CONDICIONS OF SALE.

- I. The highest bidder to be the buyer ; and if any dispute arise between bidders, the lot so disputed shall be immediately put up again, provided the Auctioneer cannot decide the said dispute.
- II. No person to advance less than 1s. ; above five pounds, 2s. 6d. ; and so on in proportion.
- III. In the case of lots upon which there is a reserve, the Auctioneer shall have the right to bid on behalf of the seller.
- IV. The purchasers to give in their names and places of abode, and to pay down 10s. in the pound, if required, in part payment of the purchase-money ; in default of which the lot or lots purchased to be immediately put up again and re-sold.
- V. The lots to be taken away, at the buyer's expense, immediately after the conclusion of the sale ; in default of which Messrs. SOTHEBY, WILKINSON & HODGE will not hold themselves responsible if lost, stolen, damaged, or otherwise destroyed, but they will be left at the sole risk of the purchaser. If, at the expiration of ONE WEEK after the conclusion of the sale, the books or other property are not cleared or paid for, they will then be catalogued for immediate sale, and the expense, the same as if re-sold, will be added to the amount at which the books were bought. Messrs. SOTHEBY, WILKINSON & HODGE will have the option of reselling the lots uncleared either by public or private sale without any notice being given to the defaulter.
- VI. All the books are presumed to be perfect, unless otherwise expressed ; but if upon collating, any should prove defective, the purchaser will be at liberty to take or reject them, provided they are returned within ONE WEEK after the conclusion of the sale, when the purchase-money will be returned.
- VII. The sale of any book or books is not to be set aside on account of any worm-holes, stained or short leaves of text or plates, want of list of plates, or blank leaves, or on account of the publication of any subsequent volume, supplement, appendix, or plates. All the manuscripts, autographs, all magazines and reviews, all books in lots, and all tracts in lots or volumes, will be sold with all faults, imperfections and errors of description. The sale of any illustrated book, lot of prints or drawings is not to be set aside on account of any error in the enumeration of the numbers stated, or error of description.
- VIII. No IMPERFECT BOOK will be taken back, unless a note accompanies each book, stating its imperfections, with the number of lot and date of the sale at which the same was purchased.
- IX. To prevent inaccuracy in the delivery, and inconvenience in the settlement of the purchases, no lot can on any account be removed during the time of sale.
- X. Upon failure of complying with the above conditions, the money required and deposited in part of payment shall be forfeited ; and if any loss is sustained in the reselling of such lots as are not cleared or paid for all charges on such re-sale shall be made good by the defaulters at this sale.

Gentlemen who cannot attend the Sale may have their Commissions faithfully executed by their humble Servants,

SOTHEBY, WILKINSON & HODGE,

* * * A remarkably interesting volume containing a totally unknown reading of the beautiful song, "COME LIVE WITH ME AND BE MY LOVE." This song (one of the most famous in the English language) was FIRST printed in "The Passionate Pilgrim, and Sonnets to sundry notes of music, by William Shakespeare: London Printed by W. Jaggard 1599" It was then printed (with variations) in "England's Helicon," 1600. We next find it sung by Sir Hugh Evans in the "Merry Wives of Windsor" (written about 1601), and afterwards in Walton's Angler, 1655.—Walton did not exactly follow either "The Passionate Pilgrim" or "England's Helicon." THE VERSION GIVEN IN THE COMMONPLACE BOOK, which we now offer, DIFFERS FROM EVERY KNOWN READING, moreover NO other Manuscript version seems to be recorded. The song has been ascribed to both Shakespeare and Marlowe. If it is not by Shakespeare, it is certainly a remarkable coincidence that he should have inserted in the "Merry Wives of Windsor" a song published under his name only two years earlier.—In the Commonplace book it runs as follows:

"Come lywe wth mee and bee my loue And we will all the pleasures proue that vallyes groues and woodes or fieldes and craggie Rockes or mountaines yeildes Where wee will sitt upon the Rockes and see the sheppardes feede theire flockes by shallowe Ryuers, to whose falles melodious birdes sings madrygalles Where wee make a bedd of Roses and thowsande other fragrant poses a capp of flowers and a kirtle imbrodred all wth leaues of myrtle A belt of strawe with Ivie budes wth corrall (amber-erased) claspes and (bud-erased) studes
 if these delightes thy mynde may moue
 then lyue wth mee and bee my loue
 A gounne made of the finest woolle which from our little lambes wee pull faire lined slippers for the coulde with buckets of the pureste goulde Thy dyshes shal be filde with meate suche as the gods doe use to eate shall one and everye table bee preparte eache daye for thee and mee
 The shepparde swaines shall daunce and singe for thy delyght eache faire mornninge if these delights thy mynde may moue
 then lyue wth mee and bee my loue"

