"In the present catalogue it is proposed to give a precise account of the MS. Sources of Romance in the British Museum. Its scope is not limited to a description of those works which by their connection with the various cycles or by their own construction can claim the title of Romances, but it also embraces a larger class of literature which more or less directly has to do with the subject. . . . It is hoped that the Catalogue may serve not only as a guide to the Museum collection, but also, to some extent, as a hand-book to the subject."—Prefatory Note.

Contents lettered: Vol. 1, Raptores; Vols. 2 and 3, Insessores; Vol. 4, Rasores-Grallatores; Vol. 5, Natatores.

It is universally acknowledged by naturalists that the ornithological works of Gould stand at the head of their class, whether as regards the accuracy of their drawing or the beauty and correctness of their colouring.

In these animated pictures we indeed look upon them "in their habits as they lived"—seeing not one, but in many cases both the male and the female in various attitudes, sometimes sitting, sometimes on the wing, as well as the trees which form their homes, and the plants, flowers and insects upon which they feed.

- “No work of greater beauty will be produced than that on which John Gould bestowed the fulness of his energy and the acme of his artistic talent. We allude to his “Birds of Great Britain.”
- “The care bestowed on the plates of this work was remarkable, the aim of the Author being to produce a picture of the birds as they appeared in their natural haunts, and especial pains were bestowed on the young, particularly those of the wading-birds and natators.”
—Nature, 1881.
