English Verse and Dramatic Poetry

PRE-ELIZABETHAN VERSE

CHAUCER (Geoffrey), 1340?-1400.

*" Ah! Dan Chaucer!—art thou he,
Morning star of minstrelsy?
Eldest of the English choir,
High hill—touched first with fire."*

—Sir Edwin Arnold.

Geoffrey Chaucer was one of the greatest, as well as most ancient, of the English Poets. He is the earliest English Poet who is still read for human pleasure, as well as by specialists in the studies of literature, language, and prosody.

" At various times of his life he was a courtier, soldier, diplomatist, and man of business, and it was mainly by hard work done in these capacities that he earned his living, though in his old age the fact that he was a great poet may have won for him rather more consideration than kings always show to their worn-out servants. Probably no other poet of equal rank has ever led so active and varied a life, and it is because we find Chaucer in his poems so shrewd a man of the world, so astonishingly observant, and so good a judge of character, that we take interest in finding out how he obtained his experience."—A. W. Pollard.

A great poet by virtue of his natural gifts, he was the greatest of narrative poets by virtue of his knowledge of mankind.

The SECOND COLLECTED EDITION OF CHAUCER, and the FIRST in which the PLOWMAN'S TALE APPEARS.

[Colophon] Imprynted at London by Thomas Petit, dwelling in Paules Church yard at the sygne of the Maydens heed. N.D. (1542.) £95

To this edition different publishers' names are sometimes found in the colophon: William Bonham, Richard Kele, Robert Toye, Thomas Petit, and perhaps others, each having his own name alone as printer, in as many copies as were his proper share.

Hunter, in his "New Illustrations" of The Merchant of Venice, in the course of a long account of Shakespeare's indebtedness to Chaucer, remarks: "The old folio of Chaucer was lying open before him when he wrote this dialogue."

Consult, too, Douce's "Illustrations" of Twelfth Night, Measure for Measure, A Midsummer Night's Dream, King Henry V, and Hamlet.

Shakespeare was familiar with the Canterbury Tales, and traces of them are found in Lucrece, A Midsummer Night's Dream, and Titus Andronicus; the story of Troilus and Cressida is taken from Chaucer rather than from the Iliad.

- 2 WORKS OF OUR ANCIENT, LEARNED, & EXCELLENT ENGLISH POET, JEFFREY CHAUCER: as they have lately been compar'd with the best Manuscripts; and several things added, never before in Print. To which is adjoyn'd, The Story of the Siege of Thebes, by John Lidgate, Monk of Bury. Together with The Life of Chaucer, shewing His Countrey, Parentage, Education, etc. Also a Table, wherein the Old and Obscure Words in Chaucer are explained.

John Lydgate was one of the most prolific poets known to English literature, and esteemed the greatest of his age.

"Neere in time unto him was Lydgate a Poet, surely for good proportion of his verse, and meetely currant style, as the time afforded comparable with Chawcer." Webbe.

"I do not pretend to set him on a level with his master, Chaucer, but he certainly comes the nearest to him of any contemporary writer that I am acquainted with: His choice of expression, and the smoothness of his verse, far surpass both Gower and Occleve. He wanted not art in raising the more tender emotions of the mind."—Thomas Gray.

LYNDSAY (Sir David), 1490?-1555.

"Sir David Lyndsay was esteemed one the first poets of the age, and his writings had contributed greatly to the advancement of the Reformation. Notwithstanding the indelicacy which disfigures several of his poetical productions, the personal deportment of Lindsay was grave, his morals were correct, and his writings discover a strong desire to reform the manners of the age, as well as ample proofs of true poetical genius, extensive learning, and wit the most keen and penetrating."

A VERY FINE TALL COPY OF AN EXCESSIVELY RARE BOOK.

Sir David Lindsay, the Scottish Poet (born 1490, died 1555), was a satirist, powerful in invective, fluent in style, and abounding in proverbial philosophy. His poems were of local, and to a large extent of temporary interest. Yet these very limitations gave them an immediate fame and more extensive currency than the works of any other early Scottish poet, and render them invaluable to students of the time of James V. It passed into a proverb for what was not worth knowing, "You will not find that in David Lyndsay," and his writings were at one time in the library of every castle and the shelves of many cottages of Scotland.

This book, "Ane Satyre of the Three Estates," is his principal work. It is divided into interludes, the earliest form of the drama, and was intended for dramatic representation. At least three performances of it are recorded, at Cupar, Linlithgow, and Greenside, then a suburb of Old, now part of New Edinburgh, on the low ground below the west slope of the Calton Hill, where the spectators probably sat. Mr. Chalmers thought the first representation was at Cupar in 1535, but reference is made in it to the battle of Pinky Cleuch, which was fought on 10 Sept., 1547, and Whit-Tuesday is mentioned as falling on 7 June, from which it follows that the Easter when it was played was on 17 April. The true date of the Cupar representation thus seems to belong to 1552. The first representation was probably at Linlithgow on the feast of the Epiphany, 6th Jan., 1540. Sir William Eure, on 26 Jan. of that year, sent to Cromwell notes of the interlude or play which he had received from a spectator, "a Scotsman of our sort," i.e., of the English party. The third known representation, that at Greenside, took place in 1554, before the Queen Regent, when Henry Charteris, the bookseller, who was present, states that it lasted from "nine houris afore noon till six houris at evin." In this piece Lyndsay denounced abuses in church and state with great frankness. Sir William Eure in his letter states that after the representation at Linlithgow "the King did call upon the Bishop of Glasgow, the Chancellor Dunbar, and the other bishops, exhorting them to reform their fashions and manner of living, saying that unless they did so he would send six of the proudest of them to his uncle of England, and as those were ordered, so he would order all the rest that would not amend. The Chancellor answered that one word of his Grace's mouth would suffice them to be at his commandment, and the King hastily and angrily answered that he would gladly bestow any words of his mouth that could amend them. James V, before his French marriage, and before Archbishop Beaton had acquired commanding influence over him, was undoubtedly favourable to reform in the church, and he probably encouraged Lyndsay in his attack on the bishops. But it is startling to find that Lyndsay was allowed to exhibit his piece so late as 1540, only two years before the death of the king, and still more to repeat it during the regency of Mary of Guise. Were not Eure's letters conclusive evidence of the date of the representation at Linlithgow, we should be tempted with Chalmers to ascribe the "Satire" to an earlier date, and to conjecture that it may have been modified in subsequent representations. The complete work, according to the Bannatyne MS., the only extant manuscript version, consisted of eight interludes. The first, "The Auld Man and his Wyfe," from its local references, must have been specially written for the representation at Cupar as an advertisement to the play. The second, "The Temptation of King Humanity by Dame Sensuality," probably opened the representations at Linlithgow and Greensyde. Two interludes, which do not concern the main plot, and may have been sometimes omitted, followed: (3) "The Puir Man and the Pardoner," in which the crying evil of the sale of indulgences which had penetrated to Scotland is exposed; (4) "The Sermon of Folly," in which there are again allusions to Fife as

I hard never, in all my lyfe,
Ane Bishop cam to preich in Fyfe, proving that it must have been written for a Fife audience. The plot is then resumed in (5) "The Three Vices, i.e., Flattery" ("now come out of France"), "Deceit, and Falsehood," which mislead the King; (6) "Truth and Chastity," in which those virtues are overcome by the Vices; (7) "The Parliament of Correction," from which the "Satire" took its name of "The Three Estates," and where the poet offers his proposals for reform; and finally (8) where "The Three Vices" are given over to punishment. The first editor was Robert Charteris in 1594; and all recent editors, Chalmers, Pinkerton, Sibbald, and Laing, have allowed themselves great latitude in the arrangement of the poem, as probably Lyndsay himself did in its representations. The number of separate characters represented and the variety of topics treated make the general effect a medley, in which there is much that is commonplace, little that we should now deem poetry, but many pieces of powerful invective, exhorting the king to virtuous government and the people to reformation of the evils in the administration of church and state. A sub-plot is carried through the poem by Common Theft, a borderer, who comes to Fife and steals the Earl of Rothes' hackney and Lord Lyndsay's "Brown jonet," for which he is executed.—(D.N.B.)

This is the First London Edition of the Monarchie of Sir David Lyndsey. It includes the Dialogue of the Courtier, The Dreame, Death of Queen Magdalene, Testament and Complaynt of our Soverane, Lordis Papyngo, Tragedy of the Cardinal David Beton; An Exhortation from the King; etc.

Sir David Lyndsey was the last inheritor in Scotland of the Chaucerian Tradition. His "Dialogue betweene Experience and a Courtier" seems to have been suggested by Lyndsey's perusal of the translated Scriptures, of which it is largely an epitome. Opening with a discussion of the moral reasons for human sufferings and misery, it includes an argument for the circulation of the Bible in the vernacular.

"The Dreame" is introduced by an episode to King James, and a prologue, which represents the poet overcome by Morpheus on a wintry and stormy night, when "Dame Remembrance" conducts him, like Dante, through earth to the lowest hell, from hell to purgatory, thence to earth, and finally to heaven. His request that he might remain in heaven is refused, and the vision takes a rapid survey of the kingdoms of the earth, closing with a description of Scotland.

In "The Testament and Complaynt of our Soverane Lordis papyngo," he denounces with great boldness the abuses of the court, prelates, and nobles."

ELIZABETHAN & JACOBAN POETRY

1558-1625

The reigns of Queen Elizabeth and James 1st are in literature linked inseparably together. To take the date of Queen Elizabeth's death, 1603, as a dividing line would be particularly inconvenient, dividing as it does the epoch of Shakespeare and Ben Jonson in a meaningless way.

The literature of this magnificent period, in its pride of mien and audacity of purpose, seems to support the prerogative of the English Crown. It is the literature of a nation that has just awakened to a sense of its strength, its isolation, its almost insupportable inward pertinacity. With the sudden development of political independence, there came an apprehension of the necessity of intellectual and spiritual cultivation. Even in the grossest and most turbid of the Elizabethans, we find abundance of that energy and intensity which are the signs of life and youth, and their faults are those out of which a great nation grows into serenity, and strength.

The whole work, together with dedicatory epistles and an introduction, is in verse.

Southey, who appears to have been a careful student of Tusser, speaks of him as a "good, honest, homely, useful old rhymers." His verses are not without practical agricultural value, and he has even been styled "the British Varro." "There is nowhere to be found," says Sir Walter Scott, "excepting perhaps in Swift's 'Directions to Servants,' evidence of such rigid and minute attention to every department of domestic economy. Although neither beauty of description nor elegance of diction was Tusser's object, he has frequently attained, what better indeed suited his purpose, a sort of homely pointed and quaint expression, like that of the old English proverb, which the rhyme and the alliteration tend to fix on the memory of the reader." Many English proverbs can be traced back to Tusser.

The work concludes with "The Author's Life," in verse, and various other practical pieces of a more general nature. This metrical biography does not appear in the first edition.

With the rare last blank and errata between sig. A and B.

This volume is especially noteworthy as being the original issue of one of the earliest English satires.

The second piece has a separate title and bears the imprint: "Imprinted at London by Henrie Binneman, for Richard Smith, 1576."

Prefixed are several congratulatory verses, included a poem by Sir Walter Raleigh, his earliest published verse:—

"To write my censure of this booke,
This 'Glasse of Steele' unpartially doth shewe,
Abuses all, to such as in it looke,
From prince to poore; from high estate to lowe,
As for the verse, who list like trade to tyre,
I feare me much, shall hardly reache so high." Etc.

Gascoigne possesses full claims to originality, not only as being one of our earliest satirists, but also as being one of the earliest writers of blank verse in all language.

The "Steele Glas" is a clever satire written in blank verse, and presents us with a sensible and sarcastic picture of the manners, habits, and vices of the age.

It is much praised by Chalmers, who says: "There is a vein of sly sarcasm in this piece, which appears to me to be original: and his intimate knowledge of mankind, acquired indeed at the expense probably of health, and certainly of comfort and independence, enabled him to give a more curious picture of the dress, manners, amusements, and follies of the time, than we meet with in almost any other author."

“ Edmund Spenser, of London, far the first of the English Poets of our age, as his poems prove, written under the smile of the Muses, and with a genius destined to live. He died prematurely in the year of salvation 1599, and is buried near Geoffrey Chaucer, who was the first most happily to set forth poetry in English writing: and on him were written these epitaphs:—

*“ Here nigh to Chaucer, Spenser lies; to whom
In genius next he was, as now in tomb.
Here nigh to Chaucer, Spenser, stands thy hearse,
Still nearer standst thou to him in thy verse.
Whilst thou didst live, lived English poetry;
Now thou art dead, it fears that it shall die.”*

—William Camden.

Spenser stands alone, the one supremely great undramatic poet of a play-writing time.

PRESENTATION COPY FROM HENRY WILLOUGHBY, THE CELEBRATED AUTHOR AND HERO OF THE POEM CALLED “Willobies Avisa,” and one of the earliest friends of Shakespeare (and the first to mention him by name in print), with Autograph inscription by Willoughby on title:—

Guil: Helme ex dono Hen: Willoughby.

This, the Second Edition of the “Arcadia,” is much rarer than the Editio Princeps. We can trace only five other copies. IT IS THE FIRST EDITION OF THE COMPLETE TEXT. The First Edition of 1590 ended abruptly in the middle of a sentence in the Third Book. Sidney's sister, the Countess of Pembroke, subsequently discovered the draft of the continuation, forming the conclusion of the Third Book, with the succeeding Fourth and Fifth Books, and she accordingly published this, the Second Edition, "Augmented and Ended," and it is this edition upon which all later editions are based.

The "Countesse of Pembrokes Arcadia" is Sir Philip Sidney's most famous prose romance. It was written in 1580, or thereabouts, for the especial delectation of his sister, Mary Herbert, Countess of Pembroke, and her coterie at "delicious Penshurst." It abounds with marvellous adventures, rainbow descriptions, pastoral scenes filled with nobles and countrymen, and stately kings and queens, all products of a brain inflamed with youthful theories and love-fancies.

"Sidney's sister, Pembroke's mother," collaborated with him and suggested the composition of the "Arcadia." She is the "Urania" of Spenser's "Colin Cloute."

In 1578 Sidney met Spenser at Leicester's house, a meeting which resulted in a deep and tender friendship, which has been immortalized in Spenser's "Astrophel, a Pastoral Elegy," published as an appendix to his "Colin Cloute Come Home Againe."

Shakespeare was greatly indebted to Sidney's "Arcadia." He based on Sidney's story of the "Paphlagonian unkind king" ("Arcadia," Book II), the episode of Gloucester and his sons in "King Lear," while many phrases in his plays, especially in the "Tempest" and "Midsummer Night's Dream," closely resemble expressions in the "Arcadia," and justify the conjecture that he studied the romance as carefully as he studied Sidney's sonnets or his masque of the "Lady of May." Indeed, so often did he consult this work, and probably this edition, that Eliza M. West printed privately in 1865 "Shaksperian Parallelisms collected from Sir Philip Sydney's Arcadia."

The present copy, as before mentioned, was presented by Henry Willoughby to William Helme.

Henry Willoughby was the reputed Author and the Hero of the poem "Willobies Avisa," which is of remarkable interest to Shakespearean Scholars on account of its bearing on Shakespearean Biography, for in it direct mention is made of Shakespeare's poem of "Lucrece," and it is the earliest open reference to Shakespeare's name by a contemporary author. Moreover, the notice of Shakespeare lends substance to the theory that the alleged friend of Willoughby, who is known in the poem under the initials "W.S." is the dramatist himself.

So important is "Willobies Avisa" in Shakespearean interest, that a portion was reprinted in the "Shakespeare Allusion Books," by the New Shakespeare Society.

Its range over the social and political features of the earlier years of the reign of Queen Elizabeth is comprehensive, and many of the verses throw an interesting light on some of the leading events of the period. The epitaphs and mournful ditties written for the illustrious dead, with the admonitions and confessions of others less enviable in their ends, form a third of the entire collection. The rest of the ballads deal chiefly with moral and religious subjects, and with historical episodes, among which the Catholic Rising in the North figures conspicuously; others with monstrous births and fishes; while a few are of the narrative order.

Extremely rare. A few headlines a little cropped.

Of the greatest interest to Shakespearian students, for its remarkable similarity to the plot of Hamlet; and the fact that according to Henslowe's Diary it was written in 1602 by Henry Chettle, two years before the first edition of Shakespeare's Hamlet.

It is also cited by Dyce in his Notes on "The Tempest."

A portion of the Tragedy is reprinted in Capell's "School of Shakespeare."

Chettle was the friend of Shakespeare, Green, and other dramatists of the time, and edited Green's "Groats worth of Wit," in which occurs the notorious attack on Shakespeare describing him as having a "Tyger's heart wrapt in a players hide." A few months later Chettle published an apology for this statement in his "Kind Hartes Dreame," where he writes highly of Shakespeare as an actor, praises his uprightness of character, and the civility of his demeanour.

The character "Lucibelle" in this piece bears a strong resemblance to Ophelia.

One of the rarest of Chapman's Plays. George Chapman was the rival of Shakespeare for Southampton's favour, and it is thought that he was the rival poet referred to by Shakespeare in the Sonnets.

There is a very interesting feature in this play to the habit of making old plays into new ones, which is probably an attack on Shakespeare:—

"For though it be the refuge of miserable Poets, by a change of a hat or a cloake, to alter the whole state of Comedie, so as the father must not know his own childe forsooth, nor the wife her husband."

which he appears as a picturesque but pathetic Bohemian, with 'wit lent from Heaven, but vices sent from Hell.' Before he had finished with Cambridge his moral nature was tainted, and, after that, his way lay perpetually over stormy seas. A glimpse of happier things seemed promised in 1586, but, once again, his evil genius led him astray, until, finally, he was rescued by a poor shoemaker in 1592, under whose rough shelter he made a pathetic end. His life had been one of struggle and drift, a wayward course of frustrated good intentions; and these things left their impress upon what he wrote, and upon his manner of writing. In the first place, he wrote merely to sell, and, as a consequence, he resembles a sensitive barometer, indicating the literary vogue from day to day. When Lyly was popular, Greene adopted his methods; when romance was called for, he also complied: his attempt at the pastoral followed Sidney's success; while his realistic pamphlets responded to a yet later demand. And yet, though in life he followed the worse, he approved the better; his work is free from licentiousness, he never 'gave the looser cause to laugh.'

Some portions in verse.

This was the last work of Robert Greene to be printed in his lifetime, and it gives a lively picture of the manners and habits of the time, contrasting the pride and uncharitableness of the day with the simplicity and hospitality of the past, denouncing Upstart Gentlemen who maintained themselves in luxury.

A dispute is carried on between the personification of a Pair of Velvet Breeches and a Pair of Cloth Breeches.

The Author Greene is the Judge, and a Jury is impaneled to try the comparative merits of the plaintiff and defendant. The Jury are chosen from the passers-by, and Velvet Breeches and Cloth Breeches respectively challenge the proposed jurymen, and reject or select them; and in doing so give a character sketch of each one.

The last to come along are a Poet, a Player, and a Musician. Of these three the Poet is chosen for the Jury, the Player and the Musician are rejected, as according to Cloth Breeches they are so humble that they are base minded. "I mean not in their looks or apparel, for so they be peacocks and painted asses" but in their course of life, for they care not how they get crowns, "I mean how basely so they have them"; and yet of the two I hold the Player the better

Christian, although in his own imagination TOO FULL OF SELF LIKING AND SELF LOVE, and is unfit to be of the Jury, though I hide and conceal his follies and fopperies, in that I have been merry in his sports, only this I must say that such a plain country fellow as myself they bring in as clowns and fools to laugh at their plays, whereas they get by us and by our alms the proudest of them all live. Well, to be brief, let him trot to the Stage for he shall be none of the Jury."

This attack on the Player is evidently meant by Greene to refer directly to Shakespeare, for in his "Groatsworth of Wit" he refers to him again as "an upstart Crow, beautified with our feathers . . . the onely Shake-scene in a countrie," and for which attack Henry Chettle, the publisher, apologies in his "King Hartes Dreame."

Greene in the "Upstart Courtier" makes the same reference to King Stephen as Shakespeare does in Othello. Greene writes:

"I tell thee saucie skipiacke, it was a good and a blessed time here in England, when K. Stephen wore a pair of cloth-breeches, of a Noble a pair, and thought them passing costly."

Shakespeare in "Othello" writes:—

"King Stephen was a worthy peer,
His breeches cost him but a crown;
He held them sixpence all too dear,
With that he call'd the tailor-lown."

The very curious wood engraving on the title of the book is reproduced in the "New Shakespeare Society Transaction," 1879; and Capell, in his "School of Shakespeare," reprints a portion of the tract. It is further cited by Douce in his "Illustrations" of the Merry Wives of Windsor, Taming of the Shrew, and the Ancient English Morris Dance, and by Dyce in his notes on the Merry Wives of Windsor, Comedy of Errors, and Midsummer Night's Dream.

"Nor even in his plays is Shakspeare merely a dramatist. Apart altogether from his dramatic power, he is the greatest poet that ever lived. His sympathy is the most universal, his imagination the most plastic, his diction the most expressive, ever given to any writer. His poetry has in itself the power and varied excellencies of all other poetry. In importance and interest this edition ranks second to the editio princeps. It is the first manual text, the first to present a biography of the poet, the first to bear an editor's name, the first to possess illustrations, and the first of the endless army of editions in octavo. The text is copied from the fourth folio of 1685.

Rowe commissioned Thomas Betterton, the actor, to glean for him in and around Stratford particulars of Shakespeare's life. At that period it was still possible to get a few authentic details.

The attributed plays are also found in this version, and the plates are of great value because of their contemporary costume. In this issue will also be found the earliest effort to trace parallels between Shakespeare and other classics.

THE TOWER OF LONDON TO WESTMINSTER. EACH ACTOR RECEIVED FOUR AND A HALF YARDS OF SCARLET CLOTH TO WEAR AS A CLOAK ON THE OCCASION, AND IN THE DOCUMENT AUTHORIZING THE GRANT (now in the Public Record Office) SHAKESPEARE'S NAME STANDS FIRST ON THE LIST.

“The proclamation of James VI as King of England having been announced on the death of Queen Elizabeth on the 24th March, 1603, he immediately proceeded to take possession of his new inheritance. After taking leave of his own countrymen in the Scottish metropolis, he set forward amidst the rejoicing and festivities of his new subjects to the seat of the British capital, distributing by the way a profusion of titles and distinctions, and conferring the honour of knighthood upon more than two hundred persons. The entertainments and hospitalities he received on his progress from his English subjects were so numerous and gratifying that several weeks elapsed before he reached London. On arrival there he was welcomed with great joy and acclamations, and among other pageants prepared for his diversion was the ‘Magnificent Entertainment,’ the account of which by Dekker we offer for sale. This, owing to the dreadful plague which then prevailed in London, and to James’s hunting and feasting in the country, had been much delayed, so that nearly twelve months had elapsed from the period of his accession to his public entry from the Tower, and was much curtailed in the representation as well as in its passage through the city. It commences with ‘A Device (projecting downe, but till now publisht) that should haue serued at his Majesties first accesse to the Citie,’ in which the genius of the place first salutes the King in some verses, and the Seven Arches of Triumph erected on the occasion are noticed. The approach of the royal monarch, for whose entertainment these preparations were made, is thus described: ‘Behold, a farre off they spie him, richly mounted on a white Iennet, vnder a rich Canopy, sustained by eight Barons of the Cique-ports; the Towre serving that morning but for his with-drawing Chamber, wherein hee made him ready: and from thence stept presently into his Citie of London, which for the time might worthily borrow the name of his Court Royall: His passage along that Court, offering it selfe (for more State) through seuen Gates, of which the first was erected at Fanchurch.’

“A description of this then ensues, and is succeeded by accounts of ‘The Italian Pagent,’ and ‘The Pagent of the Dutch-men by the Royall-Exchange,’ with all the inscriptions and speeches made, ‘The Device at Soper-lane end,’ with representations of the five Senses, the three Graces, and other subjects, a speech in verse by ‘a Boy, one of the Choristers belonging to Paules,’ and the song sung ‘by two Boyes (Choristers of Paules) deliuered in sweete and rauishing voyces.’”

MIDDLETON (Thomas), 1570?-1627.

"Humour, wit, and character, though in a degree inferior to that which distinguishes the preceding poets, are to be found in the comedy of Middleton; and occasionally a pleasing interchange of elegant imagery and tender sentiment. His tragedy is not devoid of pathos, though possessing little dignity or elevation; but there is, in many of his plays, a strength and compass of imagination which entitle him to a very respectable rank among the cultivators of the Romantic drama."—Nathan Drake.

 And with celestial sparks (not stol'n) revive
 Those who could erst keep winged fame alive."*

—Sir John Beaumont.

"I do not think that his Poetical merits are yet properly appreciated. I cannot consent that the palm of humour alone shall be given to him; while in wit, feeling, pathos, and Poetical diction, he is to be sunk fathoms below Fletcher and Massinger. In the last particular, I think that he excels them both, and, indeed, all his contemporaries, excepting Shakespeare."—Henry Neele.

Edited by Bishop Duppa. The printer, in a short address to the reader, says:—"Tis now about six moneths since the most learned and judicious Poet, B. Ionson, became a subject for these Elegies," and attributes the delay which had occurred in the appearance of the volume to the consideration requisite in so great an argument. The principal writers are Lord Falkland, Sir John Beaumont the younger, Sir Thomas Hawkins, Henry King, W. Abington, Edmund Waller, James Howell, J. Cl. (Cleveland), W. Cartwright, Owen Feltham, Shackerley Marmion, and John Ford.

Shakespeare is referred to in the poem "To the Memory of immortal Ben," by Owen Feltham:—

*"And should the State compose her selfe a Crowne
 Of all those wits, which hitherto sh'as knowne;
 Though there be many that about her brow
 Like sparkling stones, might a quick lustre throw;
 Yet, Shakespeare, Beaumont, Johnson, these three shall Make up the Jem in the point Verticall."*

In this volume is to be found the supposed brief conversation with Shakespeare, the only fragment known, if genuine, of his personal opinion on any subject, if one excepts his dedications, his will, and his tombstone. Upon this foundation, a few reputed Shakespearean Authorities, headed by John Payne Collier, have built up an extraordinary tissue of slander and falsehood. Their allegations against Shakespeare are remarkable for presumption rather than for judgment, justice or knowledge, and recoil upon such writers with boomerang effect.

Heywood asserts of the actors' profession: 'It hath beene esteemed by the best and greatest.' There is little doubt but that he had his acquaintance Shakespeare in his mind when he wrote: 'Loath an I (I protest) being the youngest and weakest of the Nest wherin I was matcht, to soare this pitch before others of the same brood more fledge, and of better wing then myselfe; but though they whome more especially this taske concerns, both for their ability in writing and sufficiency in Judgement (as their workes generally witnessse to the world) are content to over-slip so necessary a subiect, and have left it as to mee the most unworthy.'