The stanza commencing, "Thy dyshes shal be filde with meate," is not found in any form in either "The Passionate Pilgrim" or "England's Helicon."—Walton printed a version of it in 1655, which read as follows:

"Thy silver dishes for thy meat
 As precious as the gods do eat Shall on an ivory table be Prepared each day for thee and me"

This, as will be seen, differs from the reading in the Commonplace book.—The "RESPONSE" (not printed in "The

LOT 525—continued.

Passionate Pilgrim") as found in the Commonplace book reads :

RESPONSE.

" If all the world were loue and younge and truthe in euery shepparde tonge
these prettie pleasures myght mee moue
to lyue withe thee and bee thy loue
The flowers fade and wanton feildes to waywarde winter reckninge yeildes a long tonge and a haste of galle your fancies springe but sorrowes falle Tyme dryves the flockes from feilde to folde
When ryuers rage and rockes growe colde then philomela becomethe dombe the reste complains of cares to come Thy gowne thy capp, thy bedd of Roses thy shooes thy kirtle and thy poses soone vades soone witherethe soone forgotten in follyge ripe in reason rotten What should wee talke of dainties then of better meate, then serveth men all this in vaine, Eates only good that God dothe blesse and sende for foode If age coulde taste and loue could breede had age no date nor loue noe neede
these prettie pleasures myght mee moue
to lyue with mee and bee my loue

finis"

This differs from the version given in "England's Helicon," not only in the wording, but in the arrangement of the stanzas. A note at the end of the volume indicates that the owner of this Commonplace book was John Thornborough (born 1551), Dean of York, and afterwards Bishop of Limerick. In 1575 Thornborough was Chaplain to Henry Herbert, Earl of Pembroke. The Manuscript contains many contemporary entries of English, Irish, and theological interest.

704 POPE (Alexander) Poet, A MOST INTERESTING SERIES OF EIGHTEEN AUTOGRAPH LETTERS OF ALEXANDER POPE ADDRESSED TO LADY MARY WORTLEY MONTAGU, AND ONE TO HER HUSBAND EDWARD WORTLEY MONTAGU, TOGETHER NINETEEN LETTERS, covering 63 pp. 4to and 8 pp. 8vo; twelve are signed "A. Pope" (one with signature partly obliterated with ink); seven are complete but unsigned; the collection also contains some interesting MS. poetry in the autograph of Pope, one the rough draft of a Poem called "Sandys Ghost" with many variations from the printed form, with Letter and Memorandum relating to it in the autograph of W. Moy Thomas; also a Poem, "The Capons Tale," to Lady Mary Wortley; and some other MS. poetry; the whole bound in a volume, brown morocco gilt, by Riviere

