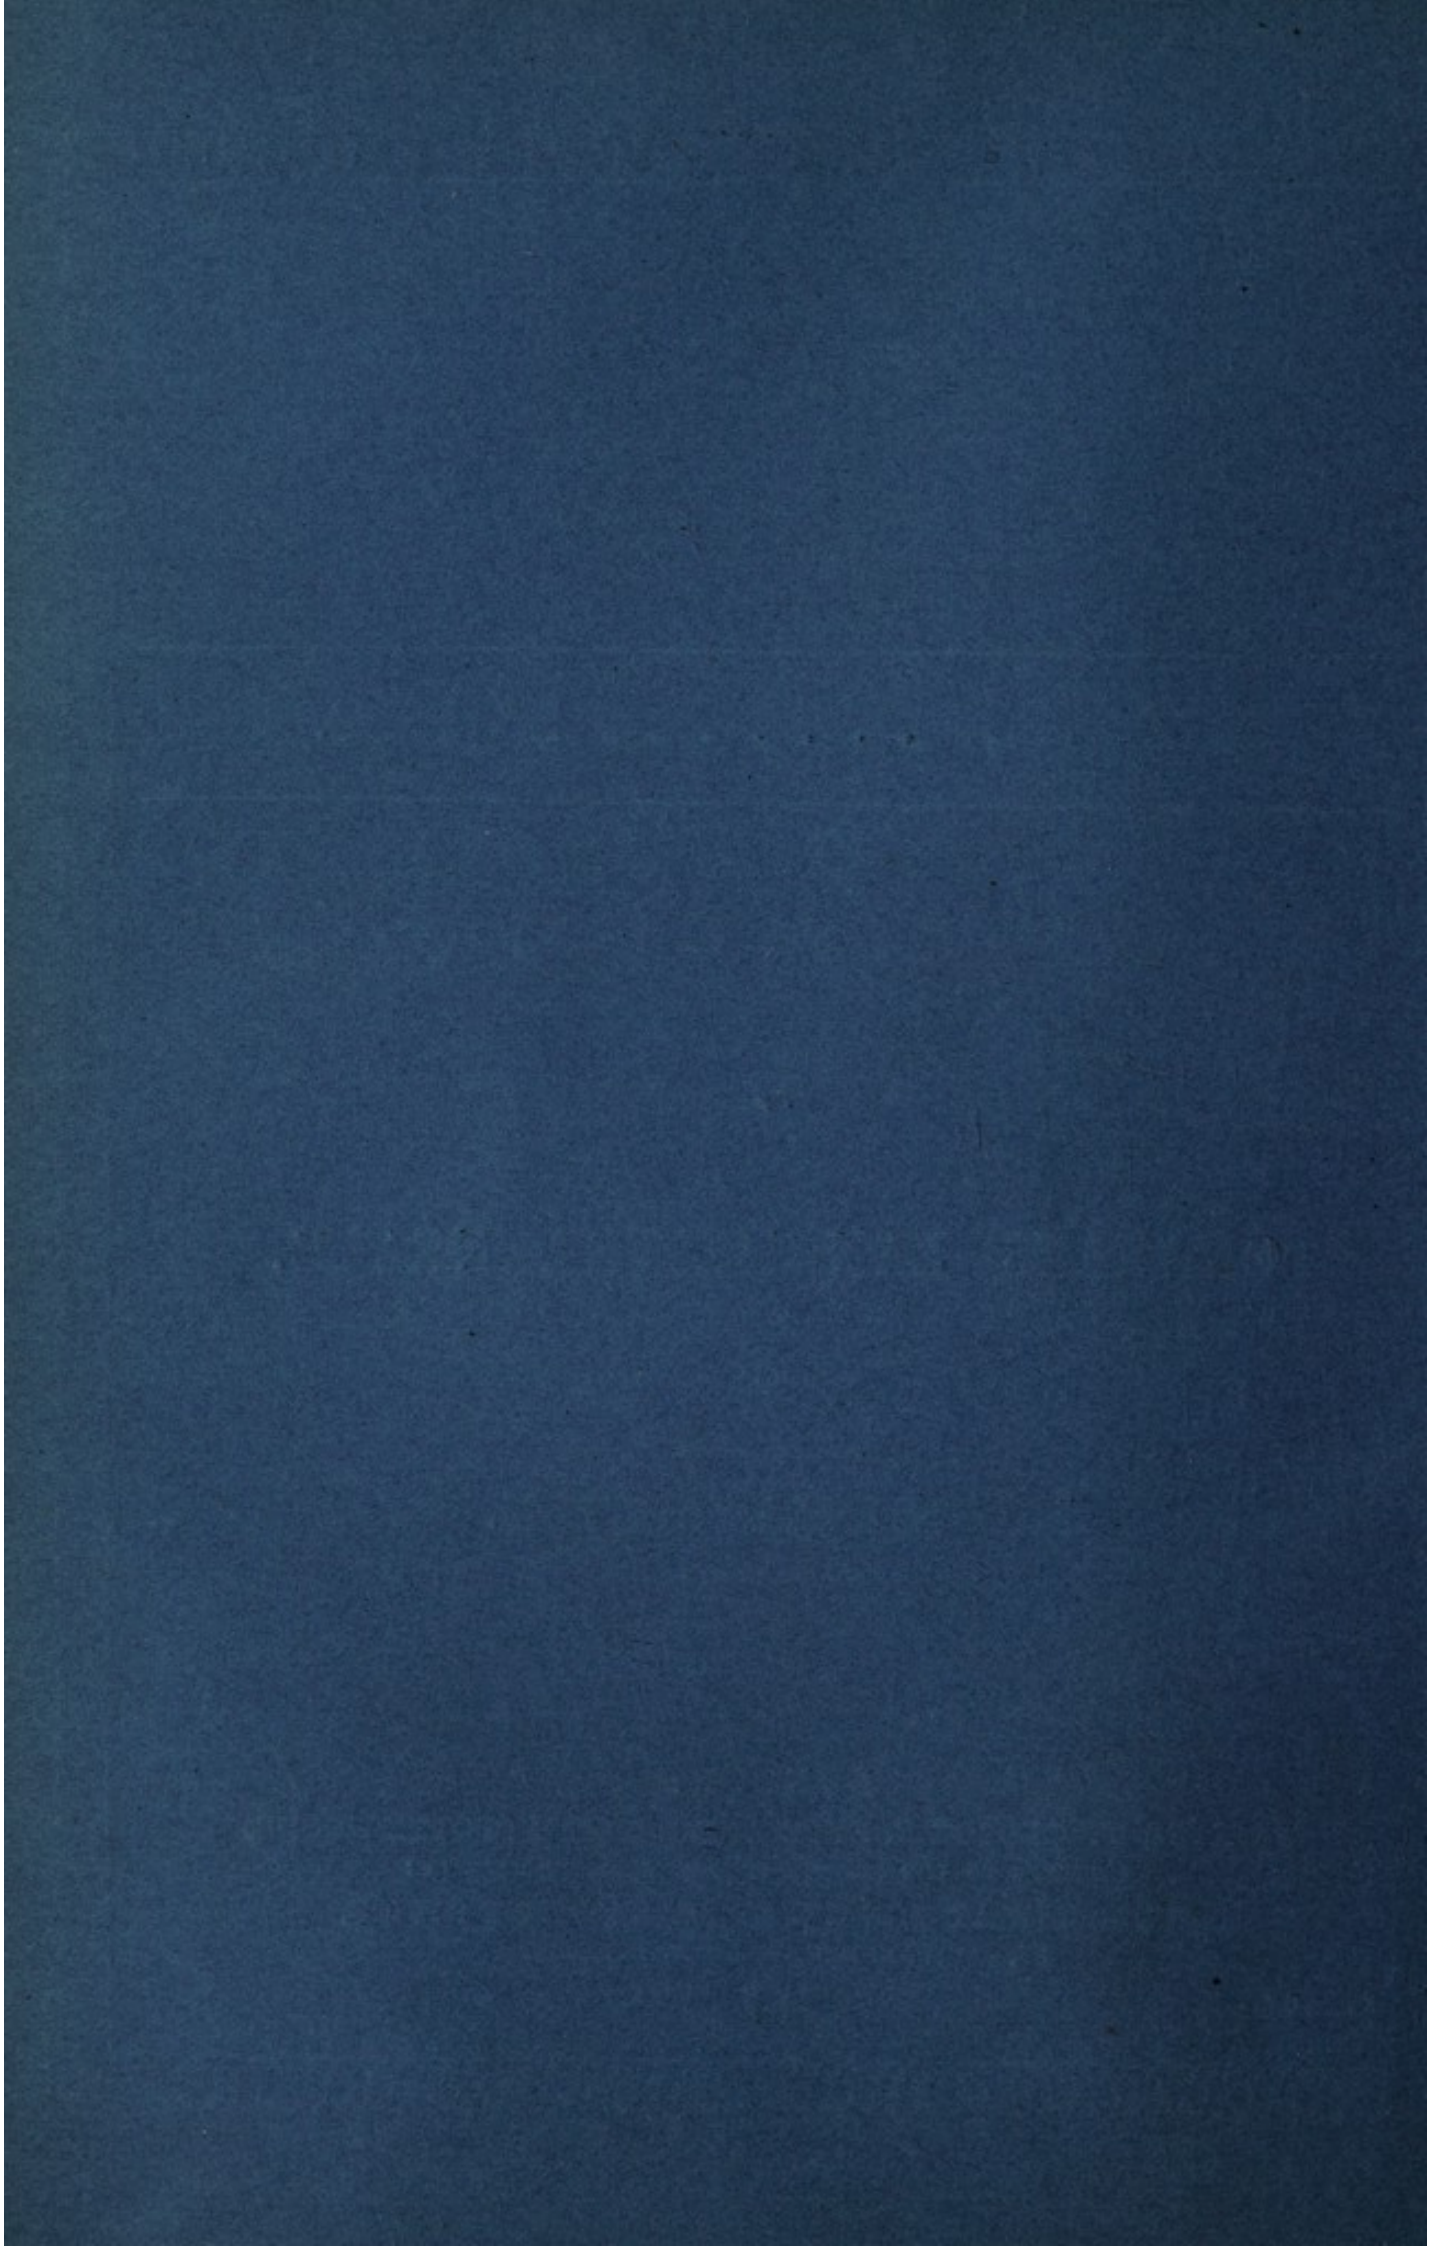

PRINTERS TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY:

PUBLISHED AT THE GREAT SEAL PATENT OFFICE,

25, SOUTHAMPTON BUILDINGS, HOLBORN.

Price 3d.

1856.

A.D. 1855 N° 1582.

Medicinal Lotion.

(This Invention received Provisional Protection, but notice to proceed with the application for Letters Patent was not given within the time prescribed by the Act.)

PROVISIONAL SPECIFICATION left by Charles Lanchester Neale at the Office of the Commissioners of Patents, with his Petition, on the 13th July 1855.

I, CHARLES LANCHESTER NEALE, of 1, Chapel Place, Cavendish Square,
5 London, do hereby declare the nature of the said Invention for "A NEW MEDICINAL LOTION, TO BE CALLED THE CRIMEAN NEURALGIC SPECIFIC," to be as follows:—

The use of this lotion to all affections of the nerves or neuralgic complaints after one or more applications effects a speedy and infallible cure, but will in all