Prefixed to this work are a number of commendatory verses by John Webster, Richard Perkins, Christopher Beeston, John Taylor, etc. Also a poem by Heywood himself: "The Author to his Booke." Throughout the body of the work there are long poetical quotations.

In a letter "To my approved good Friend Mr. Nicholas Okes; Jaggard, a printer is mentioned, presumably Wm. Jaggard the publisher of the 1st Folio in 1623.

On pages 247-248 occurs a long and very important reference to Shakespeare's Play of Richard III., namely:—

The Prologue and Epilogue written for "A young witty Lad playing the part of Richard III at the Red Bull."

"A Young witty Lad playing the part of Richard the third: at the Red Bull: the Author because hee was interested in the Play to incourage him, wrot him this Prologue and Epilogue.

"The Boy the Speaker.

"If any wonder by what magick charme,
Richard the third is shrunke up like his arme:
And where in fulnesse you expected him,
You see me only crawling, like a limme
Or piece of that knowne fabrick, and no more . . .
Let all such know: . . .
Hee's tearmed a man that shoves a dwarfish thing,
. . . have you never read
Large folio Sheets which Printers over-looke,
And cast in small, to make a pocket booke?
So Richard is transform'd. . . .

"The Epilogue.

"Great I confesse your patience hath now beene
To see a little Richard: who can win,
Or praise, or credit? eye, or thinke to excell,
By doing after what was done so well?"

Etc., etc.

There is also an Epigram on Lucrece.

MASSINGER (Philip), 1583-1640.

One of the most accomplished and eloquent dramatists of his time.

Philip Massinger was the son of a retainer of the Earl of Pembroke. In 1602 he entered St. Alban's Hall, Oxford, but left without a degree in 1606. Almost at once he commenced writing for the stage, and fifteen plays written by him have been preserved. Much of his best work, however, is inextricably mixed up with that of Fletcher and others. He was certainly concerned in the authorship of plays that pass under the name of "Beaumont and Fletcher." Massinger's verse was fluent and flexible, lacking only the music and magic of Shakespeare. His comedy resembles Ben Jonson's in its eccentric strength, in its exhibitions of wayward human nature, and in its use of rather typical and conventional characters. Charles Lamb said that his English style is purer and freer from violent metaphors and harsh constructions than that of any contemporary dramatist. The sequel of Massinger's history is but an enumeration of his plays. He was found dead in his house on the Bankside one March morning in 1640.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Morocco gilt, g. e., by Bedford.

London, Printed by Thomas Harper, for John Waterson,
1632. £22 10S

Prefixed is a poem by Sir Aston Cokaine, in which Shakespeare is introduced. This contains Massinger's first Prologue to any play of his writing, forced upon him by "imperious custom."

Sir Aston Cokaine's commendatory verse contains the following Shakespeare reference:—

"Nor could they doe it, if they ere had seene
The matchlesse features of the faerie Queene;
Read Johnson, Shakespeare, Beaumont, Fletcher, or Thy neat-limnd peeces, skillfull Massinger."

The play itself contains many Shakespeare parallels. Giffard says of the speech in Act V., sc. II., commencing:

"Of my poor subjects. The proud attributes
By oil-tongued flattery imposed upon us," and ending—

"Can I make Eudocia chaste, O vile Paulinus honest."

"In this fine speech Massinger has ventured to measure weapons with Shakespeare (Henry V., iv., i., as in Macbeth and Lear) and if I may trust my judgement, not ungracefully. The feelings, indeed, are more interested than the latter, but that arises from the situation of his chief character."

- 85 THE GREAT DUKE OF FLORENCE. A Comicall Historie. As it hath beene often presented with good allowance by Her Ma^{ties} Servants at the Phœnix in Drurie Lane.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Full morocco gilt, by Riviere.

London, Printed for John Marriot, 1636. £36

Shakespeare allusion. See "Fresh Allusions to Shakspeare," page 91.

This play met with very good success, and is recommended in verse by George Donne and John Ford. Sannasaro giving the duke a false account of the beauty of Lidia, seems to be a near resemblance to the story of Edgar and Elfrida; the same incident was a traditional fact in connection with Henry VIII. and Anne of Cleves.

This was produced at Shakespeare's Play House "The Globe."

The Play is preceded by preliminary verse by Thomas Jay, and likens Massinger to Beaumont and Ben Jonson. It is further cited by Monck Mason in his "Notes on Othello."

Massinger's best tragic effort.

See Jaggard's Bibliography, where it is stated: This play contains passages which parallel some in Hamlet.

There is a most wonderful description given of the influence of the stage:—

“ But 'tis urged

That we corrupt youth, and traduce superiours:

When doe we bring a vice upon the Stage,

That does goe off unpunish'd? doe we teach

By the successe of wicket undertakings,

Others to tread, in their forbidden steps?

We show no arts of Lidian Pandarisme,

Corinthian poysons, Persian flatteries,

But mulcted so in the conclusion that

Even those spectators that were so inclin'd,

Go home chang'd men. And for traducing such

That are above us, publishing to the world

Their secret crimes we are as innocent

As such as are borne dumbe. When we present

An heyre, that does nonspire against the life

Of his deare parent, numbring every houre

He lives as tedious to him, if there be

Among the auditors one whose conscience tells him,

He is of the same mould we cannot helpe it.

Or bringing on the stage a loose adultresse,

That does maintaine the ryatious expence

Of him that feedes her greedie lust, yet suffers

The lawfull pledges of a former bed

To starve the while for hunger, if a Matron

Howevr great in fortune, birth, or titles,

Guilty of such a foule unnaturalle sinne,

Crie out tis writ for me, we cannot helpe it:

Or when a Courtous man's expressed, whose wealth

Arithmatique cannot number, and whose Lordships

A Falcon in one day cannot flie over,

Yet he so sordid in his mind, so griping

As not to afford himselfe the necessaries

To Maintaine life, if a Patrician,

(Though honoured with a Consulship) finde himselfe

Touch'd to the quicke in this, we cannot helpe it.

Or when we show a judge that is corrupt,

And will give up his sentence as he favours,

The person, not the cause, saving the guiltie,

If of his faction, and as oft condemning

The innocent out of particular spleene,

If any in this reverend assemble,

Nay e'ne your selfe my Lord, that are the image

Of absent Caesar feele something in your bosome

That puts you in remembrance of things past,

Or things intended tis not in us to helpe it.

I have said, my Lord, and now as you find cause

Or Censure us, or free us with applause.”

The translator, Sir John Harington, was godson of Queen Elizabeth. He studied law at Lincoln's Inn, but not to much purpose, for his reputation as a wit and a man of the world was soon established, and he looked to court favour rather than the exercise of a profession. About 1584 he married Mary, daughter of Sir George Rogers of Cannington in Somerset, but marriage does not seem to have sobered his exuberant spirits. His epigrams began to pass current and he enlivened the court by his sallies, which were not always adapted to a fastidious taste. Among other things, he translated for the amusement of the ladies of the court the story of Giocondo, from the twenty-eighth book of Ariosto's "Orlando Furioso," and his translation was handed about in manuscript till it fell into the hands of the queen. She reprimanded Harington for corrupting the morals of her ladies by translating the least seemly part of Ariosto's work, and ordered him as a punishment to leave the court for his country house till he had made a translation of the whole. To this we owe the translation of the "Orlando Furioso," which was first published in folio in 1591, and reissued in 1607 and 1634. It is written in the same stanza as the original, and is easy and flowing. It is rather a paraphrase than a translation. As a preface to it Harington wrote "An Apologie of Poetrie," an essay in criticism which resembles Sir Philip Sidney's treatise of the same name. The most remarkable part of it is that concerned with his use of metre, especially his defence of two-syllabled and three-syllabled rhymes. (D.N.B.).

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. XVIII.) £85

A Magnificent Copy of this rare poetical volume, which Malone states may have suggested the subject of Wolsey's fall to Shakespeare when he wrote King Henry VIII.

This Poem, which is written upon the model of Churchyard's legend on the history of Wolsey, in 'The Mirrour for Magistrates,' consists of three parts or cantos. 'Wolseius aspirans,' 'Wolseius triumphans,' and 'Wolseius moriens'; these contain respectively 101, 89, and 51 seven-line stanzas of decasyllabic verse (rhyming ababbcc). The volume is dedicated to John Howson, Queen Elizabeth's chaplain, and there are introductory verses by Charles Fitzgeffrey and Thomas and Edward Michelborne, and a poem in fifteen eight-line stanzas addressed to the author by his fellow-collegian, John Sprint. The poem is carefully based upon the narratives of Cavendish and Holinshed, and, sententious though it is, contains some happily expressed characterisations, notably that of Richard Foxe, Bishop of Winchester,

'A man made old to teach the worth of age.'

"It was warmly praised by Dr. Alberic Gentilis in his 'Laudes Academiae Perusinae et Oxoniensis,' and Aubrey commends its historic veracity." (D.N.B.).

D O N N E (John), 1573-1631.

“Donne's poems cover an extraordinary range in subject, and are throughout marked with a strange originality almost equally fascinating and repellant. It is possible that his familiarity with Italian and Spanish literatures, both at that time deeply coloured by fantastic and far-fetched thought, may have in some degree influenced him in that direction. His poems were written mainly during youth. There is a strange passionate earnestness about them, a quality which underlies the fanciful ‘conceits’ of all his work.”—F. T. Palgrave.

With the two rare leaves, “The Printer to the Understanders,” also original blanks before and after the “Poems,” and before the “Juvenilia.” On page 149 (misprint for 165) of the “Poems” there is “An Epitaph upon Shakespeare” :—

“Renowned Chaucer lie a thought more nigh
To rare Beaumont; and learned Beaumont lie
A little nearer Spencer, to make roome
For Shakespeare in your threefold fourefold tombe.” Etc.

“Donne's Juvenilia are clever and entertaining trifles, which were probably written before 1600 during the more wanton period of their author's life. Owing to their scurrilous nature they could not be published during Donne's lifetime, but in 1632, shortly after his death, part of them were licensed by Sir Henry Herbert. The licenses were granted on October 25, 1632, but on November 14 an order of inquiry was delivered at the King's command by the Bishop of London calling upon Sir Henry Herbert to explain before the Board of the Star Chamber his reasons “why hee warranted the books of D. Duns paradoxes to bee printed.” The inquiry, however, was ineffectual in preventing the publication of the book, the title-page of which is dated 1633. It is not known through what channels the publisher, Henry Seyle, obtained possession of the text, but it is probable that the publication was quite unauthorised, and took place even without the knowledge of John Donne, Jun., who in his edition of 1652 makes no reference to any previous issues. Although the King did not succeed in stopping the publication of the Juvenilia, the licenses were withdrawn, so that when the demand for the book encouraged the publication of a second edition during the same year, the publisher took upon himself to issue it unlicensed.”—(Keynes).

Wanting the engraved title and the Explication of the Emblems. Also the errata leaf. Otherwise a fine sound copy.

Despairing of ever getting his travels published, Coryate applied to every person of eminence whom he knew, and to many whom he could scarcely have known at all, to write commendatory verses upon himself, his book, and his travels, and by his unwearied pertinacity and unblushing importunity, contrived to get together the most extraordinary collection of testimonials which have ever been gathered in a single sheaf. More than sixty of the most brilliant and illustrious literary men of the time were among the contributors to his strange farrago, the wits vying with one another in their attempts to produce mock heroic verses, turning Coryate to solemn ridicule. Among the number are found the name of Ben. Jonson, Sir J. Harrington, Dudley Digges, R. Cotton, John Donne, H. Holland, Inigo Jones, John Gifford, Richard Corbet, G. Chapman, Michel Drayton, etc. Ben. Jonson undertook to edit these amusing panegyrics, which actually fill 108 pp. of the first edition of Coryate's Crudities.

An absolutely complete copy is rarely met with, only three or four copies being known to exist.

The most complete Edition of Sandys' Ovid. With the elaborate title-page by Francisco Clein engraved by Salomon Savery, and each of the 15 books preceded by a full-page engraving.

The first translation of Ovid's "Metamorphoses" was completed by Sandys while in America. He was one of the undertakers named in the third Virginia Charter of 1611. Upon Sandys' return to England he became the London Agent for Virginia.

Sandys' rendering of Ovid's "Metamorphoses" has chiefly preserved his name in literary circles. A writer in "Wits Recreations" congratulated Ovid on "the sumptuous bravery of that rich attire," in which Sandys had clad the Latin poet's work. He followed his text closely, and managed to compress his rendering into the same number of lines as the original—a feat involving some injury to the poetic quality and intelligibility of the English. But Sandys possessed exceptional metrical dexterity, and the refinement with which he handled the couplet entitles him to a place beside Denham and Waller. In a larger measure than either of them, he probably helped to develop the capacity of heroic rhyme. He was almost the first writer to vary the caesura efficiently, and by adroitly balancing one couplet against another, he anticipated some of the effects which Dryden and Pope brought to perfection. Both Dryden and Pope read Sandys' Ovid in boyhood. Dryden in later life, on the ground that Sandys' literal method of translation obscured his meaning, designed a new translation of the "Metamorphoses," which Sir Samuel Garth completed and published in 1717. Pope, who liked Sandys' Ovid "extremely," in very early life tried his hand on the same theme, but subsequently ridiculed Garth's efforts to supercede the other translator in a ballad called "Sandys' Ghost," or the proper New Ballad on the New Ovid's "Metamorphoses." —D.N.B.

The longest poem in the volume is entitled:—ITER BOREALE (contained on pages 39-66), and is a record of the itinerary of four Oxford Dons on a Vacation Trip.

This contains a most interesting Shakespearian allusion:—

The Oxford dons reach Bosworth and "mine host" shows them Bosworth Field, where:—

"Chaucer nere made the Romant of the Rose:
Heare him, See yee yon wood? there Richard lay
With his whole Army: looke the other way,
And loe where Richmond in a bed of grasse
Encampt himselfe ore night, and all his Force:
Upon this hill they mett. Why he could tell
The inch where Richmond stood, where Richard fell:
Besides what of his knowledge he can say,
He had Authenticke notice, from the Play;
Which I might guesse, by mustring up the Ghosts
And policyes not incident to Hosts:
but chiefly by that one perspicuous thing,
Where he mistooke a Player for a King.
For when he would have sayd King Richard dyed,
And call'd, a horse, a horse; he, Burbidge cry'de,
How ere his talke, his company pleas'd well." Etc.

This is therefore an almost contemporary reference to Shakespeare's Play of Richard III, and to Shakespeare's friend and fellow actor Burbidge.

Cited by Dyce in his edition of "The Tempest." Drake ("Shakespeare and his Times," pages 622, 623), says that, although not published until 1633, these poems were certainly written before 1610.

"The Purple Island," in twelve cantos of seven-line stanzas, is an elaborate allegorical description of the human body, and of the vices and virtues to which man is subject. There are many anatomical notes in prose. The body is represented as an island, of which the bones stand for the foundation, the veins for brooks, and so forth in minute detail. Fletcher imitates the "Faery Queene." Quarles calls him "the Spencer of this age," and Fletcher eulogises his master in canto vi., stanzas 51-2.

Good unwashed copy with the second title page "Piscatorie Eclogs," etc., and the rare last leaf contains the verses of Francis Quarles addressed to the author.

Describing the proceedings of Apollo's Court at the Trial of the false poets of the day. Tasso is despatched:—

“With all his Cavalry, to scour the borders
Of high Parnassus, and low Helicon,
And to bring in alive, or dead, each one
That had discovered been, or to defile
The Presse with Pamphlets scarrilous, and vile,
Or to have traduc'd with malignant spirits,
Persons of honorable worth, and merits.”

Shakespeare is mentioned as one of the Jurors. Sir Francis Bacon is Chancellor of Parnassus; Sir Philip Sidney, High Constable of Par; Ben. Johnson, Keeper of the Trophonian Denne; John Taylour, Cryer of the Court; Edmund Spencer, Clerk of the Assizes, etc.

“John Taylour, then the Courts shrill Chanticleere,

The "Spye" refuses to be tried by "Histriomicke Poets":—

"These mercenary pen-men of the stage,
That foster the grand Vises of this age,
Should in this common-wealth no office beare,
But rather stand with us Delinquents here:
Shakespeare's a Mimicke, Massinger a Sot,
Heywood for Aganippe takes a plot:
Beaumont and Fletcher make one poet, they Single, dare not adventure on a Play." Etc., etc.

Sir Edwin Dering-Lawrence in his Book "Bacon is Shakespeare," devotes considerable space to the above work, maintaining that it proves Bacon is the greatest of Poets and Shakespeare is a mere non-entity. He writes:—

"In 1645 there was published 'The Great Assises holden in Parnassus by Apollo and his assessours' . . . This work is anonymous but is usually ascribed to George Wither and in it Bacon as Lord Verulan is placed first and designated 'Chancellor of Parnassus' that is 'Greatest of Poets!'

A little examination will teach us that the jurors are really the same persons as the malefactors and that, on the reverse of the title, we ought to read right across the page as if the dividing line did not exist.

"William Shakespeare is 'The Writer of weekely accounts.' This exactly describes him, for the only literature for which he was responsible was the accounts sent out by his clerk or attorney.

"This clear statement that the actor Shakespeare was not a poet but a tradesman who sent out his 'weekly accounts,' is, I think, here for the first time pointed out. It seems very difficult to conceive, of a much higher testimony to Bacon's pre-eminence in poetry than the fact that he is placed as 'Chancellor of Parnassus' under Apollo. But a still higher position is accorded to him when it is suggested that Apollo feared that he himself should lose his crown which would be placed on Bacon's head." Etc.

Printed in the Year 1646.

This is a Poem in short rhyming couplets, printed in double column, denouncing the Clergy for the dissensions of 1645, evidently written and published by Wither whilst in prison on account of his book "Justiciarius Justificatus," which was examined by a Committee of the House of Commons and voted to be "false and scandalous." Wither for that book was directed to pay a fine of £500, and the book was burned at Guildford by the hangman. Subsequently, Wither states, the House discharged him "both from the said fine and imprisonment without his petitioning or mediation for it."

WARD (Nathaniel), 1578-1652.

148A THE SIMPLE COBLER OF AGGAWAM IN AMERICA. Willing to help 'mend his Native Country, lamentably tattered, both in the upper-Leather and sole, with all the honest stitches he can take. And as willing never to be paid for his work; by Old English wonted pay. It is his Trade to patch all the year long, gratis. Therefore I pray Gentlemen keep your purses. (Some portions in verse).

London, J. D. and R. I. for Stephen Bowtell, 1647. £6 6s

In 1633 Nathaniel Ward had his living taken away by Archbishop Laud, on account of his puritan views, and in 1634 he emigrated to Massachusetts, and settled as Minister at a place called Agawam, soon afterwards renamed Ipswich. He joined with the Rev. John Cotton, of Boston, in framing the first code of laws established in New England, which were passed by the General Court in 1641 under the title of "Body of Liberties." Six hundred acres of land granted him at Haverhill he afterwards gave to the University of Cambridge, Mass. During his stay in New England he took an important part in its history. Early in 1645 Ward began writing "The Simple Cobler of Aggavvam," a prose satire of the time, which he sent to England, and which immediately became popular, and will always associate his name with early American literature. He returned to England in 1646.

Ward was famous for his wit, also for his judgment and gravity, but a becoming gentleness scarcely seems to have been one of his strong points. It was the period of the Irish Massacres, and in "A Word of Ireland" at the end of this present work, he remarks, "Cursed bee hee that maketh not his Sword starke drunk with Irish blood." He was fond of introducing short rhymes into his works, such as the following, which he attributes to a lady living somewhere with the Queen of Bohemia!

"The world is full of care, most like unto a bubble, Women, and care, and care and women, and women and care and trouble."
Several poems are also introduced.

"Braithwaite, in his Barnaby's Journal, speaks of 'As You Like It' as a proverbial motto, and this seems more likely to imply the true explanation of the title of Shakespeare's play. The title of the comedy may, on this supposition, be exactly parallel with that of 'Much Ado about Nothing.' The proverbial title of the play implies that freedom of thought and indifference to censure which characterizes the sayings and doings of most of the actors, in this comedy of human nature in a forest. It is well to remember that Barnaby's Journal was not printed until 1648-50; in it 'drunken Barnaby' finds the shop where 'Officina juncta mutata "Uti fiet" nota certa Quae delineatur charta.' Which is thus translated: 'A shop neighbouring near Jacco, Where Young vends his old tobacco; "As You Like It" sometime sealed. Which impressions since repealed: "As you make it" she will have it. And in chart and font engrave it.'"—Halliwell-Phillips.

There are also heere inserted two excellent Madrigalls of Master WILLIAM BYRDS, composed after the Italian vaine, at the request of the sayd Thomas Watson. (Contratenor and Medius.)

Imprinted at London by Thomas Este, the Assigné of William Byrd, 1590.

Thomas Weelkes, musician, was probably born between 1570 and 1580, as in his first publication in 1597, he speaks of "the first-fruits of my barren ground," and alludes to his "unripened years." Soon afterwards he became organist of Winchester College, proceeding later to New College, Oxford. He was admitted Mus. Bac. in 1602. Subsequently he became organist of Chichester Cathedral. He died about 1640. Many of his madrigals were constantly reprinted in popular collections during the 18th and 19th centuries.

Thomas Watson, poet, was born in London about 1557. After a varied career, he identified himself with the profession of letters and became a prominent figure in the literary society of London. He was on intimate terms with John Lyly, Nash, Gabriel Harvey, Sir Francis Walsingham, Sir Philip Sidney, and other outstanding persons of the time. He was deeply interested in music, and was terms of intimacy with the chief musicians, of the day. Watson was the first English writer of sonnets after Surrey and Wyatt, and his sonnets were closely studied by Shakespeare and other contemporaries. Watson died in 1592.

John Wilbye, musician, was born about 1572. Nothing is known of him until the publication of his first set of madrigals in 1598, dedicated to Sir Charles Cavendish. His second set appeared in 1608, with a dedication to Lady "Arbella" Stuart. Wilbye is generally regarded as the greatest of English madrigal composers. His two sets contain sixty-four pieces, almost every one being of the highest beauty. Nagel describes Wilbye's madrigals as "almost all model works, whose part-writing is always interesting, whose harmonic colouring is of the most pleasing variety"; "and praises the themes for their inherent beauty and suitableness of the words. He died in 1614.

The poem is dedicated to the Lord Bishop of Derry (John Bramhall) who became Archbishop of Armagh.

The Dedication commences:—

“As snowes in summer, as in harvests raine,
As teares at nuptialls, at triumphs paine,
So comes the Muse who weepes when others laugh
Like Noah who preached the flood, when wordlings quaffe
Unreasonable, then unseasonable
May this be thought . . .”

Commencing:—

“I write in prose, but my poetick muse
To you great Lord in verse; yet now I use
These lucubrations, and these mentall Issues
And thinke them worthy to be cloathed in tissues
As sonns to Phæbus, Heires unto the morne,
As bredd by Pallas, by the Muses borne,
I have my Hopes, my Scopes encircling rounds,
They shall expatiate, English Irish grounds
Hibernizde Brittaines, and the Scythian Scotts
Shall heare them Herauld . . .”

The Author has put a note of explanation as to the meaning of his first sentence. . . . “I write in prose . . .” The reference is to a manuscript “Tragedia Hominis actae y Creaturae etc.,” written by him, which has evidently been lost.

STEPHEN JEROME, who flourished during 1604-1650, was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge. In 1619 he was preacher at St. Nicholas's Church, Newcastle and writing from Ireland in 1624, he describes himself as “domesticke chaplain to the Rt. Hon. Earl of Corke.”

His first published work was “Origen's Repentance,” 1619, which is mentioned in the National Biography as of great rarity. The only copy recorded, sold at the Britwell Sale for £52.

His best known work is his “Ireland's Jubilee,” 1624, which book is second only in rarity to Cranford's “Teares of Ireland.”

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. XXV.)

£275

A VERY INTERESTING PIECE, written in dialogue form (in verse) between Policy and Piety and Hibernia. Policy and Piety marry and thus reconcile Ireland.

Portions of it remind one of Cranmer's eulogy at the christening of Queen Elizabeth, in Shakespeare's Henry VIII. The author further introduces "Winter Tales":—

"Now my Citties wealthy sonnes
By whome my foraigne traffique runes,
Be merry, barter, build, be free
As thoughts, or unstopt Rivers bee.
Turne your wares, and take your gaines,
Proffit is the life of paynes.
And let your modest dainty wives
Add delight unto your lives.
Let each one in her shop appeare
A starre within her proper spheare.
Lett your ould men by the ffire side
Tell Winter Tales. Your youthfull pride
Try Masteries. And your Maydes (as sweete
As when pincks and roses meete)
In Somer evening softly walk
Your comely streetes, prettily talke,
And tell what husbands they would crave
If they might but wish and have.
Your children play as free (in swarmes)
From suffering, as from doing harmes,
Be thus happie. . . ." Etc., etc.

ROBERT DAVENPORT, the celebrated poet and dramatist, flourished at the commencement of the XVIIth Century.

His name has been linked with Shakespeare, as in the Stationers' Register, on the 9th September, 1653, a play was entered under the title of "HENRY I and HENRY II" by SHAKESPEARE and DAVENPORT.

In a collection of "Epigrams," published by Samuel Sheppard, there is one addressed to Mr. Davenport, thus: "Thou rival'st Shakespeare, though thy glory's lesse."

In the National Biography it is stated that Hunter mentions a manuscript poem of Davenport's entitled, "POLICY WITHOUT PIETY, too Subtle to be Sound."

The present poem is evidently a continuation of this, as here we have Policy and Piety uniting and reconciling Ireland.

CAROLINE POETS

1625-1660.

It is difficult to mark out with accuracy the Caroline from the Jacobean poets, who, again, overlap with the Elizabethan poets, but the distinction is nevertheless very great. From Shakespeare to Milton—from Elizabeth to Cromwell—the parallelism of the two changes at once suggests the influence exercised upon literature by the external forces which control the religious and political life of the time. The Elizabethan age in England showed an energy as intense as that of Athens, displaying itself in a far wider field. With the accession of Charles I, England no longer confronted the world in arms, but was called on to work out her own domestic problems at home. Puritanism, which had furnished to the Elizabethan one of the phenomena of which he had to take account, threatened in the reign of Charles to absorb all others. The aims of the Puritans were of necessity individualistic. They sought to strengthen and purify the soul rather than to increase the power of their country or to spread its influence abroad, and this individualistic tendency was favourable to the production of work that has lived, however much it differed in substance from the productions of the preceding age. The poetry of the second and third quarters of the seventeenth century is remarkable for its panegyrics on individual personages, of which Milton's "Lycidas" furnishes an early and perhaps the best example. The tendency to idealise individuals was not of any sect or party. It is to be found as strongly on the Royalist as on the Parliamentary side—with this difference, that whereas Royalists preferred to make woman the theme of their verse, the Parliamentarians preferred to dwell on the heroism and virtue of men.