* * * A MOST VALUABLE AND INTERESTING COLLECTION OF LETTERS, &C. OF THIS EMINENT POET, ESPECIALLY BEING ADDRESSED TO SO INTERESTING A CHARACTER AS LADY MARY WORTLEY MONTAGU. Most of the letters are written in a very high-flown style, and the following extracts will give some idea of the interest of these letters. In one he mentions, "You have no way of making me amends but by continuing an Asiatic when you return to me, whatever English airs you may put on to other people. I prodigiously long for your Sonnets, your remarks, yr Oriental learning, but I long for nothing so much as your Oriental self. You must of necessity be advanced so far back into true nature and simplicity of manners, by these 3 years residence in ye east, that I shall look upon you as so many years younger than you were, so much nearer innocence (this is truth) and infancy (that is openness) I expect to see your soul as much thinner dressed as yr body, and that you have left off as unwieldy and cumbersome, a great many d— European habits. Without offence to your modesty be it spoken, I have a burning desire to see your soul stark naked, for I am confident, it is the prettiest kind of white soul in ye universe"; the rest of the letter gives a most pathetic account of a pair of lovers who worked in the fields, taking shelter under a tree and being struck dead by lightning, and Lord Harcourt having erected a monument to their memory, Pope sends two epitaphs which he has written to inscribe on it. In another he says, "My heart leaps at your arrival, let us have you from the East, and the Sun is at her service. I write as if I were drunk, the pleasure I take in thinking of yr return transports me beyond the bounds of common sense and decency." "The joy of following your footsteps would as soon carry me to Mecca, as to Rome, and let me tell you as a friend if you are really disposed to embrace the Mahometan religion I'll fly in Pilgrimage with you thither, with as good a heart and sound as devotion as ever." "Mr. Congreve in fits of the Gout, remembers you. Dr. Garth makes Epigrams in prose when he speaks of you, Sir Robert Rich's Lady loves you, tho' Sir Robert admires you, Mr. Crays commemorates you with honour, the Duke of Buckingham with praise, I myself with something more." In another he says, "I had ten times rather go on pilgrimage to see your Face, than St. John Baptist's head"; the rest of this letter is written in a very free style in reference to Lady Mary's religion, &c. In another he says, "None but your Guardian angels can have you more constantly in mind than I, and if they have it is only because they can see you always. If ever you think of those fine young Beaus of Heaven, I beg you to reflect that you have just as much consolation from them, as I at present have from you." "I tremble for you the more, because (whether you will believe it or not) I am capable myself of following one I love not only to Constantinople, but to those parts of India, where they tell us the women best like the ugliest fellows, as the most admirable productions of nature, and look upon Deformities as the Signature of Divine favour." In another he says, "In earnest, Madam, if I were to write to you as often as I think of you it must be every day of my life. I attend you in spirit, thro' all your ways. I follow you in Books of Travells thro' every Stage. I wish for you and fear for you thro' whole folios. You make me shrink at the past dangers of dead Travellers and when I read of a delightful Place or agreeable Prospect, I hope it yet subsists to give you pleasure." "I communicated your letter to Mr. Congreve. He thinks of you and talks of you as he ought, I mean as I do (for one always thinks that to be as it ought). We never meet but we lament over you. We pay a sort of weekly Rite to your memory," &c. In another he mentions the death of his father "which happened within a few days after I had writ to you inviting myself to meet you in my Journey homewards. I have got a mother of great age and infirmitys, whose last precious days of life I am now attending, with such a solemn pious kind of officiousness, as a melancholy Recluse watches the last risings and fallings of a Dying Taper. My natural temper is pretty much broke and I live half a Hermite, within five miles of London. A letter from you soothes me in my Reveries, 'tis like a conversation with some spirit of the other world, the last glympse of whose Favour setts one above all taste of the things of this. The women here are—women, I can't express how I long to see you face to face. If ever you come again, I shall never be able to behave with decency, I shall walk, look and talk at such a rate, that all the Town must know, I have seen something more than human. Come for God's sake, come Lady Mary, come quickly!" In another he says, "My eyesight is grown so bad that I have left off all correspondence except with yourself, in which methinks, I am like those people who abandon and abstract themselves from all that are about them (with whom they might have business and intercourse) to employ their addresses only to Invisible and distant beings whose good offices and favours cannot reach them in a long time if at all. If I hear from you I look upon it as a little less than a miracle or extraordinary visitation from another world. 'Tis a sort of dream of an agreeable thing, which subsists no more to me, but however 'tis such a dream as exceeds most of the Dull realities of my Life! Indeed, what with ill health and ill fortune, I am grown so stupidly philosophical as to have no thought about me that deserves the name of warm or lively, but that which sometimes awakens me into an Imagination that I may yet see you again"; he also mentions "The political state is under great divisions, the parties of Walpole and Stanhope as violent as Whig and Tory. The K. and P. continue two names. There is nothing like a Coalition, but at the masquerade." In another he says, "When I thought Italy had pleasures that could allure me to have met you there, I see it was only the view of meeting you that made that Country appear charming to me, and I now envy ye deserts and devastations of Hungary more than any parts of the polite world. It is seriously true, that I have not since yr last letter, the least inclination to see Italy, tho' before I received it, I longed for your summons thither." One letter is principally in reference to her portrait being painted by Sir Godfrey Kneller: "Upon conferring with him yesterday I find he thinks it absolutely necessary to draw yr face first, which he says can never be set right on yr figure if yr Drapery and Posture be finished before," &c.

QUARTO.