10 instances give immediate relief; it consists of three liquid ingredients (of the ordinary commercial strength): one pint of rose water distilled, one table spoonsfull of the best distilled white vinegar, and six drops of laudanum. The proportions of this lotion may be altered, arriving at nearly the same beneficial effect, but the above quantities are recommended. It is to be applied to the 15 parts affected on a piece of linen, and gently rubbed over the painful part until the pain ceases, which will speedily take place. This lotion does not leave any marks on the painful part, as is generally the case with other lotions, balsams, or compounds used for the above ailments.

A.D. 1855 No. 1523.

Medicinal Lotion.

(This Lotion being a compound of various medicinal substances, but not being a preparation of any one of them, it is not within the limits prescribed by the Act.)

PROVISIONAL SPECIFICATION for an Improved Lotion for the treatment of the Office of the Commissioners of Patents, with this Lotion, on the 15th July 1855.

I, CHARLES JAMESON, of 1, Abchurch Lane, London, do hereby declare the nature of the said Invention for a New Medicinal Lotion, so as to enable any person skilled in the art to use and make the same, as follows:—

The use of this Lotion to all affections of the nerves or muscular complaints after one or more applications effects a rapid and infallible cure, and will in all instances give immediate relief; it consists of three fluid ounces (for the ordinary commercial strength) of one pint of rose water distilled, and six ounces of the best distilled white wine, and six drops of benzoin. The proportion of this Lotion may be altered, varying in nearly the same beneficial effect, but the above quantities are recommended. It is to be applied to the parts affected on a piece of linen, and gently rubbed over the painful part until the pain ceases, which will speedily take place. This Lotion does not have any unlike on the painful part as is generally the case with other Lotion, balsams, or compounds used for the above complaint.