- 164 THE LEGEND OF CAPTAIN JONES: relating his adventure at Sea: his first landing, and strange Combat with a mighty Bear, etc.

With curious engraved frontispieces by William Marshall (verses opposite).

London, Printed for E. Okes, and Francis Haley, 1671.

£18 18s

Both parts, with separate title to each. Written entirely in verse, prefixed with numerous poems in Greek, Latin, and English relative to the "Legend of Captain Jones."

Lloyd is exclusively remembered by this jeu d'esprit, produced soon after he left Oxford. The legend or ballad, which opens with:

"I sing thy arms (Bellona) and the man's Whose mighty deeds outdid great Tamerlán's,"

is a genial, if somewhat coarse burlesque upon the extravagant adventures of a sea-rover called Jones, who, says Wood: "lived in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and was in great renown for his high exploits. The poem relates how with his good sword Kyl-za-dog, Jones slew the mighty giant Asdriadust, how eleven fierce kings made a brave but futile attempt to stay his triumphant progress, and how at last he was captured by the Spanish King at the expense of his thousand warriors, but at once ransomed by his countrymen, anxious to recover him on any terms. Elsewhere Wood says that the "Legend" was a burlesque upon a Welsh poem, entitled "Awdl Richard John Greulon"; but the view that Jones was an altogether mythical person seems to derive support from the fact that, in his "Rehearsal Transposed," Andrew Marvell says, apropos of the "Legend," "I have heard that there was indeed such a captain, an honest, brave fellow; but a wag that had a mind to be merry with him, hath quite spoiled his history."

SUCKLING (Sir John), 1609-1642.

"But when a writer cannot be a great dramatist, it is something to be a true lyric poet, and this distinction Suckling rightfully enjoys. There is no finer poem of its kind than the "Ballad upon a Wedding," while many of the shorter pieces of this writer will compare favourably with the lyrics of Herrick and Waller."—G. B. Smith.

The Goblins, A Comedy, presented at the Private House in Black Fryers.
Brennoralt. A Tragedy.

IN THE POEMS AT PP. 29-30 IS "A SUPPLEMENT OF AN IMPERFECT COPY OF VERSES OF MR. WIL. SHAKESPEARE."

1.

"One of her hands, one of her cheeks lay under,
Cozening the pillow of a lawful kisse,
Which therefore swel'd and seem'd to part asunder,
As angry to be rob'd of such a bliss:
The one lookt pale, and for revenge did long,
Whilst t'other blush'd, cause it had done the wrong.

"Out of the bed the other fair hand was
On a green satin quilt, whose perfect white
Looked like a Dazie in a field of grasse,
And shew'd like unmelt snow unto the sight
There lay this pretty perdue, safe to keep
The rest o' the body that lay fast asleep."

And two further verses. ("The first nine lines are from the 'Rape of Lucrece.'")

"Suckling would appear to have employed a version of Shakespeare's poem which materially differs from that known to us. Each stanza of the 'Rape of Lucrece,' in all the old copies, has seven lines: the complete one given by Suckling has but six."

"It may be doubted whether Suckling 'curtailed and otherwise altered Shakespeare's lines.' The verses are entitled, 'A Supplement of an Imperfect Copy of Verses of Mr. Wil. Shakespeare's' and at the commencement of the tenth line is an asterisk with the note, 'Thus far Shake-spear.' Not only, too, are the stanzas in a different form from those of our present Lucrece—six lines instead of seven—but lines 5 and 6 of the first stanza differ from lines 5-7 of the present version, not merely in wording but wholly in thought. Neither, if the verses were originally in seven-line stanzas, would they be imperfect, but merely a different version of lines long before completed in Lucrece (Lucrece, published 1594, Suckling 1634-41). It is more probable, as appears to me, that Shakespeare at first thought of composing his Lucrece in the stanza of 'Venus and Adonis,' and for trial commenced not at the beginning but at the central point of importance and interest, namely, at Tarquin's view of Lucrece after forcing her door: but that he, for some unknown reason, after writing about a stanza and a half threw it aside and took to the seven-line stanza."—Shakespeare's Centurie of Prayse.

"Butler is the wittiest of English poets, and at the same time he is one of the most learned, and what is more, one of the wisest. A "spurious" edition in 12mo of the first part of Butler's "Hudibras" came out in 1663 without name either of printer, publisher, or licenser. This was speedily followed by the legitimate "author's edition" in small 8vo. With Prologue, Epilogue and some portions in verse.

In this Play occurs an interesting reference to the play of "MUCEDORUS" which Langbaine attributed to Shakespeare, and which Collier considered was partly written by him.

The reference is as follows:—

"No, Let's try 'em first—trick for trick—Thou were wont to be a precious Knave, and a great Actor too, a very Roscius; did'st not thou play once the Clown in Musidorus?"

No, but I plaid the Bear, Sir.

The Bear! why that's as good a Part; thou'rt an Actor then I'll warrant thee, the Bears a well-penn'd Part, and you remember my Brother's humour, don't you? They have almost hit it.

I, Sir, I knew the shortness of his memory, he would always forget to pay me my Wages, till he was put in mind of 't.

Well said, I'll dress thee within, and all the Servants shall acknowledge thee, you conceive the Design—be confident, and thou cast not miss: but who shall do trusty John?"

Oh, Ralph the Butler, Sir, 's an excellent try'd Actor, he play'd a King once; I ha' heard him speak a Play ex tempore in the Butteries," etc.

There is also a reference to Cassandra.

"2. Aur(elia). . . I shall never hear my Virginals when I play upon 'um, for her daughter Tabytha's singing of Psalms. The first pious deed will be to banish Shakespear and Ben Johnson out of the parlour, and to bring in their rooms Marprelate and Pryn's works. You'll ne'er endure 't, Sir. The preface contains most curious references to the collected works of Shakespeare, Fletcher, and Jonson.

"At my return lately into England, I met by great accident . . . a Book entituled, The Iron Age, and published under my name, during the time of my absence. . . . I esteem myself less prejudiced by it, then by that which has been done to me, since almost in the same kinde, which is, the publication of some things of mine without my consent, or knowledge, and those so mangled and imperfect, that I could neither with honor acknowledge, nor with honesty quite disavow them. . . . From this which had happened to my self, I began to reflect upon the fortune of almost all Writers, and especially Poets, whose Works (commonly printed after their deaths) we finde stuffed out, either with counterfeit pieces like false money put in to fill up the Bag, though it adde nothing to the sum; or with such, which though of their own Coyn, they would have called in themselves, for the baseness of the Allay; whether this proceed from the indiscretion of their Friends, who think a vast heap of Stones or Rubbish a better Monument, then a little Tomb of Marble, or by the unworthy avarice of some Stationers, who are content to diminish the value of the Author, so they may encrease the price of the Book; and like Vintners with sophistic mixtures, spoil the whole vessel of wine, to make it yield more profit. This has been the case with Shakespear, Fletcher, Johnson, and many others; part of whose Poems I should take the boldness to prune and lop away, if the care of replanting them in print did belong to me; neither would I make any scruple to cut off from some the unnecessary yong Suckars, and from others the old withered Branches; for a great Wit is no more tyed to live in a Vast Volume, then in a Gigantic Body; on the contrary, it is commonly more vigorous, the less space it animates."

“But sad Melpomene (who knowes her right

This is Baron's best known work.

“The story of this play is the same as that which Denham made the ground-work of his ‘Sophy,’ and which may be found in Sir Thomas Herbert's ‘Travels’; yet Baron has handled them in a different manner from that author, having finished three complete acts of this before he saw that tragedy; nor found himself then discouraged from proceeding, on a consideration of the great difference in their respective pursuits of the same plan. Baron has made Jonson's ‘Catiline’ in great measure his model, having not only followed the method of his scenes, but even imitated his language; and anyone may perceive that his ghost of Emirhamze Mirza is an evident copy of that of Sylla in ‘Catiline.’ It is, however, a good play, and is commended by five sets of verses by his Cambridge friends; but it does not seem to have been acted.”—W. “Poor House, that in dayes of our Grand-sires,

And where so oft in our Fathers dayes
We have seen so many of Shakespears Playes,
So many of Johnsons, Beaumonts, & Fletchers,
Untill I know not what Puritan Teachers:
(Who for their Tone, their Language, & Action, Might 'gainst the Stage make Bedlam a faction)
Have made with their Raylings the Players as poore
As were the Fryers and Poets before:

Probably unique Broadside. Of considerable interest and importance to the Shakespearean collector. Shakespeare is supposed to have drawn the plot or dramatic framework for his play "The Taming of the Shrew" from a comedy called "The Taming of A Shrew," first produced in 1594. In the above Broadside the title has been taken from the original piece, having "A" instead of "The" in the wording.

James O. Halliwell, in his Introduction to "The Taming of the Shrew" in his monumental Edition of Shakespeare's Works, actually mentions this Broadside, and it may be presumed that the copy he saw is identical with the above. Halliwell after mentioning the existence of this rare piece, goes on to say: "The dramatic and literary merit of the 'Taming of the Shrew' can only be correctly estimated by bearing in mind the manners and tendencies of the age in which it was written. It must be recollected that the power of gentleness, its efficiency greater than force, moving to accomplish the same influence, is a truth barely yet recognised in its fulness. Shakespeare was one of the few writers of his time that appreciated this moral law." Etc. This spirit of gentleness so well expounded by Shakespeare is fully represented in the above Broadside, and parallels may be drawn between the two, pointing to the fact that the author of the Broadside verses must have been well acquainted with Shakespeare's Play. Quoting from Shakespeare:—

Pet.—“I pray you do. I will attend her here
And woo her with some spirit when she comes.
Say that she rail, why then I'll tell her plain
She sings as sweetly as a nightingale:
Say that she frown, I'll say she looks as clear
As morning roses newly wash'd with dew.” Etc.

Quoting from the Broadside:—

“Young man that now art wedded to a wife,
Use her even as the apple of thine eye,
Then if she be of nature bent to strife,
Thy love will cause that wrath in her to dye;
Even as soft things fiery bullets do allay,
That through walls of stone do make their way.” Etc.

THE RESTORATION

1660-1700.

Though the greatest writer of his generation—Milton—strove with all the energy of despair to support the falling fabric of republicanism, to no section of the community was the restoration of Charles II more welcome than to men of letters. An immediate result of the Restoration was the revival of the drama. For nearly eighteen years the acting of plays had been prohibited, but at the Restoration permission was given for the establishment of two theatrical companies—the King's (under Thomas Killigrew) and the Duke's (under Sir William D'Avenant). In the Restoration drama is reflected the dissolute manners of the court. The inevitable reaction against Puritanism had set in strongly, sweeping away the restraints prescribed by decency and good taste. In both dramatic and non-dramatic poetry Dryden established his supremacy, a supremacy which was maintained throughout the later years of the seventeenth century.

£21 10S.

This Play is preceded by An Essay "Of Heroique Playes" which contains much Shakespeare matter, "Pericles," "Winter's Tale," "Love's Labour Lost," and "Measure for Measure" being specially mentioned.

The two parts of the Conquest of Granada are written in rhyme, and were very successful. They are never at or dull, and they have much bustle and incident, with many good lines. Dr. Johnson gives them an extravagant eulogy. The prologue was spoken by Nell Gwyn in a hat of the circumference of a cart-wheel: "The house was immediately in convulsions, and the King wanted but little of being suffocated with laughter."

- 255 DON SEBASTIAN, KING OF PORTUGAL: a Tragedy Acted at the Theatre Royal.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Fine copy in full green morocco, inside dentelles, by Lortic.

London, Printed for Jo. Hindmarsh, 1690. £15 15s

One of Dryden's best plays, and though not without sallies of somewhat frantic dignity, it contains many passages of extraordinary excellence universally admired. The dispute and reconciliation of Dorax and Sebastian may be considered as the finest passage.

- 256 DON SEBASTIAN, KING OF PORTUGAL: a Tragedy Acted at the Theatre Royal.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Original calf (rebacked).

London, 1671. £10 10s

Contains numerous Shakespeare allusions. Also refers to his intended criticism (printed in "The Conquest of Granada"), and shows how he regarded Shakespeare's heroic plays: "I had thought, Reader, in this Preface to have written somewhat concerning the difference betwixt the Playes of our Age, and those of our Predecessors on the English stage; to have shown in what parts of Dramatick Poesie we were excell'd by Ben Johnson, I mean, humour, and contrivance of Comedy; and in what we may justly claim precedence of Shakespeare and Fletcher, namely, in Heroick Playes; but this design I have wav'd on second considerations, at least deferr'd it till I publish the Conquest of Granada."

261 MARRIAGE A-LA-MODE. A Comedy.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Full polished calf.

London, 1673.

£12 12s

The serious part of this drama is apparently founded on the story of Sesostris and Timareta, in the "Grand Cyrus."

The comic scenes are executed with spirit, and contain much witty and fashionable raillery, and the character of Melautha is pronounced by Cibber to exhibit the most complete system of female foppery that could possibly be crowded into the tortured form of a fine lady.

262 ŒDIPUS: a Tragedy.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. New boards.

London, 1681.

£5 5s

Langbaine charges the author of this play with casting a reflection on the whole body of the clergy in the character of Dominick the Friar, and seems to imagine it a piece of revenge practised for some opposition he met with in his attempt to take orders. The plot of the comic parts is founded on a novel called the "Pilgrim," written by Bremond.

267 TROILUS AND CRESSIDA, or, Truth Found too Late. A Tragedy as it is Acted at the Dukes Theatre. To which is Prefix'd, A Preface Containing the Grounds of Criticism in Tragedy.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Full morocco, g. e.

London, Printed for Jacob Tonson, etc., 1679.

£34

Adapted from Shakespeare's play of the same name.

In "The Preface to the Play," Shakespeare's version is fully discussed and comparison made between it and Dryden's adaptation.

"The Grounds of Criticism in Tragedy' deals very fully with the dramatic art, continually citing Shakespeare and his plays, comparing him with Fletcher, Ben Jonson and the like.

"The difference between Shakespear and Fletcher in their Plotting seems to be this, that Shakespear generally moves more terror, and Fletcher more compassion: For the first had a more Masculine, a bolder and more fiery genius; the second a more soft and womanish. In the mechanic beauties of the Plot, which are the observation of the three Unities, Time, Place and Action, they are both deficient; but Shakespear most. Ben Johnson reform'd those errors in his comedies, yet one of Shakespear's was Regular before him: which is, 'The Merry Wives of Windsor.'

"But our Shakespear, having ascrib'd to 'Henry the Fourth' the character of a King, and of a Father, gives him the perfect manners of each Relation, when either he transacts with his Son, or with his subjects. Fletcher, on the other side, gives neither to Arbaces, nor to his King in the 'Maids Tragedy,' the qualities which are suitable to a Monarch.

"To return once more to Shakespear; no man ever drew so many characters, or generally distinguished 'em better from one another, excepting only Johnson: I will instance but in one, to show the copiousness of his Invention; 'tis that of Caliban or the Monster in the 'Tempest.'" Etc., etc.

The Prologue spoken by Mr. Betterton, Representing the Ghost of Shakespear

"See, my lov'd Britons, see your Shakespear rise,
An awfull ghost confess'd to human eyes!" Etc.

This Poem was written upon the inauguration of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in America. In the Preface, which is in prose, the Author writes:—

“ For now have we seen so many Royal Supplicants, the late Indian Princes, brought over in their naked Simplicity and uncultivated Innocence, as so many kneeling Petitioners before the Throne of Britain for the Plantation of the Gospel Tree of Life, the Knowledge of a God amongst them.

“ And here, as the eye of Providence seems more particularly to direct the Blessing of this Gospel Propagation amongst so many Thousands of unenlighten'd Souls in that ye almost unknown Part of the World, give me leave to display the Triumph of so auspicious and so divine a Commission; So happy these Honour'd Americans from the reception of such generous European Visitants amongst them, beyond their once more hard-fated Indian Neighbours when first visited by the barbarous Spaniard.” Etc.

O T W A Y (Thomas), 1652-1685.

According to Oliver Goldsmith, "next to Shakespeare, the greatest genius England ever produced in tragedy."

"No poet has touched the passions with a more masterly hand than Otway. He was acquainted with all the avenues to the human heart, and knew and felt all its emotions. He could rouse us into rage, and melt us into pity and tenderness. His language is that of nature, and consequently the simplest imaginable. He has equally avoided the rant of Lee, and the pomp of Dryden. Hence it was that his tragedies were received, not with loud applause, but with tears of approbation."—James Granger.

L E E (Nathaniel), 1653?-1692.

A dramatist who possessed no small share of the fire of genius, though in him genius was near allied to madness. In tenderness and genuine passion he excels Dryden, and many of his plays held the stage for a considerable period.

“Among our modern English poets, there was none who was better turned for tragedy than Lee; if instead of favouring the impetuosity of his genius, he had restrained it, and kept it within its proper bounds. His thoughts are wonderfully suited to tragedy, but frequently lost in such a cloud of words; that it is hard to see the beauty of them.”—Joseph Addison.

Prevent the malice of their stars in time,
And warn them early from the sin of rhyme;
Tell 'em how Spenser starv'd, how Cowley mourn'd,
How Butler's faith and service were return'd.”

There are many fine lines in this drama, and a great variety of incidents; indeed, so many, that Dryden, who wrote the prologue, and has complimented the author with a poetical epistle, says:

“Thy incidents perhaps too thick are sown;
But too much plenty is thy fault alone:
At least but two can that good crime commit,
Thou in design, and Wycherley in wit.”

He also applauds him for the preservation of time, action and place, which Corneille himself might see with envy.

*With the Excessively Rare Portrait of Carpenter.*FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Fine copy in full morocco gilt, g. e.London, Printed for N. R. Circa 1660.

£18 18s

This is a Play against the Jesuits. The Author, Richard Carpenter, educated at Eton and King's College, Cambridge, was converted to Roman Catholicism by an English monk in London, and studied in Rome. He became a Benedictine monk at Douay for some time, and was sent as a missionary to England, where, after about a year, he returned to the Protestant religion. was ordained, and through the intervention of the Archbishop of Canterbury, was presented, in 1635, to the small living of Poling, near Arundel. During his incumbency he was much annoyed by the Roman Catholics in Arundel, who lost no opportunity of slandering him or holding him up to ridicule before his parishioners, they affirming that his change of creed was in "order to gain a wife" and that "he had run away with the wife of the man with whom he lodged." During the Civil War he went over to Paris and again joined the Roman Church, and made it his business to rail at Protestantism. Returning to England, he joined the Independents, and Dodd's "Church History" records that "he played his pulpit pranks according to the humour of the time, and became a mere mountebank of religion." Towards the latter part of his life he became very serious, and, in company with his wife, embraced Catholicism for a third time. Wood, who was intimately acquainted with him, says, "that he was a fantastical man that changed his mind with his clothes, and that for his juggles and tricks in matters of religion he was esteemed a theological mountebank." (D.N.B.).

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Half morocco.

London, Printed by Tho: Newcomb, for James Magnes and Richard Bentley, 1675.

£4 4^s

This Masque was written by command of King James II's Queen, when Duchess of York, and was performed at Court by persons of great quality. It has songs between the acts; the duration of it is an artificial day; and the plot is founded on Ovid's "Metamorphoses," Lib. ii. Fab. 5, 6. It is dedicated to Lady Mary, afterwards Queen to William III, who, together with the Princess, afterwards Queen Anne, and the Duke of Monmouth, performed and danced in it. The "dramatis personæ" and the names of the performers are prefixed. The "running title" of one leaf cut into.

4 pp., folio. Half morocco.

London, Printed for J. Smith, N.D. (c. 1680).

£7 10s

Extremely rare poetical satire.

Jane Shore, the wife of a London goldsmith, became the mistress of Edward IV, and greatly influenced him by her wit and beauty. Later, she is said to have become, successively, mistress of Lord Hastings and Thos. Grey, 1st Marquese of Dorset. She was accused of sorcery by Richard III, imprisoned and made to do penance. She died in 1527.

Jane Shore is introduced into Shakespeare's Tragedy of "Richard III." Clarence and Gloucester discuss the power exercised over the King by her beauty and "passing pleasing tongue"; Gloucester sends a mocking message to Hastings, to "give Mistress S. one gentle kiss the more"; Gloucester declares that the Queen is in league with the "harlot, strumpt Shore," and that Hastings is the latter's protector; etc.

Both the Duchess of Cleveland and the Duchess of Portsmouth were mistresses of Charles II.

Quoting from the above piece:—

"P—O Heav'ns what have we here!
My Joynts do tremble and my soul doth fear.

(The Ghost of Jane Shore to them)

Ghost—Perhaps you know me not, yet take a view,
See what I am, I was once such as you
I was a whore a Royal Mistress too.
I was a woman of Egregious fame
And like you two I gloried in my shame
Edward my Lord was, and Jane Shore my name." Etc.

AUGUSTAN POETRY

1700-1726.

The death of Dryden in 1700 and the appearance of Thomson's "Winter" in 1726 make the best boundary-marks for the so-called Augustan age of English literature, which is likewise styled the age of Queen Anne, although it really includes also the reign of George I.

The name "Augustan" is derived from that of Augustus, first Roman Emperor. Horace, Virgil, Ovid, Propertius, Tibullus, and Livy were the glory of his "Augustan Age," as Pope, Prior, Gay, Addison, Defoe, and Swift were the literary geniuses of the Age of Queen Anne.

In poetry the Augustan Age consummated the effort after orderliness and correctness which followed as a natural reaction upon the licentious degeneracy of Elizabethan vigour. Of that consummation Pope was of course the grand agent, and his influence is seen in all the minor poets, from Gay and Parnell down to Fenton and Broome.

DEFOE (Daniel), 1659-1731.

Considered as a poet, Defoe is not so eminent, as he was in prose or in a political light, yet his poetry is not without considerable merit.

352 THE DISPENSARY; a Poem.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Calf.

London, Printed by John Nutt, 1699. £12 12s

In 1697, Garth brought forward a scheme for establishing a dispensary where poor people could obtain advice and prescriptions from the best physicians. While a large majority of the fellows of the College of Physicians supported his scheme, a minority allied themselves with the apothecaries of the city, who tried to defeat the plan, chiefly by charging exorbitant prices for the drugs prescribed. The above poem, a record of the first attempt to establish those out-patient rooms now universal in the large towns of England, ridicules the apothecaries and their allies among the fellows. It describes a mock Homeric battle between the physicians and the apothecaries, Harvey being finally summoned from the Elysian fields to prescribe a reform.

Bound with this work are Robert Wild's "Iter Boreale. Attempting something upon the Successful and Matchless March of the Lord General George Monck, from Scotland to London," London, 1660; Defoe's "Faction Displayed. A Poem." Prefixed is a poem by Dryden entitled "To Mr. Granville, on his Excellent Tragedy, call'd Heroick Love." The Prologue is by Henry St. Johns and the Epilogue by Bevill Higgons.

The play met with great success. The plot is taken from the separation of Achilles and Briseis in the first book of the "Iliad," and the scene lies in the Grecian fleet and camp before Troy. The conclusion of this play was altered after the first representation, his lordship's reasons for which may be seen in his preface.

In the Poem “The Progress of Beauty,” references are made to Cleopatra, Julius Caesar, Antony, Rosamond, King Henry, etc.

S W I F T (Jonathan), 1667-1745.

“ As a poet, Swift’s post is pre-eminent in the sort of poetry which he cultivated. He never attempted any species of composition, in which either the sublime or the pathetic were required of him. But in every department of poetry where wit is necessary, he displayed, as the subject chanced to require, either the blasting lightning of satire, or the lambent and meteor-like coruscations of frolicsome humour.”—
Sir Walter Scott.

370 A SERIOUS POEM UPON WILLIAM WOOD, Brasier, Tinker, Hardware-Man, Coiner, Counterfeiter, Founder and Esquire.

FIRST EDITION. 2 pp., folio. Contained in buckram case.

Dublin, Printed by John Harding in Molesworth's Court
(c. 1725). £55

In 1722 Wood had been granted by the King the sole privilege and license for fourteen years to coin halfpence and farthings to be uttered and disposed of in Ireland and not elsewhere.

Though the workmanship was good, the quality of the coin was poor, and the measure involved a tax upon the country of between six and seven thousand pounds a year. The circumstances under which the patent had been granted were held by a section of popular opinion in Dublin to be dishonouring to the nation, and a great clamour was raised, championed by Swift in "The Drapier's Letters" and other pamphlets, of which the above is a very good and rare example.

"When Foes are o'ercome, we preserve them from slaughter.
To be Hewers of WOOD and Drawers of Water,
Now, although to Draw water is not very good,
Yet we all should Rejoyce to be Hewers of Wood.
I own it hath often provok'd me to Mutter,
That, a Rogue so Obscure should make such a clutter,
But antient Philosophers wisely Remark.
That old rotten WOOD will shine in the Dark.
The Heathens, we Read, had Gods made of WOOD,
Who could do them no Harm, if they did them no good:
But this Idol WOOD may do us great Evil,
Their Gods were of WOOD, but our WOOD is the DEVIL.
To cut down fine WOOD is a very bad thing,
And yet we all know, much Gold it will bring,
Then if cutting down WOOD brings Money good Store,
Our Money to keep, let us cut down ONE more." Etc., etc.

CONGREVE (William), 1670-1730.

The greatest master of the English comedy of repartee.

"Where Congreve excels all his English rivals is in his literary force, and a succinctness of style peculiar to him. He had correct judgment, a correct ear, readiness of illustration within a narrow range, in snapshots of the obvious at the obvious, and copious language."—Geo. Meredith.

ADDISON (Joseph), 1672-1719.

As a light essayist, Joseph Addison has no equal in English literature. As a poet and dramatist, he enjoyed considerable success. His poetry shows facility and poetic sensibility, stopping short of poetic genius.

- 377 THE CAMPAIGN. A Poem, to his Grace the Duke of Marlborough.

FIRST EDITION. Folio. Half morocco gilt, g. e.

London, 1705.

£12 12s

"The success of his poem, the 'Campaign,' was rewarded by promotion to an under-secretaryship of state. Godolphin, according to Tickell, saw the poem when finished "as far as the applauded simile of the angel," and gave the commissionership in consequence. The anecdote has been coloured by the desire to represent Addison as a poor author raised from a garret to fortune by discerning patronage. Godolphin cared more for horse-racing than poetry, and was much less likely to reward the author of a set of verses than to gratify an important politician by advancing an adherent. In any case, the poem and the simile achieved a great success."—(D.N.B.)

- 388 THE TRAGEDY OF JANE SHORE: Written in Imitation of Shakespear's Style.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Half calf.