818 PSALTERIUM DAVIDIS REGIS, CUM LITANIIS SANCTORUM, PRECIBUS ANIMARUM DEFUNCTORUM, ET ALIORUM, &c. RICHLY ILLUMINATED MANUSCRIPT ON VELLUM (187 ll. $10\frac{1}{4}$ by $7\frac{1}{4}$ in.) written in bold English gothic letters, in brownish-black ink, WITH RED RUBRICS, long lines, 21 to a full page, the Litany in double columns of 21 lines, BY AN ENGLISH SCRIBE AND ILLUMINATOR, THE TEXT DECORATED AND ILLUMINATED THROUGHOUT, with many hundred ornamental initials, the ornaments being in blue, white and red, and richly gilded or silvered, numerous marginal decorations of the undeveloped ivyleaf ornaments; in the text are 7 LARGE FIGURED INITIAL MINIATURES, and 1 ornamental, all with marginal decorations; at the beginning are 13 FULL-PAGE FINELY PAINTED AND RICHLY ILLUMINATED MINIATURES OF SUBJECTS CONNECTED WITH THE LIFE OF CHRIST, within compartmental borders of quatrefoils and portcullises, &c. old calf, rebaked 4to. SÆC. XIII

* * * AN ENGLISH MANUSCRIPT OF EXTREME BEAUTY, INTEREST AND IMPORTANCE. The 13 full-page miniatures are Anglo-Saxon in character, and seem to be earlier than the text; the figures are much elongated, the features in outline, the costumes graceful, the groupings very successful. The colours used are green, white, brown, red and blue, the grounds being of richly burnished gold, the borders being mostly in blue, red and silver. The subjects are the following: (1) The Annunciation, Gabriel holding a Scroll with Ave Maria; (2) The Nativity (the Virgin reclining, the Nurse with the Child, St. Joseph and heads of an Ass and an Ox above); (3) The Offerings of the Magi (5 figures, a brilliant silver star in right hand corner); (4) Presentation in the Temple (4 figures); (5) Christ's Entry into Jerusalem (Ass and 8 figures); (6) The Betrayal (11 figures); (7) Scourging of Christ (3 figures); (8) Christ Bearing the Cross (3 figures); (9) The Resurrection (Christ, 2 Angels and 3 sleeping Soldiers in chain armour); (10) The Ascension (feet of the Ascending Christ and 11 figures); (11) Pentecost (8 figures and 6 backs of Heads); (12) The Crucifixion (Emblems of the 4 Evangelists; a figure above, which probably represented the Deity, is erased in this miniature, and there are also two other erasions in the same); (13) Coronation of the Virgin (the Deity and the Virgin only).

THE HISTORIATED MINIATURES in the TEXT ARE ALSO VERY FINE (measuring about $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. square), and represent (1) David playing the Harp; (2) Anointing of David; (3) David Confessing; (4) A Warrior in Chain Armour falling on his Sword; (7) David as King and a Motley Fool biting the tail off a Quadruped (before the XIVth Psalm); (6) Christ saving Peter from drowning; (7) David playing on five Bells with two hammers; (8) Three Benedictines; (9) A Saint praying; (10) The Trinity. SUCH A RICHLY DECORATED AND IMPORTANT SPECIMEN OF EARLY ENGLISH ILLUMINATED WORK VERY RARELY OCCURS FOR SALE.

- 819 ANTIPHONALE ROMANUM. [Begin.] "Incipit Commune Sanctorum per anni Circulum," &c. MANUSCRIPT ON THICK VELLUM (161 ll. 23 and 17 in.) written in very large gothic letters, with rubrics in red, square-shaped musical notes on 4 line staves in red, by an Italian scribe; the first page finely decorated with renaissance ornaments and Amorini, with a large initial Miniature of SS. Peter and Paul; a similar Miniature of the Journey to Emmaus on reverse of fol. 5; a full length figure of St. Dominic in the habit of his Order with Lilies and Book, figure of Dolphin in margin, on the reverse of fol. 24; a large Miniature of S. Dominic and 2 Warrior Saints on reverse of fol. 45; Another of a Pope enthroned, with 4 Dominicans on recto of fol. 71; Another with a figure of a Dominican Abbot on fol. 94; A fine Miniature of S. Catherine on fol. 113; Procession of Pope and Cardinals to the Altar on the reverse of fol. 142. Besides these there are 7 smaller illuminated figured initials, 12 illuminated ornamental ones, 314 fine painted decorative scroll initials in white, red, blue and green; and many of the capitals are decorated in green and yellow, russia gilt, broken large fol. late SÆC. XV

* * * THE LARGE MINIATURES IN THIS FINE MS. ARE THE WORK OF A MASTER OF THE PERIOD. The 8 largest measure generally 7 by 6 in. or 6 in. square. The decorative and illuminated initials are also well worthy of attention.