London, Printed for Bernard Lintott, N.D. (1713). £4 4s

In this little Play there is a Prologue spoken by Mr. Wilks and an Epilogue spoken by Mrs. Oldfield. In the Prologue the following Shakespearian reference occurs:—

“In such an Age, Immortal Shakespear wrote,
By no quaint rules, nor hampering Criticks raught;
With rough, majestick Force he mov'd the Heart,
And Strength, and Nature, made amends for Art.
Our humble Author does his Steps pursue,
He owns he had the mighty Bard in view.” Etc.

Jane Shore, the wife of a London goldsmith; became mistress of King Edward IV, and greatly influenced him by her wit and beauty. She was finally accused of sorcery by Richard III, imprisoned, and made to do penance. She is continually referred to in Shakespeare's tragedy of “Richard III.”

"I sing the Wonders of Almighty Love,
 Nor now would ask, or have an Angels' Tongue,
 For they remov'd from us and sin above,
 Can never know the subject of our Song.
 They stationary Spirits are,
 And of the Highest's Presence share,
 But having ne'er been banished thence
 Know nor the loss, nor gain of Innocence,
 And as they ne'er transgress'd, but better be
 Can neither know, nor sing this truth so well as we." Etc., etc.

PHILIPS (Ambrose), 1675?-1749.

"An elegant versifier, and Goldsmith has eulogised the opening of his "Epistle to the Earl of Dorset" as "incomparably fine." A fragment of Sappho, translated by Philips, is a poetical gem so brilliant, that it is thought Addison must have assisted in its composition."—Robt. Chambers.

SOMERVILLE (William), 1675-1742.

"He is strictly and almost solely a descriptive poet; and his talent lies in delineating actual scenes with fidelity and spirit, adorning them with the beauties of diction, but leaving them to act upon the imagination of their own force, without aid from the creations of fancy."—John Aikin.

WINSTANLEY (John), 1678?-1750.

402 POEMS WRITTEN BY JOHN WINSTANLEY. Interspers'd with many others, by Several Ingenious Hands.

With fine mezzotint portrait of Dr. Winstanley by Brooks.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo. Original calf (joints worn).

Dublin, Printed by S. Powell, for the Author, 1742. £2 2s

Winstanley's poems are often amusing and clever. Among his subscribers were Swift, the Earl of Roscommon, Pope, and Colley Cibber.

The above collection contains a poem on Swift, "On St. Andrew's Day and the Dean's Birth-Day"; one of Shakespearian interest, "The Taming of the Shrew, a Tale"; others on Tobacco and Freemasonry, etc.

PARNELL (Thomas), 1679-1718.

"The compass of Parnell's poetry is not extensive, but its tone is peculiarly delightful: not from mere correctness of expression, to which some critics have stinted its praises, but from the graceful and reserved sensibility that accompanied his polished phraseology."—Thos. Campbell.

When Hebeus yet stonget his head did hide and the worlds waygoner, did cease to ride
 when Titan loosed his beams, and did resigne, his boate to Cynthia, who began to shine
 my burrowed soules, from silent to the night;
 prest and opprest me, looking on for light,
 into a darksome grove, whirle I then:
 darker it was then, was trifolius den, or Holyholmes, Gaus: it ruled most, wth my darke minde wth I turbatione to ease my sadd thoughts, my passione prison out through slures of my watery eyes, got sent,
 the Barrell of my heart, else had they burst at new winds, working in old vessels must clouded wth sorrowes, thus I close retiringe through flames and meates, broke from mine inward firing;
 and as east sparks, I sought to quench wth tears,
 blacke furt my wth most and sadd attende boares:
 wth hth mth wth, so little laid the winds

When I consider, all my sinne, my sorrowes my losses, crosses, and my many morrowes, past ore my head, wth out haire wayed good,
 in these externales, to my youngling blood:
 I bringing not least fault to the Hibe,
 yet of all woes (yea dreames) I least to strive:
 long feeding thousands, from my tearing mouthe,
 yet thousands fatter fodd, wth farr more sloute,
 my candle in the socket and my trees, fading: my Brautes yet consapt to be,
 their brooding focks (the pleasure of mine eye)
 went from me in the spring, so soon to dye;
 my sun eclipsed long, not yet to shine;
 care travelling wandering starr outbrigiting mine;

- 408 A PARAPHRASE, or Large Explicatory Poem upon the Song of Solomon. Wherein The Mutual Love of Christ and his Church, contain'd in that Old-Testament Song, is imitated in the Language of the New Testament, and adapted to the Gospel-dispensation.

FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Fine copy in full morocco gilt, t. e. g.

Edinburgh, Printed by Tho. Lumisden and Jo. Robertson, for James Beugo, 1736. £7 10s

A fine copy, the bottom margins being entirely uncut.

Ralph Erskine was a Scottish seceding divine and poet, and took a zealous part in the Ecclesiastical controversies, and with his brother was the founder of the Scottish Secession Church. He was one of the "twelve apostles" of 1721. This, his important poem, a paraphrase of the "Song of Solomon," he submitted to Isaac Watts, who suggested a few improvements.

G A Y (John), 1685-1732.

The father of the English Opera, a form of light comedy enlivened by songs and music, which for a time supplanted the Italian opera, with all its exotic and elaborate graces. His "Fables" are still the best we possess; for although they have not the rich humour and archness of La Fontaine's, they are light and pleasing, and are always smooth in versification.

- 409 FABLES.

With numerous copperplate engravings by Gravelot and others.

THE EXCESSIVELY RARE FIRST EDITION of each volume.

2 vols. in 1, 4to. Original calf (joints worn).

London, Printed for J. Tonson and J. Watts, 1727. (Vol. II, London, Printed for J. and P. Knapton, 1738.) £88

Fine tall copy.

"The most finished productions of our poet, and those to which he will owe his reputation with posterity, are his "Fables"—the finest in the language. They are written with great spirit and vivacity; the versification is generally smooth and flowing; the descriptions happy and appropriate, and the moral designed to be conveyed is, for the most part, impressive and instructive."—C. This is the First Edition of Pope's "Dunciad," and the Second Issue, with "Books and the man I sing" on the first line of the first book.

In 1726 Lewis Theobald attacked Pope's edition of Shakespeare in a pamphlet entitled "Shakespeare Restored; or, Specimens of Blunders Committed and Unamended in Pope's Edition of this Poet." Theobald certainly understood Shakespeare better than Pope did, but this did not lessen the annoyance of his attack, and, fresh from the smart of it, Pope made Theobald the hero of his "Dunciad," under the name of "Tibbald."

"Had the Hero, for instance, been called Codrus, how many would have affirm'd him to be Mr. W— Mr. D— Sir R— B—, &c. but now all that unjust scandal is saved by calling him Theobald, which by good luck happens to be the name of a real person."—The Publisher to the Reader.

References are made in the poem itself to Shakespeare, Jonson, etc.

"Nor sleeps one error in its father's grave,
Old puns restore, lost blunders nicely seek,
And crucify poor Shakespear once a week."

"Now turn to diff'rent sports (the Goddess cries)
And learn, my sons, the wond'rous pow'r of Noise,
To move, to raise, to ravish ev'ry heart,
With Shakespear's nature, or with Johnson's art." Etc.

TOWN. As deliver'd in his Second Sermon. Imitated in the Manner of Mr. Pope.

FIRST EDITION. Second Issue. 4to. Half morocco.
London, Printed for T. Boreman (1734). £4 10s

The first issue of the first edition has the title-page: "A Sermon against Adultery: Being Sober Advice from Horace." In order to form the above second issue the original title-page was cancelled and a new one provided. The text is identical, as in each the word "amiss" in the third line of page 5 is incorrectly spelled "amise."

In the second edition of the "Sober Advice from Horace" this mistake has been rectified.

- 432 THE TEMPLE OF FAME: A Vision.

London, Printed for Bernard Lintot, 1715. £18 18s

Contains the rare half-title, and the two leaves of advertisement at end, on a projected edition of Chaucer's works.

"It was probably the similarity of taste that induced Pope when young to imitate several of the pieces of Chaucer, and in particular to write his "Temple of Fame," one of the noblest although one of the earliest of his productions. That the hint of the piece is taken from Chaucer's "House of Fame" is sufficiently obvious, yet the design is greatly altered, and the descriptions, and many of the particular thoughts, are his own; notwithstanding which, such is the coincidence and happy union of the work with its prototype, that it is almost impossible to distinguish those portions which are originally Pope's, from those for which he has been indebted to Chaucer."—William Roscoe.

S A V A G E (Richard), 1690?-1743.

"Though he may not be altogether secure against the objections of the critic, it must, however, be acknowledged that his works are the productions of a genius truly poetical . . . and have an original air, which has no resemblance to any fore-going writer, that the versification and sentiments have a cast peculiar to themselves, which no man can imitate with success, because what was nature in Savage, would in another be affectation."—Dr. Johnson.

440 LONDON AND BRISTOL COMPAR'D. A Satire: Written in Newgate, Bristol, by the late Richard Savage, Esq.

FIRST EDITION. Folio. Half morocco.

London, Printed for M. Cooper, 1744.

£16 16s

Slight repair on title affecting one letter.

In 1743, having exhausted the hospitality of the inhabitants of Bristol, Savage was arrested for debt, and confined in the city of Newgate. Bean Nash sent him £5 from Bath; but otherwise he received little assistance: To average this neglect he composed the above satire.

441 THE WANDERER: A Poem.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo. Calf.

London, 1729.

£7 7s

Savage considered this poem his masterpiece, and Pope read it thrice with increasing approval. It bears traces of the influence of Thompson and contains vivid descriptions of nature.

"The Wanderer' of Savage is a very remarkable production; the more remarkable when we consider the circumstances in which it was composed. Stanzas of it were often written upon cobbler's stalls, and sometimes whole passages were indited in a pauper-lodging. One special quality of the poem is the extreme purity, and moral elevation of sentiment, contrasted with his own practical conduct." Henry Giles.

"The poem, which possesses considerable merit, was edited by Izaak Walton, whose preface is dated 7 May, 1678, though the work was not published till five years later, when the editor was ninety years old. Walton, who had known the writer, says of him: 'And I have also this truth to say of the author, that he was in his time a man generally known and as well belov'd; for he was humble and obliging in his behaviour, a gentleman, a scholar, very innocent and prudent; and indeed his whole life was useful, quiet, and virtuous.' In the 'Compleat Angler,' published thirty years before, there occur two songs—'O, the sweet contentment,' and 'O, the gallant fisher's life'—signed 'Io Chalkhill.' So meagre were the facts known of the author of 'Thelma and Clearchus' until a comparatively recent period that the Rev. Samuel W. Singer, in the introduction to a reprint of the poem issued from the Chiswick Press in 1820, advanced from the theory, afterwards adopted by a writer in the 'Retrospective Review,' that Walton was its author as well as its editor, and that Chalkhill was altogether 'a fictitious personage.' But Mr. F. Somner Merryweather, in two letters in the 'Gentleman's Magazine' for 1860, has shown from the Middlesex county records that towards the close of Queen Elizabeth's reign Ivon or Ion Chalkhill, Gent., was one of the coroners for that county, and that he subscribed his name 'Ion' and sometimes 'Io Chalkhill,' just as it is subscribed to the songs in Walton's 'Angler.' It is conjectured, therefore, that the coroner may have been identical with the poet. Moreover it is worthy of note that Walton married Ann Ken, a sister of Bishop Ken and daughter of Thomas Ken, an attorney, by his first wife. This Thomas Ken married a second wife, Martha Chalkhill, the second daughter of John Chalkhill, of Kingsbury, in Middlesex, and of Martha, his wife, daughter of Thomas Brown, great-aunt to John Brown, who was clerk of the parliament." Folio broadside. Enclosed in buckram case.

London, A. Baldwin in Warwick-Lane (May 24th, 1701).

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. XXXVI.)

£52 10s

Not mentioned in any American bibliography. An extremely rare broadside poem, possibly unique, issued on the occasion of the execution of the famous "pirate," Captain Kidd.

"Whether Captain Kidd ever really deserved such a grewsome renown is more or less questionable. He was certainly no ruffian, but an educated mariner who for the greater part of his life was esteemed a model of integrity. He was probably the son of a Presbyterian minister at Greenock, in Scotland. In his marriage certificate, in 1691, he is styled 'gentleman.' At that time he had considerable wealth and lived in a pleasant home in Liberty Street (New York). In earlier days he seems to have been a navigator in various parts of the world.

"No unimportant man has caused more fear, speculation, and gold-digging than Captain William Kidd. Along the shores of New England and Long Island, from his day to this, men have dug in the dead of night, directed as they thought, by the witch-hazel, or the divining-rod, to find his buried gold, and none have found it. 'The Pirate Kidd' was long a bugbear to frighten children, and a name to arouse the cupidity of men. Privateering has been a respectable business, and the slave-trade was a respectable traffic; and both were engaged in by respectable merchants of New York, Bristol, and Newport, and by merchants in England at the close of the seventeenth century.

“When Lord Bellomont came to America to succeed Fletcher as Governor of the colony of New York, the neighbourhood of New York City was a sort of rendezvous for pirates, and he early began to take measures to suppress their ravages. Colonel Robert Livingston formulated a plan of employing Captain Kidd, who then had a good reputation and a knowledge of the sea. A ship was accordingly fitted out, Livingston and Kidd bearing one fifth of the expense, and Kidd was sent out in 1697 to capture pirates. Instead he turned pirate himself, and while he was never convicted of this charge, he was hanged at Execution Dock for the murder of one of his sailors. Some eminent noblemen, among whom was Lord Bellomont himself, had furnished funds for his fitting out, and they were accused of complicity in his piratical scheme.

“The author of this tract was a ‘person of quality,’ and ‘was privy to all the Steps taken by the Earl of Bellomont from his first hearing the name of Kidd, till he left England: and in saying so I do in effect affirm, that I was acquainted with every thing that pass’d in that affair.

“Whatever may have been Kidd’s crime, it is clear that he did not have a fair trial, and was found guilty on insufficient evidence.” Documents have recently been discovered which should have been produced at the trial, and which would have acquitted him. They were kept back by other persons implicated in the matter.

- 477 THE FOUR INDIAN KINGS. Part I. How a beautiful Lady conquered one of the Indian Kings. Part II. The Lady's Answer to the Indian King's Request.

(London, circa 1710.) £7 10s

The Indian Chiefs of the Five Nations were brought to England by Col. Nicholson, once Governor of Maryland, in 1710, and on April 19 were received in Audience by Queen Anne. They came to ask certain concessions for the "Five Nations" Indians, that the English officers chosen to be in their district might be those who could speak their language, etc. An account of them was published in London the same year, entitled "The Four Kings of Canada."

This poem is based on the supposed incident of the youngest of the Indian Chiefs having fallen in love with a young lady whom he had seen when walking in St. James's Park, and having asked her to become his wife promising "to advance her in our fine America." The young lady declines even to send him a proper answer until he "first be turned from his gross Idolatry." What the final result of his courting was, the poem does not state, but probably he was unlucky.

GEORGIAN POETRY

1726-1798.

Although the accession of the Hanoverian dynasty made no very serious break in our history, notable changes and signs of greater change to come manifested themselves in English literature.

Most important is what is known as the return to nature, the revival of interest in the poetry of natural description: the gradual transition from the poetry of formal culture, of critical disquisition, of philosophical reflection, to the poetry of emotion, of spontaneous joy in life and passion and beauty.

Another very noteworthy feature of this period is the way in which, while a vernacular Scottish revival was in progress at home, Scotsmen came to the front in English literature, in poetry, novel writing, political and economic thought, and even literary criticism.

R A M S A Y (Allan), 1686-1758.

A man of strong natural parts, and a fine poetical genius, of which his celebrated pastoral, "The Gentle Shepherd," will ever remain a substantial monument. Robert Burns speaks of it as the "most glorious poem ever written." He merits a place in Scottish poetic history little behind that of the greatest makers, Barbour, Henryson, Dunbar, Lyndsay, and Burns.

“ And thou, fair Peace, from the wild floods of War
Come Dovelike, and thy blooming Olive bear!
Tell me, ye Victors, what strange charms ye find,
In Conquest, that destruction of mankind?
Unenvy'd may your laurels ever grow
That never flourish but in human woe!
If never Earth, the wreath triumphal bears
Till drenched with Heroes' blood or Orphans' tears
'Tween Worlds and Worlds they move, and from their lair
Shoot the blue plague, the Pestilence and War.

In thy own Laurel Shade Great Marlbro' stay,
The charm the thoughts of conquer'd Worlds away,
Guardian of England, born to scourge her foes,
Speak and thy word gives half the world repose.
Sink down ye Hills, eternal rocks subside
Vanish ye tow'rs, thou Ocean drein thy Tyde!
We safely boast defended by thy fame,
And Armies in the terrour of thy Name!
Now fix o'er Anna's throne thy victor blade
War be thou chain'd! Ye streams of blood be staid!
Tho' wild ambition her just vengeance feels,
She wars to save, and where she strikes she heals,
So Pallas with her Javelin smote the ground
And peaceful Olives flourish from the wound.”

THOMSON (James), 1700-1748.

"Thomson must be acknowledged to be one of the greatest of our minor poets—i.e., of those that are ranked next to the great names of Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare, Milton, Wordsworth, and Byron. He holds this place by virtue of his vigor of imagination, his broad manly sentiment, the individuality of his verse, and the distinction of his subject. These have given him a remarkable and enduring popularity."—Wm. Minto.

- 536 CORIOLANUS. A Tragedy, as it is Acted at the Theatre Royal in Covent Garden.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo. Half morocco.

London, 1749.

£1 10s

This Tragedy was performed for the first time after the Author's death. The poet's friend Quin was given the chief part, and he is said to have broken down in the prologue by Lyttelton when he came to the lines

"Not one unmoral, one corrupted thought.

One line, which, dying, he could wish to blot."

"Ye generous Britons! your own sons inspire;
Let your applauses fan their native fire.
Then other Shakespeare's yet may rouze the stage
And other Otways melt another age." (Epilogue).

A very popular play—the book was sold to Miller for 130 guineas and went through three editions in the year. Dr. Johnson says he was told by Savage that the prologue was written by Pope, Mallet adding the remaining few lines.

541 "HARD IS THE FATE OF HIM WHO LOVES."

The Original Manuscript entirely in the Autograph of the Poet.

Consisting of 7 verses of 4 lines each, on 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ pp., 4to.

Autograph manuscripts of James Thomson are exceedingly rare.

"Hard is the fate of him who loves,
 Yet dares not tell his trembling pain,
 But to the sympathetic groves,
 But to the lonely listn'ing plain.
 For Angels warble when she speaks:
 And where her eyes, sweet-beaming, shine,
 Heaven on the extatic Gazer breaks,
 Inspiring something all-divine."

An accompanying note by Thomas Percy, Bishop of Dromore, authenticates this poem and states that it was addressed to Frances, Countess of Hertford, afterwards Duchess of Somerset.

542 AUTOGRAPH VERSE SIGNED ADDRESSED "TO MISS YOUNG, MY DEAR AMANDA."

Comprising 8 lines on 1 page, 12mo. N.D. £13 10s

Entirely in the poet's hand and signed by him. His autograph is exceedingly rare.

"Accept, lov'd Young! this Tribute due
 To tender Friendship, Love and You!
 But with it take what breath'd the whole
 O take to Thine the Poet's soul." Etc.

The little manuscript has been strengthened where a trifle weak.

The Miss Young here referred to was Elizabeth, daughter of Captain Gilbert Young, and sister-in-law of Thomson's friend, James Robertson. The attachment lasted eight years, but was broken in 1744, when the lady married Admiral John Campbell.

DODDRIDGE (Philip), 1702-1751.

- 543 AUTOGRAPH POEM, HEADED "ON FORGETTING CLARINDA'S BIRTH DAY TILL IT WAS TOO LATE," ETC.

Comprising 14 lines on 1 page, 4to.

Dated 1st October, 1729.

£2 10s

"Whilst happy in Clarinda's sight I live,
And feast on Joys which none but she can give,
Moments & Hours unheeded roll away,
Nor did I mark even this important Day;
Else had my Muse her early Tribute paid,
And in soft Accents bless'd my lovely Maid." Etc.

Doubtless addressed to Miss Jane Jennings, to whom Doddridge proposed marriage in 1730, though she was only in her 16th year. Nothing came of this infatuation, however.

WESLEY (John), 1703-1791.

- 544 A COLLECTION OF PSALMS AND HYMNS.

FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Original calf.

London, Printed by W. Strahan, 1741.

- 547 HYMNS FOR THE USE OF FAMILIES, and on Various Occasions.

FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Original calf.

Bristol, Printed by William Pine, 1767.

There are 166 hymns in this collection: all following the 44th are distinguished as "Occasional Hymns," to many of which titles are prefixed.

"Mr. Charles Wesley's Family Hymn-Book consists to a great extent of hymns which he had written under circumstances of peculiar excitement, affecting him as a husband, a father, and the head of a family. They are all the genuine effusions of his heart—not one of the hymns containing a stanza that is either trite or mean. The most common concerns of life are dignified by Christian sentiment, expressed in language of almost unrivalled force and beauty."

- 548 SHORT HYMNS ON SELECT PASSAGES OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

FIRST EDITION. 2 vols., small 8vo. Original calf.

Bristol, Printed by E. Farley, in Small-Street, 1762. £4 10S

Vol. I contains 1,160 hymns, and Vol. II 870.

"In more than one instance in the course of these volumes the poet has for the moment superseded the theologian. It is, therefore, not surprising that, notwithstanding his intense admiration of his brother, John Wesley found it needful to caution some of the society against being "hurt by what they might find in these volumes contrary to the doctrine they had received."

JOHNSON (Samuel), 1709-1784.

"He was a poet of no mean order. His resonant lines, informed as they often are with the force of their author's character—his strong sense, his fortitude, his gloom—take possession of the memory, and suffuse themselves through one's entire system of thought."—Augustine Birrell.

549 IRENE: a Tragedy. As it is Acted at the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo. Fine copy in full morocco gilt, g. e.
London, Printed for R. Dodsley, 1749.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. XXXVIII.)

£75

With the rare half-title.

Part of this tragedy had been written by Johnson at his school of Edial, near Lichfield, in 1736. He continued writing it in lodgings at Greenwich in 1737, and it was finished at Lichfield in the summer of that year. It remained in manuscript for twelve years, and was then produced at Drury Lane under the managemship of David Garrick. The prologue is by Johnson, the epilogue by Sir William Yonge.

SHENSTONE (William), 1714-1763.

"There is much sweetness and grace in the verses of Shenstone; they formed part of the intellectual food which nourishes the strong soul of Burns."—Thos. Arnold.

Speaking of Shenstone's "Schoolmistress," Goldsmith says: "This poem is one of those happinesses in which a poet excels himself, as there is nothing in all Shenstone which any way approaches it in merit; and, though I dislike the imitations of our English poets in general, yet, on this minute subject, the antiquity of the style produces a very ludicrous solemnity."

555 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED (IN FULL) TO JOHN SCOTT HYLTON.

3 pp., 8vo. (1775.)

£5 5s

He commences the letter by quoting from a once-popular song:

"This great world's but a trouble,
Where all must their fortunes bear;
Make the best of a bubble—
'Tis but a Neighbour's fare."

"Such is ye sense or nonsense of a song yt was once extremely popular. Be this as it will; be assur'd, you have no vexation belongs to you, but your neighbour has its counterpart; & if you expect comfort from him, he has ye self same reason to demand comfort from you. Perhaps it were best, therefore, to give mutual acquittances; and have recourse to such assistance as we can drain from Philosophy." Etc., etc.

- 560 THE DANGER OF WRITING VERSE: an Epistle. (In verse.)
 FIRST EDITION. 16 pp., folio. Unbound.
London, Printed for R. Dodsley, 1741. £6 6s

At Cambridge, Whitehead published his first more important poetical works, which showed him to have deliberately formed his style as a writer of verse upon Pope, at a time when English poetical literature was at last on the very point of widening its range as to both form and subjects. His epistle, "The Danger of Writing Verse," is elegant in versification and diction, and modest in tone—two merits which are rarely absent in Whitehead.

FIRST EDITION. 8pp., 4to. Fine copy bound by Riviere in full polished calf gilt, g. e.

Cambridge, Printed by J. Archdeacon, Printer to the University, 1769. £52 10s

In 1768 Gray was appointed professor of history and modern languages at Cambridge, the appointment being made by the Duke of Grafton. The above ode was written out of gratitude to Grafton, and to commemorate his being elected Chancellor of the University.

Gray could never compose voluntarily. When composing the "Installation Ode," he was, for a considerable time at a loss how to begin. Being interrupted by a friend, he exclaimed: "Hence, avaunt! tis holy ground!"—a phrase which ultimately served him for his opening verse.

WEST (Richard), 1716-1742.

TO HORACE WALPOLE.

567 FIVE AUTOGRAPH LETTERS SIGNED, TWO OF WHICH CONTAIN POEMS
IN TEXT, TO HORACE WALPOLE.

13¼ pp., 4to and folio. 1735-1739. £21

An interesting series of letters from West to Walpole, who, together with Thomas Gray and Thomas Ashton, were known among their friends as the "Quadruple Alliance," each being distinguished by a pseudonym. Gray was known as "Orosmales," West as "Favonius" or "Zephyrus," Walpole as "Celadon," there being an uncertainty with regard to Ashton's.

Two of the letters contain poems in the text, one being upon the thatched house in which the Walpole's lived at Richmond.

" . . . Suffer then my poor little desponding letter to make its appearance before all like a ghost wrapt up in a white sheet, and to make its apology thus—

" You say I have an aversion to Statius, & Statius surely is an honourable man, and even his enemies must confess he has some perfections: But could you think I meant to wound you thro' the Sides, or could I dream of your dear Pegasus, when I abused Domitian's horse.

" Moreover, you treat me as a dreamer of dreams, and you call me by the heathenish name of Watteau, & you say I write down my false insomnia, & all that; if that be the case I am absolved already, for dreams you know always go by contraries; so that Statius has no longer any occasion to complain of Sleep.

" But to wave this plea, surely you are not so far of Quarle's opinion, as to think crimes committed actual sins; if so many a virgin has dreamed away her virginity. And now, to end like an Orator with a curious peroration,

" O pardon, pardon a distempered mind;
Mercy's the sweetest attribute of heaven.
Forget, forgive—Humanity may err—
I've injured Statius, I have wronged his muse,
And I have suffered—Oh my Celadon!
Shall one rash dream, th' infirmity of sleep,
Throw down the merit of my waking hours?
Damn'd visionary curse! so fares the wretch,
Whose sleep-beguiled hand stabbed his poor sire,
And waking finds despair—forget, forgive—
My dreams are guilty, but my heart is free. . . . Etc.

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS' COPY.

568 THE SCRIBLERAID: an Heroic Poem. In six Books.

With frontispiece and six engraved plates (one depicting an aerial combat between an Englishman and a German).

4to. Original half calf.

London, Printed for R. Dodsley, 1751.

£4 4s

This mock-heroic poem, intended to expose false taste and false science, is replete with happy parodies of distinguished passages in the classics, particularly Virgil.

Contains the long preface not prefixed to the first edition.

A considerable part of Book IV is devoted to a description of an aerial combat between an Englishman and a German, resulting in the victory for the former.

“Let brisker youths their active newes prepare,
F'it their silken wings, and skim the buxom air.
Mov'd by my words, two youths of equal fire
Spring from the crowd, and to the prize aspire.
The one a German of distinguished fame:
His rival from projecting Britain came.
They spread their wings, and with a rising bound,
Swift at the word together quit the ground,
The Briton's rapid flight outstrips the wind:
The lab'ring German urges close behind.” Etc.

With autograph signatures of Sir Joshua Reynolds and R. L. Gwatkin on title-page.

573 VERSES ENTIRELY IN HIS AUTOGRAPH.

Written on 2 pp., small 8vo.

£68

The first being:—

“ Upon the Subscription to the New Rooms at Bath. By Mrs. F—y.”
Devizes, Apl. 20th, 1769.

“ To keep out the Irish, new Rooms they will build,
By Englishmen only ordain'd to be fill'd;
By Fathers & Husbands ye wisest in Britain,
To keep out the Irish, this Project was hit on.
But the Ladies all cry'd, when the Notice was giv'n,
The Irish not Enter!—forbid it good Heav'n!”

The other is:—

“ Upon Plomer's being pull'd by ye nose by Mr. Orme.” 4 lines. Bath, April ye 4th, 1769.

“ To make a Mock Doctor & dub him a Quack,
Moliere has prescrib'd a good stick on ye back;
To make a Mock Master, be sparing of blows;
The Business is done by a Tweak of the Nose.”

574 A VERSE ENTIRELY IN HIS AUTOGRAPH.

Consisting of 8 lines, on one page, small 8vo, entitled “ The Unsuspecting Irish Gentleman.”

£68

“ Without suspicion ‘ Richard ’ goes to bed,
Without suspicion rests his guileless head:
Tis Summer, and the youth begins to sweat,
Without suspicion of the bed cloaths weight—
Tis Winter and he feels his Limbs near froze,
Without suspicion of the want of cloaths;
Thus breaths He, sleeping, waking, eating, drinking,
Without suspicion of his want of Thinking.”

575 EPILOGUE ENTIRELY IN HIS AUTOGRAPH.

Consisting of 8 lines, on one page, small 8vo. £65

“Should ever discord or disorder reign
 Among the Learned Sons of Warwick-Lane:
 Should they throw Squibs made up of Latin scraps
 And come to pulling wigs, as women, Caps:
 Think you, the sick neglected, in a Scrape?
 While ‘Doctors’ fight, the ‘Patients’ may escape:
 Death will suspend his Dart, not lay about him
 He has more honor, than to work without ‘em.”

576 A VERSE ENTIRELY IN HIS AUTOGRAPH.

Consisting of 4 lines, on one page, small 8vo. £42

“This Sacred Guide has Dorothea giv’n,
 To shew a Straying Sheep ye way to Heav’n;
 With forms of Righteousness she well may part,

WALPOLE (Horace), 1717-1797.

WITH VERSES.

580 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED (INITIALS) TO THOMAS GRAY, THE POET, WITH SOME 26 LINES OF VERSE IN THE TEXT.

2 pp., 4to. Arlington Street, Christmas Day, 1755. £16 16s

“To draw poetry from you, I send you these mediocre verses, the only ones in fashion; the first lines indeed are pretty when one considers they were writ by a man of seventy, Lord Bath. The first Epigram was a thought of George Selwyn’s rhimed; the last is scarce a thought at all.

“Ministers, Patriots, Wits, Poets, Paymasters all are dispersed & gone out of town. . . . Adieu! I expect prodigious interest for my pômes.”

The first Poem is headed:—

“Advice of Dr Oliver to Sir John Cope on his getting St Anthony’s fire by drinking the Bath waters out of Miss Molly’s hand. By Lord Bath.”

It comprises 16 lines, and ends:—

“Sip not, dear Knight, the Daughter’s liquid fire,
But take the healing bev’rage from the sire:
Twill ease thy gout—for Love no cure is known;
The God of physic cou’d not cure his own.”

The next, an Epigram of four lines, is entitled “On Ld. Darl[ington]s being made joint paymaster.” Whilst the third is an Epigram of six lines “On Splitting the Pay Office.”

“Holles, not past his childhood yet, retains
The maxims of his Nurse or Tutor’s pains:
Thence did the mighty Babe this truth derive,
Two negatives make an affirmative:
But ah! Two Dunces never made a Wit,
Nor can two Darlingtons compose a Pitt.”

COLLINS (William), 1721-1759.

"One of the most exquisite poets, and of whom, perhaps, without exaggeration it may be asserted, that he partook of the credulity and enthusiasm of Tasso, the magic wildness of Shakespeare, the sublimity of Milton, and the pathos of Ossian."
—Nathan Drake.

581 VERSES HUMBL Y ADDRESS'D TO SIR THOMAS HANMER, ON HIS EDITION OF SHAKESPEAR'S WORKS. By a Gentleman of Oxford.

FIRST EDITION. 12 pp., folio. Morocco, g. e.

London, Printed for M. Cooper, 1743.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. XL.)

£105

William Collins published these verses whilst still a student at Oxford, and a few weeks before he graduated as B.A. He was a friend of Dr. Johnson and became intimate in the literary circles of the day, knowing Armstrong, Quin, Garrick and Foote, forming a special friendship with Thomson. Collins belonged to the new school, represented in criticism and history by his friends the Wartons, who showed the love of the romantic element in literature which was afterwards to become fashionable. The Wartons could appreciate what they could not rival. Gray was his only equal in contemporary poetry.

582 AN EPISTLE: addrest to Sir Thomas Hanmer, on his Edition of Shakespear's Works.

The Second Edition.

To which is added, A Song from the "Cymbeline" of the same Author.

15 pp., folio. Half morocco.

London, Printed for R. Dodsley, 1744.

£35

Referring to Shakespeare and many of the characters created by him. The first edition with the addition of "Song from Cymbeline." Commences:—

" While born to bring the Muse's happier Days,
A Patriot's Hand protects a Poet's Lays:
While nurst by you she sees her Myrtles bloom,
Green and unwither'd o'er his honour'd Tomb:
Excuse her Doubts, if yet she fears to tell
What secret Transports in her Bosom swell:
With conscious Awe she hears the Critic's Fame,
And blushing hides her Wreath at Shakespear's Name" Etc.

Aston, 12th November, 1776.

£3 3S

An interesting sonnet addressed to Dr. Richard Hurd, Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry, who was consecrated 12th February, 1775, and appointed Preceptor to the Prince of Wales and Duke of York in 1776.

"Still let my Hurd a smile of candour lend
To scenes, that dazed on Grecian pennons tower,
When, in low Thurceston's sequester'd bower,
He praised the strain because he loved the friend
There golden Leisure did his steps attend." Etc.

COLMAN (George, the Elder), 1732-1794.

- 596 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED TO DAVID GARRICK.
 2 pp., 4to. 29th August, 1776. £18 18s

A very interesting letter, as it was only the previous March that the feud between Coleman and Garrick had been healed. This letter was written to Garrick just after he had retired from the Stage, and the Prologue to which he refers was evidently written by Garrick for the new partners of Drury Lane. Coleman, in altering certain lines, does so to make reference to Garrick's retirement. His altered lines read:—

“resigns the reins,
 But the new partners of the Old Machine,
 Hoping you'll find it snug, & tight, & clean,
 Now that with much civility they'll treat you,
 Will drive you well, & pleasantly will seat you;
 The road is not all Turnpike—& what worse is,
 We can't insure your watches or y^r purses;
 Yet humbly hope your favour to engage
 To patronize the Royal Drury Stage.”

London, Printed for the Author, 1762.

£10 10s

"The merits of this celebrated composition are indeed undeniable. None but a great poet could have written 'The Shipwreck,' and that great poet must of necessity have been a thorough sailor. What home and its placid attractions are to the landsman, the sea and the storm were to Falconer. He delights in decking the ocean with all the terrific sublimity and wild beauty of which it is capable, and then calling upon us to admire the picture; our admiration may be enforced, but whilst we tremble, we cannot but applaud." (S. Austin Allibone).

The four works bound together. 4to. Old calf. London,
1766-73. £4 4^s

“The Powers of the Pen” is for the most part an attack on Dr. Johnson and his edition of Shakespeare’s works, and contains numerous references to the great poet. The ‘Methodist’ and the ‘Conversation’ both bear Lloyd’s autograph on their titles. Further references are made to Shakespeare and Garrick in the ‘Epistle’ and the ‘Conversation,’ while the frontispiece of the former represents Nature leaning on the sarcophagus of Shakespeare, crowning Genius with laurel.”

THE Taming of a Shrew:

The only way to make a Bad Wife Good is
To keep her quiet, be she bad or good.
Of all the mischief I have known,
There is none like home-kept drif,
When the House peace is continuous,
between the man and wife,
I see how women suffer wrong,
by men that are unkind,
I can no longer hold my tongue,
but must declare my mind,
How much of their wrongs complain,
such mischief daily be,
When want of duty in the main,
make them to disagree.
A hot head is better chaff, then a cold one with a sharp appear,
between the man and wife,
The duty of the man the shrew,
if he observe it well,
his wife will be no shrew,
but friendly with him dwell,
if this duty be sought,
then shall he be his guide,
the which should be his guide,
and love may with him chide,
When will his wife delight not in him,
Let them accept of this counsel from J. B.

As the Old man hath said it be,
And thou and I, shall well agree.

The Counsel of a Father to his Son newly Married.

The First Document.

Young man that now art wedded to a wife,
Till her eyes as the apple of thine eye,
Then if she be of a frowny brow,
Thy love will cease, then wish to her to dye,
even in soft things her beauty do ally,
then though she walk of thine do make their way.
II.
And if thou thinkst thy wedding to be done,
Or rested upon the wedding day,
Then art thou wrong, it is but then begun,
And shall continue till the dying day,
for as a first thou wilt be to be wife,
so shall thou do unto a quiet life.
III.
Thou shalt be still in thine wife as the fish,
Lest thou be content to her every day,
For one loach that is everlastingly fish,
Thou shalt be to be quiet, not yet decay,
if thou shalt love her, do prove,
the I will live with her love to live.
IV.
Speak with her as a wife man ought to do,
And never say to her as a man doth,
Keep company with no man but crew,
Lest that Gods image in thee be decay'd,
for every man doth on his wife complain,
when he the fault doth in himself remain.
V.
Give her such good and dainty clothes to wear,
With meat and drink and all things necessary,
See that thou keep her in no much care,
For this will make her quiet of the weary,
I dare promise that woman will be quiet,
that wanteth no good apparel nor good diet.
VI.
She is thy wife, remember this always,
To fit that she should have these recreations,
Let her not spend the recreation of her days,
At home in sorrow, sorrow with passion,
but walk abroad with her in beauty wide,
as Adam did with Eve in Paradise.

VII.

Each evening when thou sleep these drift awake,
Depart from her to work with cheerful smiles,
Thy love of her is such a measure take,
As if thou wert to go an hundred miles,
the will take do out of it, thou wilt find,
and thou that no night will prove as kind.

VIII.

Thou shalt be still in thine wife as the fish,
Lest thou be content to her every day,
For one loach that is everlastingly fish,
Thou shalt be to be quiet, not yet decay,
if thou shalt love her, do prove,
the I will live with her love to live.

IX.

If that the neighbors do in words abuse her,
Then thou shalt be her friend to take her part,
If she be faulty, modestly excuse her,
And she will love thee then with all her heart,
I mean that I say, and free thy conscience then,
and you will live as if you were in heaven.

X.

Let not thy children nor thy servants fight her,
Lest give her joyful power to correct them,
If any body wrong her, than thou shalt fight her,
If she needs do rule her, thou shalt respect them,
and exercise her with her brother,
I will kindly as thy father and thy mother.

XI.

Above all things my son I thee desire,
Not to be jealous of thy loving wife,
For jealousy is a consuming fire,
And thou shalt never have a quiet life,
then if the chance offend her forget away,
thank thou God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

XII.

A Gentleman be not thou in any wife,
Sooth see the poor, nor meddle with the poor,
Ask not what counsel will the poor follow,
or how much the poor for her lack horse, meddle thou not with poor men nor lack,
left with the ladle like they put do each.

XIII.

Be thou ever in thy calling diligent,
Play not at dice, nor handle not a card,
For these two things will cause thee to repent,
And beggary is the gentleman's just reward,
so with what he can man abroad thus come,
and let their wives and children wait at home.

XIV.

Spread not thy money in a Telling house,
For drunkenness is an odious thing,
Many a man's honor when they do carouse,
And drink's matched from their charity doing,
A drunkard is despised of all, therefore,
make not thy health rich, and thy wife poor.

XV.

If the occasion have abroad to go,
With other women merry fit to be,
They that see thee, this sometimes shall be to,
who shall say, such the never leaders thou,
Answer me this, is the thy wife or Slave?
the is a wife, be not to her a leave.

XVI.

Do not examine her for every penny,
Women have divers ways to lay out coin,
Mankind's never persuaded now by any,
To call for more, than all to her coin,
If she be careful and a loving man,
the shrew will diminish thy pain.

XVII.

If she sometimes her mind to thee do break,
And tell thee with her all things is not right,
and her little finger do her shake,
Growth her up, and that in thee delight,
She'll do as much for thee if need require,
and answer love for love to the desire.

XVIII.

Believe no false reports, nor Standrous words,
In such people speak the loving wife,
They are no better than two edged swords,
which if thou do regard will beed much strife,
Love what thou do'st see of be to their all give,
take her and kiss her eyes before their face.

XIX.

If thou be sometimes craft in the occasion,
First not, nor be thou proud with thy wife,
For the poor heart expects no alteration,
But leaving love as their during thy life,
Beside thy pillow, and let her not know of any thing may bring her care and woe.

XX.

If she be sometimes proud behind thy eye,
And do not think that thou art so good,
For that is the way to make her of thine weary,
And that is a thing will tend by thy disgrace, out of thy wife thou shalt see her in the day,
and if thou be not so, she is made more evil.

XXI.

Remember her not to wrath by words and frowns,
For she is tender creature quickly moved,
And bitter words a tender heart more wounds,
Then all things else from him who once she loved,
for often comes a sharp and bitter word,
doth pierce a woman's heart more than a sword.

XXII.

Keep ever with the weakness of her nature,
Think not thy wife an Angel without fault,
She is as the fall, a weak and erring creature,
Then as the strength performing doth have,
there is to, in vain to be contented,
face thou as well as the best talles to mend.

XXIII.

If thou should doubt that she give honor by it,
And all thy friends shall laugh her face to scorn,
Then and thy wife shall ever live in quiet,
And many graces shall thy house adorn,
Good people will commend thee, heaven shall testify how thou the devil dost begone.

The Conclusion.

If all these rules thou dost observe and keep,
And the occasion in perfection fill,
A half estate half thou then to wall and weep,
the so stored doth almost give my skill,
but yet thou shalt thy comfort much enlarge,
if thou these duties unto her discharge.

601 THE MINSTREL; or the Progress of Genius. A Poem.

FIRST EDITION OF BOTH BOOKS. 4to. Unbound, uncut.

London, 1771-74.

£5 5s

Beattie's most celebrated poem. The harmony of versification and the beauty of the descriptive passages have preserved it from the oblivion which has overtaken so much of the writing of the period. Immediately after its publication Gray wrote to congratulate the author.

SHAKESPEARE'S JUBILEE.

602 TRINCULO'S TRIP TO THE JUBILEE.

FIRST EDITION. 4to. Boards.

London, 1769.

£5 5s

This Poem was written by Edward Thompson, who became a Captain in the Royal Navy. It is a boisterous Ode dedicated to John Hall Stevenson.

“With Shakespeare I sail'd in a Tempest of yore,
 We had land's-men on board of the quality corps,
 And were shipwreck'd by Jove on a comical shore.
 With his up and down.”

“But old captain SHAKESPEARE, the best of all men,
 For who in experience had half such a ken,
 He cou'd raise up a tempest, and lay it again,
 With his up and down.”

That animating grace,
That lively smile, which, when you please,
Can gild your charming face;
From ev'ry frown and angry gesture free,
Say, will you kindly please to smile on me!" Etc., etc.

Referring to the marriage of Mr. Coutts, and as a mark of his good regard for the character and conduct of Mrs. Coutts, he sends her

" . . . a copy of the poor old King's last testimony to mine since which time He has never had it in his power to dictate a letter to anyone. I send her also in my own hand writing a copy of my extemporaneous address to the Shade of the Ayrshire Bard Robert Burns when I crown'd his Bust at the feet of the colossal statue of Sir William Wallace on the Firehill of Dryburgh."

The poem is entitled

"Address to the Shade of the Poet Burns, by the Earl of Buchan when he crowned his bust at Dryburgh, Oct. 15, 1815."

"Poet of Ceila here at Wallace's feet,
Thy generous Muse they manly soul I greet;
Thy soul now sever'd from a servile crew.
And blest, united to the chosen few!" Etc.

£3 10s

Sabin, 79478.

With the original autograph signature of Miss Anna Seward at the end of the Poem.

Major André was chosen by Sir Hy. Clinton to conduct the negotiations with General Benedict Arnold for the surrendering of West Point Fortress, was captured in the American lines when dressed as a civilian, and was hung as a spy. He was, perhaps, the best loved officer in the British Army, and his execution caused a storm of feeling against Washington, who, however, had performed his duty at a great sacrifice to his own feelings. Miss Seward was one of André's earliest friends, and her work shews considerable poetical merit, and contains valuable biographical notes.

615 SONGS OF INNOCENCE AND OF EXPERIENCE, shewing the Two Contrary States of the Human Soul.

8vo. Full polished calf by Bedford.

London, W. Pickering and W. Newbery, 1839. £18 18s

The editor of this volume, whose name does not appear, was James John Garth Wilkinson, homœopathist and translator of Swedenborg.

The circumstances which led to its production were as follows. "In 1838 Mr. Charles Augustus Tulk lent Mr. Wilkinson a copy of Wm. Blake's 'Songs of Innocence and Experience,' a copy of Blake's own making. . . . The delicacy and spiritual simplicity of the Songs made a deep impression on Garth Wilkinson who was himself to do somewhat similar work in his 'Improvisations from the Spirit.' His brother William, holding no lower opinion came forward with the necessary funds; subscribers were sought for high and low; a preface was written and the edition, a thin cloth-bound octavo was published jointly by Pickering & Newbery on July 9, 1839.

It is of much bibliographical interest, but the edition was probably a small one, and the book is now somewhat rare."—Geoffrey Keynes.

G R E A T H E A D (Bertie), 1759-1826.

WITH MRS. SIDDONS' MANUSCRIPT.

- 624 THE REGENT: a Tragedy. As it is acted at the Theatre Royal in Drury Lane.

With Mrs. Siddons' own transcript of the part of Dianora, amounting to 460 lines, entirely in her autograph and signed by her at end, bound in.

Large Paper Copy of FIRST EDITION (of which only 24 copies were issued). 4to. Old half calf.

London, Printed for J. Robson and W. Clarke, 1788. £42

Greathead made the acquaintance of Mrs. Siddons, when, as a girl, she lived with his family at Guy's Cliff in Warwickshire as lady's maid to his mother. At the height of her success he wrote this play for her, and in 1788 it was produced at Drury Lane with Mrs. Siddons in the rôle of Dianora.

Bound up with this volume is her own copy of the part, amounting to 460 lines, entirely in her handwriting and signed at the end.

The Epilogue was written by Mrs. Piozzi, and contains an interesting Shakespearean reference:—

“While Shakespear's tomb o'erlooks the plain below,
Where Avon's consecrated waters flow,
So long, so clear, Britannia's fame shall last
For strength of nature, and for truth of taste.” Etc., etc.

At the end of the volume are a number of cuttings from contemporary newspapers, regarding and describing the performance.

B O W L E S (William Lisle), 1762-1850.

“His was the first significant note of conscious transition from the formalism and the affected classicism of the epoch of Johnson and Pope to the lyric freedom of Wordsworth, Shelley, and Keats.”—Wm. Tirebuck.

His simplicity and earnestness has pensive tenderness, delicate fancy, refined taste, and, above all, his power to harmonise the moods of nature with those of the mind, were the chief merits of his verse.

ALSO AUTOGRAPH POEM ADDRESSED TO THE SAME.

4 pp., folio. Together 16 pp. 20th May, 1731. £5 5s

In which he moralises at great length and in a most interesting manner on Truth, Old Age, Books, etc. Commenting on the Poem, he says:—

“You have at last, such as it is, what I call a Poem on Darkness. You will fancy it pleases me, but if you are not better pleased with it than I am my time & pains have been but indifferently bestow'd. I hope more from your kindness than your judgment. Enough of this.” Etc., etc.

“To write of Darkness now the rising sun
His beams has on the smiling landscape thrown,
Has chas'd the feeble enemy away,
Feeble is Darkness in the month of May.
Of what is horrible esteem'd to write,
To celebrate the Beautyes of the night
Rejoycing in the most delicious light
Unwillingly my Muse attempts.” Etc., etc.

BLOOMFIELD (Robert), 1766-1823.

634 THE FARMER'S BOY; A Rural Poem.

FIRST EDITION. 4to. Uncut copy, bound in half levant morocco, t. e. g., other edges untrimmed.

London, 1800.

£27 10s

Inserted is an original manuscript by Bloomfield, 1 page commencing:—

“Spirit of Burns, the daring child
Of glorious freedom, rough and wild,
How have I wept o'er all thy ills,
How blest thy Caledonian hills!
How allmost worship'd in my dreams
Thy mountain haunts, thy classic streams,
How burnt with more than lowland fire
To mark thy giant strength aspire
In patriot themes; and then to prove Thy wondrous powers in themes of love!” Etc., etc.

and at end—

“From a poem unpublished which very probably will remain so.

Feb., 1809.”

London, 23rd April, 1811. £10 10s

Bloomfield sends the poem on receiving a gift of wild flowers from Mrs. Jones.

“ And so little flowers ye from Isabel came,
 From midst the profusion of Spring!
 How fresh are your hues, how I love your wild name!
 But O, how I wish you could sing!
 Did she pluck ye herself? Then ye mourn for the wound,
 And hang in the posture of woe
 With eyes of pale yellow cast down on the ground,
 While hers are as black as the sloe.” Etc., etc.

Referring to Queen Elizabeth, Shakespeare, Bacon, etc.:

“Thou first Elizabeth, Imperial Maid,
By freeborn subjects willingly obey'd;
Foe to the Tyranny of Spain and Rome.
Abroad respected, and belov'd at home.
Beneath the friendly shelter of thy Throne
Each Act of Peace with useful Lustre shone:
Industrious Commerce courted every Gale,
And spread in distant Worlds her fearless Sail.
Encourag'd Science rear'd her laurel'd Head,
And all the pleasing Train of Muses led.
Lo! Verulam and Shakespear near Thee stand,
Rais'd by thy Smiles to grace this happy Land,
Both dear to Phoebus, sacred both to Fame,
With Princes here an equal Rank they claim;” Etc.

Mentioning Lucretia and Tarquin from Shakespeare's poem "The Rape of Lucrece."

"Had Titian's Pencil, justly term'd Divine,
Been guided by a Hand, a Heart like thine;
Lucretia differently had been express'd,
And kindred Wounds, deep mark'd upon her Breast;
Through well known Passages would Tarquin scape,
The whole an Assignation, not a Rape." Etc.

"Fly me such Friends; no, P—pe, I'de rather chuse
Thee for a Judge of my Dramatick Muse:
Thou who hast wounded my loved Shakespeare's Fame,
And sought to cloud his Glory with thy Name;" Etc.

13 pp., folio. Half morocco, uncut.

London, Printed for J. Robinson, M.D.CC.XXXIX. £3 3s

Referring to Shakespeare's character of Cassius in his play of "Julius Caesar."

"Sore shall He smart, and most severely pay,
Who lets his Passion o'er his Reason sway.
Oft, to his Scorn, shall his unguarded Rage
Act o'er the Part of Cassius on the stage,
Reprove his Friend, upbraid, insult, resent,
Talk like one wild, grow sorry, and repent!" Etc.

The parallel of the above may be found in the quarrel between Cassius and Brutus in the last Act of "Julius Caesar," terminating in Brutus saying:

"O Cassius, you are yoked with a Lamb
That carries anger, as the flint bears fire,
Who much enforced, shews a hasty spark,
And straight is cold again." Etc.

Shakespeare reference:

“What are the Lays of artful Addison,
Coldly correct, to Shakespeare's Warblings wild?
Whom on the winding Avon's willow'd Banks
Fair Fancy found, and bore the smiling Babe
To a close Cavern: (still the Shepherds shew
The sacred Place, whence the religious Awe
They hear, returning from the Field at Eve,
Strange Whisperings of sweet Music thro' the Air)
Here, as with Honey gather'd from the Rock,
She fed the little Prattler, and with Songs
Oft' sooth'd his wondering Ears, with deep Delight
On her solft Lap he sat, and caught the Sounds.” Etc.

Further refers to Hecate, Shakespeare's character in Macbeth:

“While Hecat with her black-brow'd Sisters nine,
Rides o'er the Earth, and scatters Woes and Deaths.” Etc.

An ELEGY on the DEATH
O F
Capt. William Kidd,

Who was Executed at Execution-Dock, on Friday the 23d of this Instant May, 1701.
24. May. 1701.

W H E N any Great and Famous Man does Die,
The World expects to have an ELEGY
Produc'd, to his Immortal Memory:
The End of which, we know, is to declare
What those Great Deeds and Noble Actions were
Which did compleat his Noble Character.
Well then

K I D D was a Man of such undaunted Spirit,
He'd face Hell-Gates, and all the Devils in it,
Were 't possible, to STEAL: A Golden Prize
Did so bewitch his Heart, and charm his Eyes!
When on the Seas proud Waves he boldly rid,
All strove to fly the Great and Mighty K I D D:
So terrible was he, where e'er he came
To ROB; or PLUNDER, that his very Name
Wou'd cause a Trembling Fear and Dread in those Who were his Friends, as well as in his Foes;
Betwixt which Two, he'd no Distinction make,
But ALL THEY HAD at once he'd freely take:
First, Sieze their Lading; next, their Ships destroy. —
In short, No PIRATE cou'd the Seas annoy
More than he strove to do, while in his Pow'r;
For All that came in's Way he did devour.
These Actions rais'd his Fame, and made him Great;
Still climbing high'r, he fell by his own Weight:
GOOD FORTUNE left him, and his POW'R fail'd him,
The DEVIL (ready for him) Goal'd and Hang'd him,
To no one's Sorrow, rather Joy display;
Who weeps to see a Conquer'd BEAST OF PREY?
Thus is he carry'd off this World's wide Stage;
And where it is that he must next engage,
I cannot tell, but leave ye all to guess:
That these are my Thoughts, truly, I confess.
As th' DEVIL is Mankind's Great Enemy,
And K I D D his Humble Servant chose to be Here, while on Earth, his Spirit may be sent
To plague with Storms the Watry Element,
And that may Rob, since 'tis a Faculty
That may stick by him to Eternity.
But be it as it will, since hence he's gone,
This EPITAPH I'll write on his Grave-stone.

E P I T A P H.

R E A D E R, Near this Tomb don't stand,
Without some Effence in thy Hand;
For here K I D D's stinking Corps does lie,
The Scent of which may thee infect:
He Base did Live, and Base did Die,
Therefore his Tomb and Corps reject.
Pity but he in WHITNEY's Grave did lie,
That all might Piss on him, as they pass'd by?
One rais'd his Fame, by Robbing on the SHORE,
The Other on the SEA. — Both now no more.

7 pp., folio. Unbound.

London, Printed for J. Scott, 1757. £8 10s

An extremely interesting poem, in which quotations are introduced from Shakespeare's plays of Hamlet, Macbeth and Richard III.

“ 'Twas, now, the 'witching Time of Night!
' When Church-Yards yawn,' and ev'ry Sprite,
Glides forth to purer Air;
St. Paul's with solemn-swinging Roar,
Groan'd out the tedious Midnight Hour,
And hush'd the Sons of Care.
When, sick with Thoughts (tho' not of State),
But such as haunt the guilty Great,
And watchful Centry keep;
N * * * * * starting from Repose,
Cries, while he snatches up his Cloaths,
That Byng 'has murder'd Sleep.'
Ah! what avails ill-gotten Wealth,
Or Patents gain'd by Power or Stealth,
For Honours yet to come?
' Balm of hurt Minds. Sore Nature's Bath,'
In vain, I call! You shun my Path;
Nay, fly my inmost Room!
' Soft, 'twas a Dream! They nought avail . . .
But ah! who's there, that looks so pale,
So bloody, and so wan?
' Why do you shake your Locks at me?
You cannot say 'tis I' . . . 'twas he!
Oh! think I am but man." Etc., etc.

This poem refers throughout to Admiral George Byng, who after his defeat by the French fleet off Minorca was court-martialed at Portsmouth, sentenced to death, and duly shot on the quarter deck of the Monarque, in Portsmouth Harbour, on 14 March, 1757.

close, Baronet.

With two engravings.

The Second Edition. 84 pp., 4to. Half morocco.

London, Printed for John Bell, 1772.

£2 10s

A long poetical satire on Garrick and Theatrical mismanagement generally. The first vignette pictures Garrick treading on Rowe's edition of Shakespeare, with lines beneath:—

“Behold the Muses Roscius sue in Vain,
Taylors and Carpenters usurp their Reign.”

Continued references are made to Shakespeare throughout the poem:—

“Ev'n mighty Roscius is himself no more;
And for the rest, some few exceptions made,
They sink to criticism's darkest shade;
Scarce more respectable than Falstaff's crew,
Whom Shakespeare paints so laughably to view.”

“To trace my Shakespeare thro' each nobler flight;
Whether he sung ambitious righteous fall,
Or wav'd his pen at freedom's pow'rful call;
Whether he mov'd in high, or humble sphere,
With Juliet sigh'd, or rav'd with frantic Lear;
Shakespeare, so little countenanc'd by you,
Unless in sprightly tale of 'Much Ado.'” Etc.

THE ROMANTIC MOVEMENT

1798-1837.

The great change in the poetry of the end of the eighteenth century and the beginning of the nineteenth was not merely a revolution of artistic methods, but it affected the very soul of poetry. It was the most important change in the history of English literature. It had two sides: one side concerned that of poetic method, and one that of poetic energy. It was partly realistic as seen in Wordsworth's portion of the "Lyrical Ballads," and partly imaginative as seen in Coleridge's portion of that epoch-making book. As the movement substituted for the didactic materialism of the eighteenth century a new temper—or, rather, the revival of an old temper which to all appearance was dead—it has been called the Romantic Period.

MONTGOMERY (James), 1771-1854.

"Delicacy, tenderness, and a sacred feeling of the highest order, mark the effusions of Montgomery's highly-cultivated muse."—T. F. Dibdin.

748 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED, entitled "An Occasional Ode on the Royal British System of Education."

Comprising four verses of eight lines each, on 2½ pp., 4to.
1812. £1 5s

Written for the Anniversary at Free Masons' Hall, 16th May, 1812, the Ode bears a proverb at head:

"Wisdom is the principal thing, therefore get Wisdom, and with all thy getting get Understanding." Proverbs, Chap. IV, v. 7.

The first verse reads:

"Of all that live, and move, and breathe,
Man only rises o'er his birth;
He looks above, around, beneath,
At once the Heir of heaven and earth:
Force, cunning, speed, which nature gave
The various tribes throughout her plan,
Life & enjoy from death to save,
These are the lowest powers of Man." Etc.

749 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED of a Poem entitled "On the Royal Infant Still-born Nov. 5th, 1817."

Contained on 1¼ pp., 4to.

12th November, 1817.

£3 3s

A charming little poem, with quotation from Milton at head. Written on the occasion of Princess Charlotte Augusta (only child of George IV) giving birth to a still-born child. The Princess herself died seven days after the date of the poem.

"A throne in earth awaited thee,
A nation longed to see thy face,
Heir to a glorious Ancestry,
And father of a mightier race.
Vain hope! that throne thou must not fill,
Thee may that nation n'er behold,
Thine ancient house is heirless still,
Thy line shall never be enrolled.
The mother knew her offspring dead;
O, was it grief or was it love—
That broke her heart? The spirit fled
To seek her nameless child above." Etc.

750 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED entitled "Garden Thoughts."

Consisting of 14 verses of six lines each.

Also AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED BY MONTGOMERY, written at the foot of the third page.

Together 3 pp., 4to.

1829 and 1832.

£3 10s

An interesting item addressed to Mr. Saml. Simpson, and consisting of a poem written by Montgomery for a Missionary Bazaar held at York in 1829, and a letter to Simpson written at the end of the poem, and dated 1832.

The first verse of the poem reads:—

"In a Garden, Man was placed,
Meet abode for innocence.
With his Maker's image graced:
Sin crept in and drove him thence,
Through the world, a Wretch undone,
Seeking rest and finding none." Etc., etc.

751 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED to the Rev. John Corbin.

Also AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a "Hymn for a Minister's Jubilee."

Consisting of 6 verses of 4 lines each.

Together 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ pp., 4to.

Sheffield, 12th September, 1850.

£2 10s

" . . . I could not find leisure to frame my mind for the composition of a Hymn on the subject which you recommended. If the foregoing, written on a similar occasion ten years ago, should suit your purpose, I shall be very glad." Etc.

The Hymn commences:—

"A blessing on our Pastor's Head,
Lord God, we fervently implore:
On Him this day, a blessing shed,
For life, for death, for evermore." Etc.

COLERIDGE (Samuel Taylor), 1772-1834.

"His poetry is another matter. It is so beautiful, and so quietly content with its beauty, making no call on the critics, and receiving hardly any notice, that people are but now beginning to awake to a full sense of its merits. Of pure poetry, strictly so called, that is to say, consisting of nothing but its essential self, without conventional and perishing helps, he was the greatest master of his time."—Leigh Hunt.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST, “SURPRIZE” ISSUE, 1811.

758 BEAUTY AND THE BEAST.

FIRST EDITION. With plain plates, in the original blue wrappers, bound in full levant morocco by Morell, t. e. g.

(London, Printed for M. J. Godwin, 1811.)

£150

The front wrapper contains the woodcut illustration “Go, be a Beast!” but without being so lettered. This is the “Surprize” issue. The back wrapper is entirely blank. It was issued without a title-page.

THE ROMANTIC MOVEMENT: LAMB (CHARLES)—continued.

- 759 BEAUTY AND THE BEAST: or, The Enchanted Rose. A Poetical version of an ancient tale.

Illustrated with a series of engravings, and Beauty's Song at her Spinning Wheel; set to music by Mr. Whittaker.

Second Edition. 16mo. Boards, leather back.

London, William Jackson and Co. at the Juvenile Library, 1825. £150

This is a copy with the plates in colours, and with the Music of Beauty's Song printed on two sheets. Both covers carry the woodcut illustration, with the lettering "Go, be a Beast! Homer."

The text of the present copy belongs to the "Surprise" issue of the first edition, the words Second Edition on the title-page being therefore misleading. Probably the unsold copies were bought up by Jackson after Godwin's failure as publisher in 1822, and issued with a new title-page. No other copy with this title-page appears to be known.

- 760 THE NEW YEAR'S FEAST ON HIS COMING OF AGE.

Illustrated with appropriate engravings. (Twelve coloured plates on six sheets).

FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Morocco gilt, with the original printed wrappers bound in at beginning and end.

London, J. Harris and Son, 1824. £250

THIS EXCESSIVELY RARE PIECE HAS APPARENTLY ESCAPED ALL BIBLIOGRAPHERS OF LAMB.

In the Preface it is stated:—

"The following little Poem is principally a versification of a prose composition, which appeared in the London Magazine, for January 1823. The writer thought it might be rendered both amusing and instructive to the young, if cast in a poetic form, and with this view attempted it, with what success the Public must judge. The illustrative Notes are chiefly taken from "Clavis Calendaria," by BRADY, and are designed to assist the juvenile capacity in understanding the allusions in the Poem."

The prose composition mentioned is Lamb's Essay entitled "Rejoicings upon the New Year's Coming of Age," which was reprinted in "Last Essays of Elia."

The poem itself is almost a word for word versification of the prose piece.

THE EXCESSIVELY RARE BOSTON ISSUE.

761 POETRY FOR CHILDREN, ENTIRELY ORIGINAL. By the Author of "Mrs. Leicester's School."

12mo. In the original binding of boards, leather back, preserved in a morocco pull-off case.

Boston, Published by West and Richardson, 1812. £250

This, the First American Edition of "Poetry for Children" is equally as rare as the first edition published in London in 1808. Lamb, in a letter to Mrs. Norris in 1833 referring to "Poetry for Children," stated:—

"The first volume printed here is not to be had for love or money, not even an American edition of it. It is much the same as the London one."

This American edition included only 81 out of the 84 pieces of the first edition.

We are unable to trace a reference to the sale of a copy in any of the American Auction Sale Records.

LANDOR (Walter Savage), 1775-1864.

"We place Landor, who was greater, even, as a prose-writer, among the foremost poets, because it was the poetry within the man that made him great; his poetry belongs to a high order of that art, while his prose, though strictly prosaic in form—he was too fine an artist to have it otherwise—is more imaginative than other men's verses. Radically a poet, he ranks among the best essayists of his time; and he shares this distinction in common with Milton, Coleridge, Emerson, and other poets, in various eras, who have been intellectual students and thinkers."
—Edmund C. Stedman.

A king, a God: look up Persephone.
Behold again the land where thou wast born,
The fields where first thy mother from her knee
Let down with both her hands thy dimpled feet,
Cautiously, slowly, where the moss was soft
And crowds of violets bent their heads around." Etc., etc.

"No poet of the nineteenth century has, in my estimation, a higher rank than Thomas Campbell; no one is more universally admired, and no one will be longer remembered. His exquisite harmony of versification, his occasional sublimity, his enthusiasm, his pathetic tenderness, his richness of natural description, together with his elevation and purity of moral sentiment, all combine to make him a classic secure of his immortality—standing upon the same shelf with Goldsmith, Thomson and Gray." —Charles D. WITH LENGTHY BALLAD.

769 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED to "My dear Beattie."

1 page, 4to. Ems, 30th August, 1841.

Also, on fly-leaf, AUTOGRAPH BALLAD entitled "The Hind and Child."

Comprising 34 verses of four lines each.

Together £7 10s

In his letter Campbell says:—"The writing of this ballad has a little fever'd me—I knew it would. I strove against rhyming, but the story haunted me & could not help myself. May I ask you to tell Mrs. Colburn that I have finish'd a poem . . . for his intended Annual." Etc.

This lengthy Ballad of 34 verses commences:—

"Ye maids and Matrons come, caress
Weisbaden's gentle Hind
And smiling deck his glossy neck
With forest flowers entwin'd." Etc., etc.

770 "ON FINISHING AN ACCOUNT OF THE PLANETARY SYSTEM," being an Exercise, in the form of a Poem, in the Autograph of Thomas Campbell when a boy at school.

Extending to 1½ pp., 4to.

£5 5s

The first verse reads:—

"Celestial Ruler of the boundless plan
That guidst the thoughts and swayst the heart of man
Still mighty Sire direct thy willing mind
In each improving scene delight to find
Still be it mine to dart the admiring gaze
Thro all the attributes and wondrous ways
And (far as mortal may the theme pursue)
By nature let, thy providence to view
Teach me to search with contemplation's eye
Through countless worlds, omnipotence on high
To view thy terrors in the driving storm
Or bounteous grace in Autumn's milder form
With heart o'erflowing let me view the power
That sheds benign the spring's returning show'r
And whilst thy voice bids slumbring nature wake
Let gratitude arise and all its joys partake."

Comprising 7 verses of four lines each and an explanatory note at foot. Contained on 2 pp., 4to. N.D. £2 2s

"A parrot from the Spanish Main
Full young and early caged came o'er,
With bright wings to the bleak domain
Of Mulla's shore." Etc., etc.

- 772 AUTOGRAPH POEM SIGNED, addressed "To Sir Francis Burdett, on his speech delivered in Parliament Aug. 7, respecting the Foreign Policy of Great Britain."

3 pp., 4to. N.D. £3 10s

"Demand, Burdett, why Britons send abroad
Soft greetings to the infanticidal Czar,
The Bear on Poland's babes that wages war.
Once we are told a Mother's shriek, o'er awed
A lion, and he dropt her lifted child.
But Nicholas, whom neither God nor Law,
Nor Poland's shrieking mothers overawe
Outholds to us his friendship's gory clutch;
Shrink, Britain, shrink, my King and Country, from the touch."
Etc.

- 773 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT entitled "Song—Pons Assinorum, or the Asses Bridge."

Consisting of seven verses of 4 lines each on 2 pp., 8vo.

Dated from the Mathematick Class, 15th December, 1795.

£2 10s

Written by Campbell in the mathematic class whilst at the University. The Manuscript is headed "Song. Pons Assinorum, or the Asse's Bridge. Tune. Duke of York's March."

"As Millars Hussars march'd up to the Wars
With their Captain in person before 'em,
It happen'd one day that they met in their way
With the dangerous Pons Assinorum.
Now see the bold band, each a sword in his hand,
With his Euclid for Target before him,
Not a soul of them all, could the dangers apall,
Of the hazardous Pons Assinorum.
Now it chanced in the van, stood a comical man,
Who as Millar strode bravely before him,
To his sorrow soon found, that his brains were wheel'd round
As he march'd to the Pons Assinorum." Etc.

- 776 AUTOGRAPH TRANSCRIPT of "Joseph's Lament," from the "Mirror."

On 2½ pp., folio. Circa 1828.

£3 3s

"Joseph's Lament" (in prose and poetry) was apparently an article published in The Mirror on Grimaldi's retirement from the stage, and of this Grimaldi made an autograph transcript.

"Adieu to Mother Goose!—adieu—adieu
To spangles, tufted heads, and dancing limbs,— Adieu to Pantomime—to all—that threw O'er Christmas' shoulders a rich robe of whims!" Etc.

- 777 AUTOGRAPH POEM SIGNED.

Consisting of ten lines on 1 page. Small 4to.
28th April, 1835.

£2 2s

Being a receipt in Rhyme.

"The joke was explained, there was a reaction
All's well that ends well, to entire satisfaction.
As an acknowledgment's due, for goods purchased by you
By way of receipt I send it in Rhyme.

M O O R E (Thomas), 1779-1852.

“ Moore has a peculiarity of talent, or rather talents,—poetry, music, voice, all his own; and an expression in each which never was, nor will be, possessed by another.”—Lord Byron.

778 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Poem entitled “ News for Country Cousins.”

Comprising 40 lines on 2 pp., 4to.

September, 1826.

£3 10s

“ Dear Coz, as I know neither you nor Miss Draper,
When Parliament's up, ever take in a paper,
But trust for your news to such stray odds & ends
As you chance to pick up from political friends,
Being one of this well-inform'd class, I sit down
To transmit you the last newest news that's in town.
As to Greece & Lord Cochrane, things couldn't look better,
His Lordship (who promises now to fight faster)
Has just taken Rhodes & dispatch'd off a letter
To Daniel O'Connell, to make him grand master,
Engaging to change the old name, if he can,
From the Knights of St. John to the Knights of St. Dan;
Or, if Dan should prefer (as a still better whim)
Being made a Colossus, tis all one to him.” Etc.

779 THE CORRECTED PROOF OF HIS PRINTED POEM “ ODE TO DON MIGUEL.”

With several corrections in the Poet's hand, including one of three lines. N.D.

£2 10s

The poem, which consists of 8 four-lined verses, commences:—

“ What! Miguel, not patriotic? eh, fy!
After so much good teaching 'tis quite a take-in Sir;—
First school'd as you were, under Metternich's eye,
And then (as young missis say) 'finish'd at Windsor!
I ne'er in my life knew a case that was harder;—
Such feasts as you had, when you made us a call!
Three courses each day from His Majesty's larder—
And now, to turn absolute Don, after all! !” Etc.

£16 16s

An interesting item, being the original manuscript of Elliott's first tragedy, which he presented to his friend, John Fowler.

HUNT (J. H. Leigh), 1784-1859.

“Poetry was his first, his last, his most constant love; and if by prose he had to win the meat and the raiment of life it was poetry that to him was life itself. In one respect—and sufficient note has hardly been taken of it—Hunt’s place is a singularly high one, for he is among the originators.”—J. Ashcroft Noble.

782 AUTOGRAPH POEM.

1 page, 8vo (eight lines). Circa 1859.

£1 10s

“Thus chatting and singing, they sat till eleven,
When Phoebus shook hands, and departed for heaven;
'For poets' he said, 'who would cherish their powers,
And hoped to be deathless, must keep to good hours.'” Etc.

PEACOCK (Thomas Love), 1785-1866.

“It is time, however, that his claims in verse should be vindicated, and a place demanded for him as an independent figure in the crowded Parnassus of his,—a place a little below the highest.”—Edmund Gosse.

- 784 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED, being a verse to be addressed to himself by Harry Sedgwick, and also Peacock's reply.

1½ pp., 4to.

December, 1805.

£10 10S

"Thee T. L. Peacock I address in rhyme,
 Tho' not like thee, I make my verse sublime,
 Yours I have read, I do them much commend
 To two more books, pray be so good to send
 In bird like name you soar above the throng,
 You edify in verse, they please in song,
 Long may the muses gift remain with thee.
 And add new lustre to thy poetry.
 May every Earthly happiness attend
 You, as my companion and my friend.

Answer: Your friendly verse was quite a treat
 To me, who love the short and sweet,
 Alike of rhyme and wit observant.
 It vastly pleas'd your humble servant,
 The bellman now his blessing sends
 To all his customers and friends.
 In dismal sonnets nightly crving
 Because the poor old year is dying." Etc.

- 785 THE AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED (WITH INITIALS) OF TWO PROLOGUES.

2 pp., 4to. N.D.

£10 10S

Two Addresses written by Peacock: (1) to be spoken by Lieutenant Lascelles previous to the comedy of John Bull; (2) to be spoken by Lt. Howerfield.

" . . . John Bull is a compound of firmness and wildness,
 Blending courage with feeling, and spirit with mildness,
 To those who embrace him he gives a good greeting;
 To those who insult him he gives a good beating;
 And proves that John Bull, wheresoever he goes,
 Has a hand for his friends and a fist for his foes.
 Again for our scenes we those ensigns display,
 Which triumph'd with Duncan on Camperdown's day;
 And should the proud foe on the wide-rolling main,
 Bid the Ven'erable wave them in battle again,
 Victorious again o'er the deep she shadd ride,
 And bring one trophy more to John Bull's fireside."
 "Friends! Countrymen! Judges! who, ranged in your stations,
 Look with critical eye on our stage decorations,
 Attend to a manager's humble petition,
 Who your favour demands for this night's exhibition,
 We dazzle your eye with no changes of scenery,
 Triumphal processions, or magic machinery;
 No thunderstorm rattles, no witch intervenes;
 A flag is our curtain, and flags are our scenes." Etc.

WRITTEN IN VERSE AT 16 YEARS OF AGE.

- 786 TWO AUTOGRAPH LETTERS SIGNED, written entirely in verse, to his Grandfather and Grandmother.

4½ pp., 4to.

London, July and August, 1801.

£52 10s

Extremely interesting letters written entirely in verse when Peacock was only sixteen years of age. He gives his grandfather news of the fleet and relates to his grandmother all the gossip of the town.

“ When of late Spanish batt’ries a vict’ry obtain’d,
Which the French proudly boasted their squadron had gain’d,
They spread over France a most wonderful story,
Declaring their Navy was ‘cover’d with glory!’
‘To the Temple of Fame they would quickly advance,
Through the valorous deeds of the sailors of France!’
But when gallant Saumarez once more drew nigh,
These laurel-crown’d heroes thought proper to fly,
They spread all their canvass of magnanimous elves!
To let the poor Dons fight it out by themselves!
And like true Gallic tars, to whom fear was a stranger,
They ‘fled from their friends at the moment of danger!’
‘What! fight de Jack Tar when no batt’ries are near,
Dey would send us away vid de flea in our ear!’” Etc., etc.

WHITE (Henry Kirke), 1785-1806.

- 787 MANUSCRIPT IN HIS AUTOGRAPH.

12 lines of verse, on 1 page, 4to, headed “Song,” and beginning, “Yes, once more that dying strain,” etc. £3 10s

- 788 AUTOGRAPH POEM, entitled “On Music.”

Comprising nine verses of 4 lines each.

Also AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED to the Editor of the “Monthly Mirror,” enclosing same.

Together 2½ pp., 4to. Circa 1800.

£6 10s

In his letter the poet writes:—

"A WINTER'S TALE."

789 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT OF A POEM.

Contained on 1½ pp., 4to.

£6 6s

"To gain fresh matter for a winters tale
Nor long ungratified in word concealed,
Near to a font which to his wants do yield,
By moon beams see the hermit pass along
And unsuspecting chants his evening song." Etc.

790 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT.

Comprising 12 lines on 1 page, 4to.

£3 10s

"What is this happiness of man
Its shadow, catch it if you can.
Is it in wealth & gay parade
Proud nature tells you, all must fade;
She holds the key of human hearts,
Opens to vice, & limpid darts,
Carries her victim, in false pleasures train,
Raises to hope but soon to fall again,
So drear, so desolate an abyss,
You know not in the vortex, that from this,
You feel the shock, but inward know no pain,
But drinking largely sets you right again."

791 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of 28 lines.

1 page, folio. Circa 1832.

£5 5s

"This is the hour, when sluggards are in sleep,
That genius soars the air, or scours the deep,
Brings to this vision, all the days gone by,
This heart, the good & ill which in it lie
Looks on proud man, but as a worldly thing,
Scarcely a shade twixt Beggar & a King,
Whipt in his childhood, in manhood trained,
In all the vices which the fallen stained." Etc.

PROCTER (B. W., "Barry Cornwall"), 1787-1874.

"An elegant poet, and a reproducer, in the form of fragments, of many of the Elizabethan dramatists. Graceful, tender, finished, and with the true spirit of a high-class gentleman in all he writes and does, there are few pleasanter books than Barry Cornwall's 'Songs and Dramatic Scenes.'"—J. H. Friswell.

792 AUTOGRAPH POEM entitled "The Pauper's Jubilee."

Consisting of some seventy lines on 4 pp., 8vo. With authentication note on foot by S. C. Hall, the Author and Editor.

£1 18s

"Hurrah! Who was e'er so gay
As we merry folk to-day!
Brother beggars, do not start,
But toss your rags into the air,
And cry, 'No work, and better fare!
Each man, be he saint or sinner,
Shall to-day have—MEAT for dinner!" Etc., etc.

793 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED to Ignaz Moschelles, the Composer.
1 page, 8vo. 1832. 18s 6d

Sending the third verse of a song, which he sets out in the letter.

"I send you the third verse of your little song, which I hope you will complete. If you do not, I shall consider that you do not consider Mrs. Moscheles to be worth a third verse." Etc.

794 AUTOGRAPH POEM SIGNED ("Barry Cornwall"), entitled "Il Penseroso and L'Allegro."

Comprising 52 lines on 3 pp., 8vo.

£3 10s

Night

"Old Thames! thy merry waters run
Gloomily, without star or sun;
The wind blows o'er thee, wild and loud,
And Heaven is in its death-black shroud." Etc.

Morning

"Tis dawn,—tis Day! In floods of light
He drives back the dark and shrinking Night.
The clouds?—they're lost. The rains?—they're fled:
And the streets are thronged with a busy tread.
And thousands are thronging, with gossip gay,
To see how a felon will die to-day." Etc.

795 Two AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPTS entitled "A Wise Man's Counsel" and "A Farewell to Home."

Together 6 pp., 8vo.

£3 3s

A Wise Man's Counsel.

"I came into the world, as others do,
Life quickening in my limbs, the burning blood
Racing through every vein & artery;
Free, vigorous, healthy, tuned to passionate themes,
And born for pleasure. I grew up—a man,
My spirit ripening as my limbs waxed strong:
I read, marked, hoarded, heaped up word on word,
And thought on thought; & when severer years
Banished bright Hope, & quelled my April laugh,
And hung the future round with clouds of care,
Men dreamed that I was wise.

Alas! I lost
The fruit of wisdom,—joy. I smiled, indeed,
As, day by day, I reckoned up my gains,
And learned how I had toiled, as sage men do,
Accumulating riches for no end.
But still I was called wise,—& that sufficed." Etc., etc.

A Farewell to Home.

"The winds are loud; the sky is wild;—
Sad Nature, moun'st thou for thy child,
From flowers, and air, and green fields driven,
And all the beauteous face of Heaven,
Into the wilderness of stone,—
Destined there to live alone,
Toiling upwards, day by day,
For the Fame that lives by aye,
And for Fortune (golden sun)
And all else that must be won." Etc., etc.

796 AUTOGRAPH POEM SIGNED "B. C.," entitled "Ovid in Pontus."

Consisting of twenty-eight lines on 2 pp., 8vo. 1823. £1 1s

"Hard by the banish'd Euxine (a black doom!)
Haunted the poet Ovid. He was sent
With love upon his soul to banishment,
And sank, an amorous meteor, quench'd in gloom.
Bright tears were lost when Ovid died. A man
Who loved and mourned so sweetly, well might win
Melodious sorrow for his unknown sin." Etc.

- 797 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED of a Poem, "To My Child, written on her Birthday, Oct. 30th, 1825."

Comprising 14 lines on 1 page, 8vo. 1825. £3 3s

One of the most famous of his poems, occasioned by the birth of his first born, Adelaide A. Proctor, the well-known author of the "Lost Chord" and other poetic pieces, which were subsequently published under the title of "Legends and Lyrics," and edited by Charles Dickens.

The poem is signed "B.C." (Barry Cornwall). It is referred to in the Dictionary of National Biography, and commences:—

"Child of my heart! My sweet beloved first-born!
Thou dove, who tidings bringst of calmer hours!
Thou rainbow who does come when all the showers
Are past or passing! Rose which hath no thorn!
No pain, no blemish; pure and unforlorn;
Untouched, untainted;—O' my flower of flowers!
More welcome than to bees are summer bowers,—
To stranded seamen life—assuring morn!" Etc.

- 798 AUTOGRAPH POEM SIGNED "B. C.," entitled "Church Bells Heard at Evening."

Consisting of four verses of five lines each, on 1 page, 8vo.

N.D. £1 8s

'O! Melancholy bells, who toll the way
To dusty death!
O! damp, green, grassy churchyard—moulds of clay
Arched inwards by grey bones, which once (men say),
Where moved by breath!" Etc.

- 799 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED (INITIALS) to Mrs. Lehmann, written in verse.

2 pp., 8vo. Pau, 1866/67. £1 1s

" . . . Thus far!—I can travel no farther my pen
Becomes feeble and inkless—what praises from Men
My dear Nina, can die with the shout and the jest
That springs from the children you still love the best
Who cluster around you and tempt you to dream
Of the dear old North Country of Mountain and Stream
(In dream! ah perhaps you may dream of your Fred
If so I give up—There's no more to be said.)" Etc.

- 800 AUTOGRAPH POEM SIGNED, entitled "On Miss Fanny Kemble's Eyes."

Consisting of some 35 lines on 2 pp., 4to.

Nov., 20th, 1830.

£1 10s

The first verse of this charming poem, which is signed in full "Barry Cornwall" and dated, reads:—

"Where now are those dark eyes—(sweet eyes!),
In tears?—in thought?—in sleep?
Those lights, like stars in the stormy skies,
Which gently shine—when all else weep?
O, dark, unconquered eyes!
Are ye from human anguish freed?
Or do ye sometimes mourn indeed,
In pity—or superior pain
For some deep secret hid from all the world—in vain?" Etc.

- 801 AUTOGRAPH POEM SIGNED ("Barry Cornwall"), entitled "A Night Sketch—taken near Newgate."

Comprising 18 verses of six lines each, on 4 pp., 8vo.

Circa 1838.

£3 18s

A graphic description of London vice and poverty. Published in "Friendships Offering."

"Where dwell'st thou? 'Near this den of stone
I like to live: I scarce know why;
For oft the prisoners shriek. At times,
Indeed, I more contented lie,
Hearing of wrongs more deep than mine;
And then I pray for those about to die." Etc.

BYRON (Lord), 1788-1824.

“Byron has stirred England more deeply than any other poet since the earlier years of the seventeenth century, who has influenced human kind outside England more widely and profoundly than any writer of our literature, and who, in whatever else of his aspirations he failed, will be found in the slowly moving ages to have achieved his ambition to be ‘remembered in his line with his land’s language.’”

Smile on a Grecian true,
Ellen for love of you,
Quite metamorphos'd from Blacksmith to Beau;
Hair comb'd & gloves so new Grave your trim Roderic Dhu

While every Gownsmen cries wondering Ho Ho!
In Greek I believe I must utter my passion
For Greek's more familiar than English to me
And Byron has lately brought Greek into fashion
There's some in his fair Maid of Athens—let's see." Etc., etc.

CLARE (John), 1793-1864.

"John Clare is entitled to a high place, if not to the highest, among the 'uneducated' poets of England. His keen observation of nature amounted to a genius; his delicacy of painting natural objects, whether a flower, a tree, a sunset, or a spring scene, was next to marvellous. He owed little to books, but wrote from his heart. He saw things with the eye of a true poet, and as he observed, so did he write."—Samuel Smiles.

824 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED to Messrs. Taylor and Hessey, with Autograph Poem of seven verses of eight lines entitled "Hymn to Spring."

6th December, N.Y. Circa 1821.

An interesting letter sending a poem to Spring, which he thinks worthy of insertion in a magazine, apparently the London Magazine, which passed into the hands of Taylor and Hessey in 1821, and mentioning his preference for Wordsworth rather than Crabbe.

"I was concluding my 'winter' last night with an addressing verse to Spring & finding ideas crowd upon me I found a poem must inevitably follow, such as it is you have it. . . . I like Wordsworth better than Crabbe, after all. I can read a poem of the former twice over with added pleasure & feel satisfvd with the latter for the first time, & if I take him again my former fondness dwindles to mawkishness but W. W.'s nursery rhymes are ridiculous so much so that reading them gives me the itch of parody which I cannot resist. I did one the other day to ease my mind, you may see it in my next."

The poem commences:—

"Thou virgin bliss the seasons bring,
Thou yet beloved in vain,
I long to hail thee gentle spring
And meet thy face again.
That rosebud cheek that sunlit eye,
Those locks of fairest hue,
Which zephirs wave each minute bye
And show thy smiles anew." Etc., etc.

825 EXTREMELY INTERESTING COLLECTION OF MANUSCRIPTS, etc., in the hand of John Clare, the "Peasant Poet," comprising:

TWELVE AUTOGRAPH POEMS extending to 19 pages, folio.

AUTOGRAPH RECEIPT from Clare respecting some of his Manuscripts.

AUTOGRAPH LETTER concerning a medal in his possession.

1 page, folio. Together 20 pp., folio.

£42

An exceedingly interesting collection of manuscripts, etc., by John Clare, the "Northamptonshire Peasant Poet," including a receipt for six pounds for some manuscripts which he had disposed of to Mrs. Drury, a bookseller of Stamford who first suggested the publication of a volume of Clare's poems.

The letter from Clare, asks for advice as to selling a medal which he had in his possession, "the disposal of it would help me to a little money."

We append below a few extracts from Clare's poems:—

A Ploughman's Skill at Classification.

" 'Go wipe your shoes' says mistress shrew
To Hodge who up for's dinner drew
'Tisn't fitting that such hogs as you
Should come into a house.'
'Why not?' says Hodge—'if thats the case
I cant come in a better place
For surely there is no disgrace
For hogs to herd wi' sows.'"

Dollys Mistake.

"Ere the sun oer the hills round & red 'gan a peeping
To beckon the chaps to their ploughs
Too thinking & restless all night to be sleeping
I brush off to milking my cows
To get my jobs forward—& eager preparing
To be off in time to the wake
There yielding so freely—a kiss for a fairing
I kickt up a shocking mistake." Etc.

"How d'ye do" and "Good Bye."

"Come muse brush up to try thy skill
When patrons bid thee try
Be thine the pride to sing the theme
Of 'how do' and 'good bye.'
This vain worlds manners, trust & hope
By each discerning eye
Is plain enough observ'd to be
A how do & good bye." Etc.

An Effusion to Poetry.

“ Despis’d, unskill’d, or how I will Sweet poetry I love thee still Vain (cheering comfort) tho I be
I still must love thee poetry
A poor rude clown & what of that
I cannot help the will of fate
A lowly clown altho I be
Nor can I help it loving thee
Still must I love thee sweetest charm
Still must my soul in raptures warm
Still must my rudeness pluck the flower
Thats plucked in an evil hour
While learning scowls her scornful brow
And damps my soul—I know not how Labour ’cause thou’rt mean & poor
Learning spurns thee from her door
But despise thee how she will Poetry I love thee still.” Etc.

The Contrast

Beauty and Virtue.

“ As oer the gay pasture went rocking a clown
A gay gaudy buttercups gold fringed gown
Engaged his attentions as passing her bye
And rudely to gain her he stooped a down
Its beauty so dazzled his eye.
By outside appearance the senseless are caught
And beautvs gay triumph is foolish and short
With nothing to gain the attention beside Possession soon sickens—& fleet as a thought
Beauty slips us forgotten aside.” Etc.

833 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED to Miss Lilly Greenwood.

3 pp., 4to. (14th June, 1842.) £2 10S

An interesting letter on a variety of subjects. Describing a birth-day party at which he was present and concluding with 20 lines of verse.

... By the way, Dear Lilly, Let me give you a piece of advice. Whenever an old gentleman, from whom a legacy may be expected, is in to company, never mind what he is saying, for if you do you will be apt to laugh when he intends to be quite serious, & to look as if you could not help it, if he thinks himself prodigious by fancy. Use your eyes more than your ears. You may see a joke as sailors see a breeze long before it comes. I would therefore advise you to have a store of recollections at which you can always laugh & just think of them. It may procure you a bequest of a thousand pound. If on the other hand the old bachelor looks very solid with a countenance that might do better to settle love than cold pudding (which it will strongly resemble) prick up your ears (it's a pity that human ears are not movable, like those of the Ape, but that can't be help'd) cast up your eyes & look all the time as if you would drink in every word, & cast them down now and then, which betokens modesty, a very legacy procuring quality in young ladies. As for crying I need not give you any hints about that, all young ladies can do extempore." Etc.

Sacrament Hymn

On a fair Sabbath day, when his banquet is spread,
 It is pleasant to feast with my Lord:
 His stewards stand loved at the foot & the head
 Of the soul-filling life-giving board

All the guests here had burthens; but by the King's ^{grace}
 We left them behind when we came;
 The burthen of wealth and the burthen of want
 And even the burthen of shame.

And oh! when we take them again at the gate,
 Though still we must bear them awhile,
 Much smaller they'll seem in the lane that ^{leads} ~~grows~~ ^{strait}
 And much lighter to lift at the stile.

For that which is in us is life to the heart,
 Is dew to the soles of the feet,
 Fresh strength to the loins, giving ease from their ^{strain}
 Warmth in front, & a breeze in the heat.

Together handsomely bound in full levant morocco extra, lettered on side and back. Small 4to. £4²

The original manuscripts of five out of the nine pieces contained in the pamphlet. The first ballad commences:—

"Well we know from saga
And from scaldic lore,
That heroic warriors
Were the Danes of yore.
That the noble schildings,
And the men they led,
Oft for Danish honour
Stoutly fought and bled." Etc.

879 A VERY FINE COLLECTION OF 30 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPTS OF POEMS IN THE HAND OF ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING COVERING SOME 105 PAGES, TOGETHER WITH TWO NOTE-BOOKS CONTAINING A NUMBER OF AUTOGRAPH POEMS ON 62 PAGES. There are also in the collection—the rough draft and a fair copy—of an essay “On English Composition” both signed “E. B. Barrett” and one of them dated Oct. 15, 1819, at which time Mrs. Browning was only 10 years of age.

Several of the Poems are signed either with her initials or her full name.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. XLI.)

£550

Mrs. Browning took the greatest trouble in perfecting her work and published only the results which pleased her. This collection shows the care which she exercised in her search for the right line or word, there being in some cases three and four copies of a poem each showing slight variations, and sometimes several alternative lines or words in one copy.

Many of them, as far as we can trace, have not been published, and those that have differ considerably from the printed versions and in places appear under different titles. Notes on the backs of some pages seem to indicate that these were prepared for the publisher.

The collection contains, among others, the following poems :

A Lament for Adonis.

The New Amadis.

The Convert.

The Lady.

Anacreon's Grave.

Limits of Humanity.

The Divine.

The Fisherman.

LONGFELLOW (Henry W.), 1807-1882.

"Mr. Longfellow's poetry displays a very refined taste, and a very pure vein of poetical feeling. It possesses what has been a rare quality in the American poets—simplicity of expression, without any attempt to startle the reader, or to produce an effect by far-sought epithets. There is much sweetness in his imagery and language."—G. B. Cheever.

881 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED OF A POEM.

Consisting of 5 stanzas, entitled "GOLDEN SUNSET" with his account of why the verses were written.

3 pp., 4to. N.D. (April, 1858).

£7 15s

"The following verses were written as words to a bit of colour-music; one of an interesting series of water-colour sketches by Mr. Charles Ponsons of this City. . . . These recollections fixing thus the most evanescent of natural glories, will reveal something of the infinite variety of nature to many minds who perhaps have thought that a sunset was a sunset. . . .

'The golden sea its mirror spreads
Beneath the golden skies,
And but a narrow strip between
Of land and shadow lies.'" Etc., etc.

TURNER (Charles Tennyson), 1808-1879.
(Brother of Alfred Lord Tennyson.)

"Although strikingly original, both in subject and treatment, Mr. Turner's muse cannot fail to suggest the piety, purity, and simplicity of Cowper; the deep, calm, reflective vein, with spirit analogies and teachings from nature, which is characteristic of Wordsworth; and also the condensation, felicitous epithet, and the exquisitely polished, careful art-finish of his brother, the Poet Laureate."—A. J. Symington.

Consisting of 8 verses of eight lines each on 3½ pp., 4to.

18th May, 1858.

The poem commences:—

"Brave singer of the coming time,
Sweet minstrel of the joyous present
Crowned with the noblest wreath of rhyme,
The holly-leaf of Ayrshire's peasant.
Goodbye! goodbye! our hearts and hands,
Our lips in honest Saxon phrases
Say God be with him till he stands
His feet amid his English daisies!

"Tis here we part. For other eyes
The busy deck, the fluttering stream,
The dripping arms that plunge and rise
The waves in foam, the ship in tremor,
The kerchiefs waving from the pier,
The cloudy pillar gliding o'er him,
The deep blue desert lone and drear
With Heaven above and home before him!" Etc., etc.

THE "TRIAL" EDITION.

897 BECKET. A Tragedy.

Crown 8vo (pp. 123), handsomely bound by Riviere in full crushed levant morocco extra, uncut, t. e. g.

London, 1879.

£85

With the exception of the "Trial" editions of the Foresters, 1881, The Cup and The Falcon, 1882, and The Promise of May, 1883 (of each of which a single copy only is known to exist), this first privately printed edition of Becket is the rarest of all the author's privately printed plays. Four copies only can at present be recorded.

"In 1879 my father printed the first proofs of his tragedy of Becket, which he had begun in December, 1876. But he considered that the time was not ripe for its publication; and this therefore was deferred until December, 1884."—Alfred Lord Tennyson. A Memoir. By his Son. London: 1897, Vol. II, p. 193.

William Allingham records in his diary, under the date of August 5, 1880, that Tennyson said to him:

"I gave Irving my 'Thomas à Becket': he said it was magnificent, but it would cost him £3,000 to mount it: he couldn't afford the risk. If well put on the Stage it would act for a time, and it would bring me credit (he said), but it wouldn't pay. He said, 'If you give me something short I'll do it.' So I wrote him a play in two acts, The Cup."

Although the play was written as early as 1879 and printed in that year, it was not published until 1884. A comparison of the text of this private issue with that of the published edition of 1884 shows a large number of variations.

WITH AUTOGRAPH LETTER.

898 BECKET. A Tragedy in a Prologue and Four Acts. As arranged for the Stage by Henry Irving and presented at the Lyceum Theatre on 6th February, 1893.

900 THE FALCON.

THE FIRST TRIAL EDITION. Post 8vo. Wrappers, uncut.

London, Printed for the Author, 1879. £10 10s

"This private edition of 'The Falcon' was evidently prepared by the poet with the greatest possible care and finish.

"One of the most interesting results achieved by a study of these early 'Trial-books' is the insight obtained into the method employed by the Laureate in elaborating his work. Again and again did the Poet correct and revise his lines, and introduce or delete entire passages, sometimes of considerable length, only in the end to cancel or discard his revisions, and finally fix upon the text as it stood in his earliest draft."—(Mr. T. J. Wise's Bibliography).

901 HELEN'S TOWER, CLANDEBOYE.

Engraved title.

FIRST EDITION. 4to. Original wrappers, g. e.

Privately Printed (1861). £21

Tennyson contributed to this, the poem:—

"Helen's Tower, here I stand,
Dominant over sea and land." Etc.

In 1870 Robert Browning contributed a poem which was inserted in the copies which had not been distributed, and his poem is inserted in the present copy.

902 THE HOLY GRAIL AND OTHER POEMS.

An unrecorded Trial Edition, largely re-set, with corrections and additional poems.

12mo. In the original green paper wrappers.

Strahan and Co., London, 1869.

£85

Probably unique—the copy sent to Sir James Knowles for proof reading, with the following pencil note of instructions on fly-leaf:—

“ 4 Proofs tonight—stitched ”
“ stitch this copy as well.”

There are numerous corrections and additions throughout the volume, a few being in the hand of Tennyson, but the majority by James Knowles, including a note written by him said to have been dictated by Tennyson on the origin of “The Golden Supper.”

The short poem entitled “The Minute” is omitted in the published edition of 1870.

The collation of our copy is as follows:—

Collation: Half-title, note on reverse “These four ‘Idylls of the King’ are printed. . . .”; contents, I leaf; The Coming of Arthur, fly-leaf and pp. (3)-29; The Holy Grail, fly-title and pp. (33)-88; Pelleas and Ettarre, fly-title and pp. (91)-127; The Passing of Arthur, fly-title and pp. (131)-158; fly-title “Miscellaneous”; Northern Farmer, pp. (161)-168; The Lover’s Tale (incomplete), pp. 211-236; The Victim, pp. 167-172; The Minute and Wages, pp. 173-4; The Higher Pantheism, pp. 169-171; Flower in the Crannied Wall, p. 172; Lucretius, pp. 237-254 (pagination recorded as printed).

Christmas Eve.

Christmas hath a darkness
Brighter than the blazing noon,
Christmas hath a chillness
Warmer than the heat of June,
Christmas hath a beauty
Lovelier than the world can show,
For Christmas bringeth Jesus
Brought for us so low.

Earth, strike up your music,
Birds that sing & bells that ring;
Heaven hath answering music
For all Angels soon to ring:
Earth, put on your whitest
Bridal robe of spotless snow,
For Christmas bringeth Jesus
Brought for us so low.

Prologue to the Tragical History of Doctor Faustus
 Light as when dawn ¹⁸⁹⁶ takes wing & smites the sea.
 I smote England when his ~~day~~ ^{day} bade Marlowe be.
 No fire so keen had thrilled the clouds of time
 Since Dante's breath made Italy sublime.
 Earth, bright with flowers & laughter, ^{whose dew shone soft as tears,} ~~Shone~~ ^{There's} Chaucer all her ^{charm} ~~power~~ on eyes & ears: 6
 The lustrous laughter of the love-lit earth
 Rang ~~unscathed~~ ^{unscathed} & ~~shone~~ lightened in his might of mirth.
 Deep moonlight, hallowing all the breathless air,
 Made earth & heaven for Spenser faint & fair
 But ~~higher than~~ ^{none might bid, not heaven} ~~as down~~ ~~most~~ ~~but~~ earth & heaven be one
 Till Marlowe's voice gave warning of the sun. 12
 Thought quailed & fluttered as a wounded bird
 Till ~~impaled~~ ^{passion} fledged the wing of Marlowe's word.
 Faith born of fear bade hope & doubt be dumb
 Till Marlowe's pride bade light or darkness come.
 Then first our speech was thunder: then our song
 Shot lightning thro' the clouds that wrought us wrong. 18
 Blind fear, whose faith feeds hell with fire, ^{become} ~~spring~~
 A ~~and~~ moth self-shrivelled in its own blind flame.

THE COMING OF ARTHUR, pp. 7-34.

Table of Contents: The Round Table, Gareth and Lynette, Geraint and Enid, Merlin and Vivien, Lancelot and Elaine, The Holy Grail, Pelleas and Ettarre, The Last Tournament.

GARETH AND LYNETTE, pp. 39-122.

GERAINT AND ENID, pp. 125-128 (incomplete).

LANCELOT AND ELAINE (incomplete), but comprising pages 49-82, with 30 Autograph Corrections by Tennyson, one being an additional line added.

Half-title: THE HOLY GRAIL, pages 85-136, with 33 Autograph Corrections by Tennyson. To one of these corrections he has added the following note:—

“the printer should not have made this mistake, they had the printed text to go by.”

PELLEAS AND ETTARRE, pp. 139-174, with 61 Autograph Corrections by Tennyson, including some entirely new lines.

THE LAST TOURNAMENT, pp. 171-221, with 11 Autograph Corrections by Tennyson.

GUINEVERE, pp. 225-264, with 10 Autograph Corrections by Tennyson.

THE PASSING OF ARTHUR, pp. 267-294, with 31 Autograph Corrections by Tennyson.

THE PASSING OF ARTHUR. A new revise of pages 289-296. Being a new proof of the last six pages of the Passing of Arthur, with the additional two pages added of the poem—

“To The Queen.” “O Loyal to the royal in thyself.”

With further numerous corrections by Tennyson. In the first two pages of “To the Queen” these corrections consist of five lines cancelled and new lines added by Tennyson himself.

904 IDYLLS OF THE KING.

AN UNRECORDED TRIAL EDITION.

12MO. In the original green paper covers.

Strahan and Co., London, 1869.

£95

Unique Trial Issue, unrecorded in any bibliography, and especially printed for Sir James Knowles, the Founder and Editor of the "XIXth Century," in which paper many of Tennyson's Poems first appeared.

On the fly-leaf the publisher has appended the following note—

"for Mr. Knowles—

Special copy printed October 6th.

A. Strahan."

Knowles was evidently the first Proof Reader, and it was for this purpose the present copy was sent to him. He has made numerous corrections throughout the volume.

The collation of this issue differs from any other, and we accordingly append copy of same, as follows:—

Collation: Half-title, "Idylls of the King"; title, dedication, pp. (V)-VIII; contents, 1 leaf; The Birth of Arthur, fly-title and pp. (3)-25; Enid, pp. (1)-97; Vivien, fly-title and pp. (101)-144; Elaine, fly-title and pp. (147)-222; The Holy Grail, fly-title and pp. (29)-78; Sir Pelleas, fly-title and pp. (81)-113; Guinevere, fly-title and pp. (225)-261; The Death of Arthur, fly-title and pp. (117)-139 (pagination recorded as printed).

Numerous Corrections throughout in the hand of Knowles.

905 IDYLLS OF THE KING.

Another unrecorded trial edition, largely re-set, embodying corrections made in the copy described previously, and many others.

By Lord Tennyson, Poet Laureate.

Tuesday, 4th May, 1886.

London: William Clowes & Sons, Limited, Official Printers and Publishers to the Royal Commission.

4 pp., 4to. Bound in full levant morocco, by Riviere.

London, 1886.

£52 10s

This handsome brochure was produced solely for official purpose, or for the use of the Court, at the Opening Ceremony of the Exhibition, and is now of the extremest rarity, very few copies having apparently been printed, and fewer still preserved.—T. J. Wise.

909 POEMS, principally designed for the Use of Schools and Young Persons. Selected by the Editor of the Harp of Canaan, etc., etc.

London, 1836.

£1 10s

Includes Tennyson's "New Year's Eve," also poems by S. T. Coleridge, Wordsworth, Mrs. Hemans, Southey, Barry Cornwall, Byron, W. Howitt, etc.

910 POEMS. MDCCCXXX—MDCCCXXXIII.

Small square 8vo. Full morocco gilt, t. e. g., by Bedford.

Privately Printed, 1862.

£5 5s

This was a pirated edition of Tennyson's suppressed poems (taken from the Poems, chiefly Lyrical, of 1830, and the Poems of 1833). Its appearance led to legal action being taken by the Author to protect his Copyright. A neatly written MSS. account of these proceedings is bound in at the end of this volume.

920 THE WINDOW; or, The Loves of the Wrens.

The Pirated Issue of Herne Shepherd, and issued a year before the appearance of the published edition.

16 pp., post 8vo. Wrappers as issued. 1867. £2 10s

The text of this Pirated Reprint follows precisely that of the original folio edition privately printed at Canford Manor, and includes the Verses printed there and afterwards suppressed.

Mr. Wise in his Tennyson Bibliography adds "the little pamphlet is therefore of much interest, and its pecuniary value much greater than would otherwise have been the case."

THACKERAY (William Makepeace), 1811-1863.

"We should not forget his verses,—he would have laughed if they had been called poems; but they had more imaginative vis, more daintiness of phrase, more true sensibility and sense, than much that is called so by its authors and the public."
—John Brown.

VERSES FOR WINDOW IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

933 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED and Verse of four lines, to Archdeacon Farrar.

2 pages, 8vo.

London, 18th December, 1887. £52 10S

A remarkably fine letter of Robert Browning, in which he sends a verse for the Queen Victoria Jubilee Window in St. Margaret's, Westminster.

" . . . I suppose the more simple and obvious the thought and expression of it, the fitter will it be for your purpose. But I trust you will be as good as your own word, which promised that I was 'quite free to decline' in such a case: how much more are you at liberty to decline to accept my attempt." Etc.

"Fifty years' flight! Wherein should he rejoice
Who hailed their birth, who as they die decays?
This—England echoes his attesting voice:
'Wondrous and well—thanks, Ancient Thou of Days!'"

Comprising 3 verses of six lines each on 1 page, 8vo.

£2 10S

Autograph manuscript of an important Poem by the celebrated writer, believed to be unpublished, signed in full, "Adelaide Ann Proctor," and written when only some 13 years of age.

"Old England boast, her joy, her pride,
On Thee all our hopes abide:
With the Sceptre in thine hand
The Nation bows at thy command:
For so young and fair a Queen
In old England ne'er was seen." Etc.

957 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED (INITIALS) of her Poem
"Fidelis."

Contained on 2½ pp., 8vo.

£2 2s

The first and last verses read:—

" You have taken back the promise,
That you spoke so long ago;
Taken back the heart you gave me,
I must even let it go:
Where Love once has breathed, Pride dieth
So I struggled, all in vain,
First to keep the links together
Then to piece the broken chain.

Perhaps in some long twilight hour,
Like those we have known of old
When past shadows gather round you,
And your present friends grow cold,
You may stretch your hand towards me;
Ah! you will,—I know not when,
I shall nurse my love and keep it
Faithfully for you—till then!"

This manuscript differs slightly from the published version.

958 AUTOGRAPH SONNET SIGNED "ADELAIDE," addressed "To Mrs.
Sartoris."

Consisting of some 18 lines on 1 page, 8vo.

N.D.

£2 2s

An intensely interesting poem expressing the writer's appreciation of the vocal talent of Adelaide Kemble (Mrs. Sartoris).

It commences:—

" Music! of mortal gifts the most divine,
The brightest, rarest, lady fair, is thine!
The spirit of the southern land of song
Has taught thee how to charm the listening throng." Etc.

Manuscripts of Adelaide A. Proctor are seldom met with, she dying at the early age of 39 years. She contributed to Dickens' periodicals and her "Legends and Lyrics" was edited by him.

MUNBY (Arthur J.), 1828-1910.

964 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT POEM, entitled "Victoria Day, 24th May, 1901."

Comprising 60 long lines on 4 pp., 4to.

£2 10s

The original manuscript, entirely in the hand of the talented author of "Dorothy," which poem elicited unstinted praise from Robert Browning.

This poem, "Victoria Day," is the poet's pæan in honour of the dead Queen, praising what she had done for her people and her empire, holding in loving union all her subjects.

"How from the north and the south, from the snows of distant Acadia,
And from the Southern Cross, and from the Isles of the Sea,
Nations born of our loins, alert and athletic as we are,
Spring to our side at a word, welcome and willing allies,
Eager to claim their share in the toils and the peril of England,
True to their ancient home, fraught with the spirit of sons,
Still shall be honour'd and sung, with the glow of a grateful emotion,
All that Victoria did, all that we owe to the Queen."

ON ALEXANDER II, CZAR OF RUSSIA.

966 AUTOGRAPH SONNET entitled "Czar Alexander the Second."

Contained on 1 full page, oblong 8vo, and dated 13th March, 1881. £9 10s

In memoriam of the foul assassination by the Nihilists of the Czar of Russia in 1881. Alexander II was a noble and liberal monarch, the grand achievement of his reign being the emancipation by him of the serfs—23,000,000 souls in 1861; this being followed by legal and municipal reforms.

The concluding lines of the Sonnet read:—

"He stayed the Knout's red-ravening fangs; and first
Of Russian traitors, his own murderers go
White to the tomb. While he,—laid foully low
With limbs red-rent, with festering brain which erst
Willed kingly freedom,—'gainst the deed accurst
To God bears witness of his people's woe."

967 AUTOGRAPH SONNET, entitled "After the German Subjugation of France, 1871."

On 1 page, oblong 8vo. £8 8s

In memoriam of the Franco-German War of 1870-1. There are important alterations by the Author in the text.

"Lo, the twelfth year! The wedding-feast come round
With years for months!—and lo, the babe new born,
Out of the womb's rank furnace cast forlorn
And with contagious effluence seamed and crowned." Etc.

ON KEATS.

- 982 THREE AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPTS entitled "Two Passages in the Life of Keats," "Endymion in the Isle of Wight," and "At Keats's Grave."

On 3 pp., 4to.

The verse "At Keats's Grave," reads:—

"The garden sunned by limbs of gods at play
 In bowers whose flowers were fruits, Hesperian sweets,
 That light the poet's very flesh who eats
 With ichor of heaven, Olympian blood of day
 Was only lent, and since thou couldst not stay
 Better to die than wake an alien, Keats,
 Where Fancy's fairy wand but feebly cheats
 In Truth's true land, neath copper skies or grey."

£3 10s

"Undoubtedly you are a brick and a worthy chip of the Omar Khayyam block to give me another chance but alas! on the 21st I shall be away again. Moreover, though I love to meet goodfellows, I don't love after dinner speeches and who knows that some malevolent friend would not even spoil my digestion by calling upon me also to speak! That were dreadful! so let us give it up. Besides I know exactly what every man Jack of you is going to say, and have put into a dramatic . . . on the Persian two rhymes which in good Suffolk may be thus rendered.

To the King of Wisdom.

MORRIS (William), 1834-1896.

"Clearness, strength, music, picturesqueness, and easy flow, are the chief characteristics of Morris' style. . . . His pictorial power—the power of bringing a person or a scene fully and adequately before one's eyes by the aid of words alone—is as great as that of Chaucer. . . . Morris' stores of language are as rich as Spenser's; and he has much of the same copious and musical flow of poetic words and phrases."—J. M. D. Meiklejohn.

THE ORIGINAL UNPUBLISHED FIRST DRAFT.

991 THE EARTHLY PARADISE.

THE ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT OF THE FIRST PROLOGUE ENTIRELY IN THE AUTOGRAPH OF THE POET, and written on 135 pp.

4to. Bound in full blue morocco, g. e., by De Coverly.

This was formerly in the possession of Charles Fairfax Murray, who has written the following note on the fly-leaf:—

"This MS., the first draft of the 'Prologue,' is referred to in Mackall's Life of Wm. Morris, Vol. I, p. 188. It is entirely unpublished & was written two years earlier than the poem which replaced it." C.F.M.

At the end are four poems on the months, & a copy of a fifth, from another MS. in my possession, which were also rejected & remain unpublished.

It is interesting to note that Morris's original idea for the title of the First Prologue was "The Fool's Paradise," which he altered to "The Wanderers," and this title he kept in the printed version, but in our Manuscript, which is the first draft, this long poem is entirely different although the idea is the same.

The five poems on the months—March, April, May, June, and July, were also intended for The Earthly Paradise, but were entirely re-written when published.

ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT.

996 ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT OF THE STORY OF "CUPID AND PSYCHE," being one of the sections of the "Earthly Paradise." ENTIRELY IN THE AUTOGRAPH OF WILLIAM MORRIS, and written on 99 pp., small 4to.

Bound by De Coverly in full levant morocco, g. e. £105

From the Library of Charles Fairfax Murray.

This Poem is an early draft, and differs considerably from the printed text. In the printed text is appended the following argument:—

"Psyche, a king's daughter, by exceeding beauty caused the people to forget Venus; therefore the goddess would fain have destroyed her; nevertheless she became the bride of Love, yet in an unhappy moment lost him by her own fault, and wandering through the world suffered many evils at the hands of Venus, for whom she must accomplish fearful tasks. But the gods and all nature helped her, and in process of time she was reunited to Love, forgiven by Venus, and made immortal by the Father of gods and men."

997 "PRAISE OF WINE." The Original Autograph Manuscript.

Consisting of 16 verses of 4 lines each on 2¼ pp., folio.

ALSO ROUGH DRAFT OF A POEM of 14 lines on reverse. £21

"PRAISE OF WINE."

"The sun grows dim and the day waxes old
And the blossoms droop, for May is a-cold
And the nook in the street the wind doth hold
And the night lies dark before us.
But come if ye are wearied and sad
Or think too much of the days ye have had,
For here is yet what shall make you glad
And the night lies dark before us.
How shall we name it better than Wine
That glorious hope that deathless sign
That the heavens yet to the earth incline
Though the night lie dark before us." Etc., etc.

ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPTS.

998 ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT POEMS, ENTIRELY IN THE AUTOGRAPH OF WILLIAM MORRIS, written on 2 pp., small 4to.

Bound in full green levant morocco, t. e. g., by De Coverly.

£18 18s

From the Library of Charles Fairfax Murray, who has made the following note on fly-leaf:—

“This MS. contains the following pieces:—

- 1 The Sleeve of Gold. 34 verses of four lines each.
- 2 Sir Palamydes Quest. 15 verses of four lines each.
- 3 Poem beginning ‘The Summer morning out in the green fields.’
- 4 The Maying of Queen Guenevere. 2 pages.
- 5 List of scenes from the Fall of Troy.
- 6 Unpublished scene from ‘Sir Peter Harpdon’s end.’
- 7 Mutilated poem ending ‘I am not now afraid of God.’

Mr. Morris told me that Swinburne advised strongly the publication of this scene from Sir Harpdon’s end.

No. 3 appears to relate to the same incident as that which furnished the story of the ‘Defence of Guenevere.’”

ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPTS.

999 ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT POEMS entirely in the Autograph of William Morris.

1. ROMANCE OF THE WOOERS.
2. THE LONG LAND.
3. SUMMER DAWN. Draft of published poem.
4. SIR GILES WAR SONG, with extra lines.
5. THE GOD OF THE POOR. Thirty-five verses published in the Fortnightly Review.

Bound together in 1 vol., 4to. Full levant morocco, g. e., by De Coverly.

£48

An interesting series of Morris’s Poetical Manuscripts, written in ink and pencil, and on the reverse of several are various sketches by him.

VICTORIAN POETRY: MORRIS (WILLIAM): ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPTS—cont.

This volume came from the Library of Charles Fairfax Murray, who has made the following notes:—

“ Contents of this Book.

- 1 Romance of the Wooers. 17? pages.
- 2 The Long Land. 7 pages.
- 3 Summer Dawn. Draft of published poem.
- 4 Sir Giles War Song, with extra lines.
- 5 The God of the Poor. 35 verses published in the Fortnightly Review.
- 1 The ‘Romance of the Wooers’ is in such a fragmentary state that it is difficult to be sure that all the pieces here united really belong to it.
- 2 The ‘Long Land’ has lost a page probably torn out by the poet. It was fair copied for publication but finally omitted from the Defence of Guenevere & Other Poems, 1858.
- 3 Draft of the exquisite little poem published October 1856 in the Oxford and Cambridge Magazine & reprod. in 1858 with the alteration of a word only.”

ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPTS.

1000 ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPTS OF VARIOUS POEMS in the Autograph of William Morris, written on 11 pp., 8vo.

Bound by De Coverly in full crushed levant morocco, t. e. g.

£14 14s

From the Library of Charles Fairfax Murray, who has made the following index of the poems:—

“ Index.

- 1 Argument for Cupid & Psyche.
- 2 Argument from Doom of Acridius.
- 3 “Come forth O love to-day although the earth.” (October?).
- 4 January.
- 5 February.
- 6 ‘Lo last night winter died although to-day.’ (March?).
- 7 Lines to come between March and the Deeds of Jason.
- 8 The Hill of Venus, fragment, 4 verses.
- 9 The Hill of Venus, fragment, 3 verses.
- 11 The Hill of Venus, fragment, 6 verses.
- 12 List of poems for Earthly Paradise, with number of lines written.
- 13 ‘My Squire in many lands I have been.’ 36 lines.
- 14 ‘St. Agnes Convent by the Merry Sea.’ 3½ pages.
- 15 Introductory lines to ‘The Story of the Flower.’

1002 AUTOGRAPH POEM SIGNED, entitled "A Shell."

Comprising some 154 lines on 6 pp., 4to.

Circa 1861.

£3 10S

A charming poem descriptive of a sea shell, its journey and the message it carried to a Venetian struggling against the power of Austria.

"Spite of Austrian prohibition,
Spite of frontier inquisition,
Hearts Italian o'er the sea
Send their messenger to me.

Reverently I raised the shell
That its errand it might tell,
Placed its pink lip to mine ear—
Heard its whisper low & clear.

And the murmur of the sea
Spoke the message, sent to me—
'Patience. Venice will be free!' " Etc.

This poem was published in the St. James' Magazine for September, 1861.

VICTORIAN POETRY: HOOD (THOMAS)—continued.

- 1003 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT, SIGNED TWICE, of the Poem entitled "French and English," consisting of six verses of eight lines each on 3 pages, 8vo.

Royal Hotel, Plymouth. N.D.

Commences:—

FRENCH AND ENGLISH.

"Good Heavens! Why even the little children in France speak French! Addison.

"Never go to France
Unless you know the lingo,
If you do, like me,
You will repent, by jingo,
Staring, like a fool
And silent as a mummy
There I stood alone,
A nation with a dummy."

"Chaises stand for chairs
They christen letters Billies,
They call their mothers mares
And all their daughters fillies,
Strange it was to hear,
I'll tell you what's a good 'un
They call their leathers queer,
And half their shoes are wooden." Etc.

TABLEY (John B. L. Warren, Baron de), 1835-1895.

- 1004 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT POEM entitled "Orpheus."

28 pp., 4to.

£5 5s

The manuscript commences:—

"Orpheus, having descended to the nether world in search of Euridice, thus addresses Prosperpine:

Ruler and regent, to whose dread domain
The mighty flood of life and human woe
Sends down the immeasurable drift of souls,
As silted sands are sent to Neptune's deep
I, even I, approach your awful realms,
Queen of oblivion, Lady of Acheron,
To crave one captive. I alive descend
A live man nourished still on human bread,
A man with limbs of flesh, & veins of blood.
What right have I to tread the fields of death
Intruder in the abyss?" Etc.

ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT.

“DEDICATION TO SAFFI.”

- 1037 THE ORIGINAL AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT entitled “Dedication to Aurelio Saffi.”

Comprising nine verses of 8 lines each and contained on 3 full pages, folio. Circa 1882. Preserved in a buckram portfolio, lettered on side. £52 10s

A most important Swinburne manuscript, which was first printed in a Magazine, and then about two years later included by Swinburne as the introduction to his famous tragedy, “Marino Faliero.”

This most celebrated “Dedication” commences:—

“Year after year has fallen on sleep, till change
 Hath seen the fourth part of a century fade,
 Since you, a guest to whom the vales were strange
 Where Isis whispers to the murmuring shade
 Above her face by winds and willows made
 And I, elate at heart, with reverence met.
 Change must give place to death ere I forget
 The pride that change of years has quenched not yet.”

- 1038 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Poem entitled "Astraea Victrix."
Consisting of twelve verses of 8 lines each on 4 pp., 4to. N.D.

£35

The original manuscript of the poem as it appears in "A Channel Passage and other Poems," published in 1904.

"England, elect of time,
By freedom sealed sublime,
And constant as the sun that saw thy dawn
Outshine upon the sea
His own in heaven, to be
A light that night nor day should see withdrawn,
If song may speak not now thy praise,
Fame writes it higher than song may soar or faith may gaze." Etc.

- 1039 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Poem, entitled "Autumn in Cornwall."

Consisting of six verses of 8 lines each on 2 pp., folio. N.D.

The original manuscript of this poem printed in "Poems and Ballads," 2nd Series, 1878.

"The year lies fallen and faded
On cliffs by clouds invaded.
With tongues of storms upbraided,
With wrath of waves bedinned:
And inland, wild with warning.
As in deaf ears or scorning,
The clarion even and morning,
Rings of the south-west wind." Etc.

- 1040 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Poem entitled "The Dispute of the Soul and Body of François Villon."

Comprising 20 lines on 1 page, folio. 1861.

The complete poem as originally written; it was, however, extended somewhat when published (with variations in both title and text) in "Poems and Ballads," 2nd Series, 1878.

"Who is this I hear? Lo, this is I, thy heart
That holds on merely now by a slender string.
Strength fails me, shape and sense are rent apart
The blood in me is turned to a bitter thing." Etc.

The Manuscript, which contains several important autograph corrections by the author in the text, has been very neatly laid down on another sheet of paper.

- 1042 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT HEADED "MARY BEATON," being evidently a trial scheme sketched out in brief of the speeches of Mary Beaton in the last scene of "Chastelard."

Comprising 12 lines on 1 page, folio. £8 10s

An important unpublished manuscript containing four short speeches by one of the Queen's Maries.

It is an early draft which Swinburne never used in publishing "Chastelard." In the first speech, Mary Beaton says:—

"Then I shall be her handmaiden in hell
For this strong hate in me draws down my soul
To follow her & to follow, until indeed
The same place hold us & the same time slay."

SONGS OF MARY STUART.

- 1043 ORIGINAL AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT OF THE TWO SONGS HEADED "CHANSON DE MARIE STUART" sung by Mary Queen of Scots in Swinburne's "Bothwell"; one commencing "Qui de Fie à la Vie," and the other "Sur la Grève Rien ne Rêve."

Together some 84 lines on 4 pp., 8vo. Circa 1860. £45

The original autograph manuscript of these two charming songs which Swinburne put into the mouth of Mary Queen of Scots. The songs are complete and continuous. In the pages of "Bothwell" the first one is broken up into sections.

From the appearance of this most attractive little manuscript the songs were apparently written about 1860, and some 14 years later introduced by the poet into the text of "Bothwell."

There are a number of important corrections by Swinburne in the manuscript, several of the lines being entirely re-written.

- 1044 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SONNET "Bismark at Canossa."

1 page, folio. 31st December, 1881. £12 10s

The original manuscript of this famous Sonnet, which commences:—

"Not all disgraced, in that Italian town,
The imperial German cowered beneath thine hand,
Alone indeed imperial Hildebrand,
And felt thy foot and Rome's, and felt her frown
And thine, more strong and sovereign than his crown,
Though iron forged its blood-encrusted band." Etc.

This was printed in "Tristram of Lyonesse," 1882.

“COLUMBUS.”

- 1045 AUTOGRAPH POETICAL SENTIMENT entitled “Columbus,” on the IVth Century of the discovery of America.

Comprising six lines on a folio sheet. Circa 1892. £10 10s

Composed by Swinburne for the celebration in Italy and Spain, October, 1892, of the fourth Centenary of the Discovery of America.

“Firm & fast the pillars set of God’s Titanic son,
Atlas fronting Calpe, Calpe fronting Atlas, rose,
Strong to sever world from world, and seal the gates that close
Hope and thought up fast while blind & barren ages run
Age on age as wave on wave beneath a shrouded sun
Higher than they rose up at last the spirit of man.”

It is believed these lines (which contain several alternative words in the text), have never been published, and they are possibly unfinished. Accompanying is a printed circular from a Celebration Committee in Italy asking for the contribution of “a sympathetic word of a high genius or of an illustrious personage as a leaf of laurel to the great crown to be placed on the head of Christopher Columbus.”

- 1046 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of his Prologue to “The Broken Heart,” a Tragedy by John Ford.

Comprising 40 lines on 2 pp., 8vo. Circa 1904. £35

Published by Swinburne in “A Channel Passage,” 1904. It makes important references to Shakespeare.

“The mightiest choir of song that memory bears
Gave England voice for fifty lustrous years.
Sunrise and thunder fired and shook the skies
That saw the sun-god Marlowe’s opening eyes.
The morn’s own music, answered of the sea,
Spake, when his living lips bade Shakespeare be,
And England, made by Shakespeare’s quickening breath,
Divine and deathless even till life be death.

That day was clouding toward a stormlit close
When Ford’s red sphere upon the twilight rose.
Sublime with stars and sunset fire, the sky
Glowed as though day, nigh dead, should never die.

Terror twin-born with pity kissed and thrilled
The lips that Shakespeare’s word or Webster’s filled:
Here both, cast out, fell silent; pity shrank,
Rebuked, and terror, spirit-stricken, sank:
The soul assailed arose far above
All reach of all but only death and love.”

- 1047 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of his Prologue to "A Very Woman,"
a Play by Massinger.

Comprising 28 lines on 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ pp., 4to. Circa 1904. £32

Published by Swinburne in "A Channel Passage," 1904.

"Swift music made of passion's changeful power,
Sweet as the change that leaves the world in flower
When spring laughs winter down to deathward rang
From grave and gracious lips that smiled and sang.
When Massinger, too wise for kings to hear
And learn of him, truth, wisdom, faith, or fear,
Gave all his gentler heart to love's light lore,
What grief might brood and scorn breed wrath no more.

Ere fades the sovereign sound of song that rang
As though the sun to match the sea's tune sang,
When noon from dawn took life and light, and time
Shone, seeing how Shakespeare made the world sublime,
Ere sinks the wind whose breath was heaven's and days,
The sunset's witness gave the sundawn praise."

- 1048 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED of a Poem to "Victor Hugo."

Comprising 14 lines on 1 full page, 4to. £28

The original signed autograph manuscript of this famous sonnet addressed to Victor Hugo, upon the death of François Hugo, his son, of whose capacity the father was so proud. It contains sundry alterations in the text, and is written in Swinburne's characteristic hand.

"He had no children, who for love of men,
Being God, endured of Gods such things as thou,
Father; nor on his thunder-beaten brow
Fell such a woe as bows thine head again,
Twice bowed before, though godlike, in man's ken,
And seen too high for any stroke to bow
Save this of some strange God's that bends it now
The third time with such weight as bruised it then." Etc.

FROM KEATS.

- 1049 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Poem entitled "Sharing Eve's Apple," being a transcript made by Swinburne of the then unpublished Poem written by Keats in 1818.

Comprising five stanzas of 4 lines each, on 1 page, 4to.

£10 10s

This extremely dainty, though rather daring song, written by Keats in 1818, remained unpublished till 1889 when Buxton Forman printed it in the second volume of his 4 volume edition of the Works of Keats. It commences:—

"O blush not so! O blush not so!
Or I shall think you knowing." Etc.

MANUSCRIPT OF "EAST TO WEST."

1050 ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT of his fine Poem "East to West."

Comprising 15 long lines on 1½ pp., 4to.

Circa 1890-4.

A particularly fine poem of Anglo-American interest. It is printed in "Astrophal and other Poems," 1894.

"Sunset smiles on sunrise: east and west are one,
Face to face in heaven before the sovereign sun.

Child of dawn, and regent on the world-wide sea,
England smiles on Europe, fair as dawn and free.

Not the waters that gird her are purer, nor mightier the winds that her waters know.

But America, daughter and sister of England, is proud of them far as they flow.

Atlantic responds to Pacific the praise of her days that have been and shall be.

So from England westward let the watchword fly,

So for England eastward let the seas reply,

Praise, honour, and love everlasting be sent on the wind's wings westward and east.

That the pride of the past and the pride of the future may mingle as friends at feast." Etc.

ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT CARNOT.

1051 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED of a Poem in Memoriam of Carnot, President of the French Republic.

Comprising 14 lines on 1 page, 4to, signed and dated at end
25th June, 1894.

£16 10s

This in-memoriam ode was written by Swinburne on the occasion of the assassination of President Carnot, who met his death at Lyons by the hands of an anarchist on the day preceding the date of the poem, Swinburne evidently composing it immediately on receiving the news of the tragedy. The poet compares Carnot's fate with that of Lincoln and Garfield.

The poem was printed by Swinburne in "A Channel Passage," 1904; and commences:—

"Death, winged with fire of hate from deathless hell,
Wherein the souls of anarchs hiss & die,
With stroke as dire has cloven a heart as high
As twice beyond the wide sea's westward swell
The living lust of death had power to quell
Through ministry of murderous hands whereby
Dark fate bade Lincoln's head & Garfield's lie
Low even as his who bids his France farewell." Etc.

UNPUBLISHED MANUSCRIPT POEM.

- 1052 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Border Ballad "Four and Twenty Cripple Sailors Riding on a Snail."

Comprising some 29 lines on 2 pp., 4to. Circa 1861. £9 10s

The original MS., believed to be unpublished, of an amusing Border Ballad written in the Scots dialect.

- 1053 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Border Ballad "When he had got his will of her."

Comprising some 36 lines; also four lines of autograph notes thereon. Contained on 1 page, small folio. £7 10s

This Ballad is believed to be unpublished.

- 1054 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Border Ballad entitled "Burd Ellen and Young Tamlane."

Comprising 16 lines on 1/2-page, folio. Circa 1861. £6 10s

This is also believed to be unpublished.

TO HIS MOTHER.

- 1055 AUTOGRAPH CORRECTED PROOF of Verses written for the Birthday of the Author's Mother, entitled "The High Oaks, Barking Hall, July 19, 1896."

Comprising 12 verses of nine lines each, on 4 pp., 8vo.

£7 10s

Printed in "The Nineteenth Century" the first verse reads:—

"Fourscore years and seven
 Light and dew from Heaven
 Have fallen with dawn on these glad woods each day
 Since here was born, even here,
 A birth more bright and dear
 Than ever a younger year,
 Hath seen or shall till all these pass away,
 Even all the imperious pride of these,
 The woodland ways majestic now with towers of trees." Etc.

- 1056 ORIGINAL AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of his Poem, "The Witch Mother."

Comprising 16 verses of four lines each on 1 page, folio.
Enclosed in a buckram portfolio, lettered on side. £28

"O where will ye gang to & where will ye sleep,
Against the night begins?
My bed is made wi' cauld sorrows,
My sheets are lined wi' sins.
And the rain is sair upon my face,
And sair upon my hair;
And the wind upon my weary mouth,
That never may man kiss mair." Etc.

- 1057 ORIGINAL AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of his Poem, "Jacobite Song, 1715."

Comprising 62 lines on 2 pp., folio. Enclosed in a buckram portfolio, lettered on side. £32

The poem commences:—

"Now who will speak & lie not
And pledge not life, but give?
Slaves herd with herded cattle:
The dawn grows bright for battle,
And if we die, we die not;
And if we live, we live." Etc., etc.

LECKY (William E. H.), 1838-1903.

H A R T E (Bret), 1839-1903.

"In the region of pure poetry, he has given us some things we would not willingly part with."—E. S. Forman.

1059 "THE SWORD OF DON JOSÉ, TOLD AT THE MISSION OF SAN LUIS REY." The Typewritten Manuscript of this Poem, with numerous Autograph Corrections throughout by Bret Harte.

4 pp., 4to.

£12 10s

The poem commences:—

"Aye, look here it hangs! You would think 'twas a cross
 Fairly wrought of old iron. Yet—barring the loss
 Of some twisted work here that once guarded the hand—
 You might say 'twas the hilt of some cavalier's brand:
 As it is, of a truth! You are staring, Senor!
 At this shrine, at this altar, where never before
 Hung ex voto so strange—at these walls in decay,
 All that stands of the Mission of San Luis Rey;
 At these leagues of wild llano beyond, which still hoard
 In their heart this poor shrine, and a cavalier's sword!" Etc., etc.

1060 "THE OLD CAMP FIRE." Typewritten Manuscript Signed of this Poem, with numerous Autograph Corrections throughout by Bret Harte.

3 pp., 4to.

£12 10s

The poem commences:—

"Now shift the blanket pad before your saddle back you fling,
 And draw your sinch up tighter 'till the sweat drops from the ring,
 We've a dozen miles to cover ere we reach the next divide,
 Our limbs are stiffer now than when we first set out to ride,
 And worse—the horses know it—and feel the leg grips tire
 Since twenty years ago, old friend, we sought the old camp fire." Etc.

FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Original boards, uncut.
London, 1884.

“WINE, WOMEN, AND SONG.”

1082 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED of a Poem, entitled “Wein, Weib, Gesang.”

1 page, 4to. N.D.

£10 10s

The first verse of this poem, “Wine, Women and Song,” reads:—

“O, wine it glads the heart of man:
Therefore God gave us wine!
Ho, lads! fill high the flowing can:
Let mirth & youth combine!
Men light of heart perform life's part:
Men up & drink! Sing while you drink,
What Martin Luther saith,
Who loves not women, wine & song
He bides a fool his whole life long;
And fools we are not, no!
Nay, fools we are not, no!” Etc.

1083 AUTOGRAPH POEM entitled “Kennt Ihr Das Land.”

1 page, 4to. N.D.

£5 5s

“Know ye the land of birk & rowan,
The land of strength & sturdy pride?
Know ye the land of brae & gowan,
Of purple heath on far moor-side?
The stratus enriched with heaven's own dew,
Encompassed round by mountains blue?
That true Scotch land, 'tis mine, 'tis thine;
And never shall her name & fame decline!” Etc.

1093 COLLECTION OF AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPTS OF POETICAL FRAGMENTS.

Comprising some 52 lines on 5 pp., 8vo and 12mo. £3 3s

An interesting little collection of original autograph poetical manuscripts by this famous writer, and written in his characteristic hand, with numerous corrections in the text.

The following is one of the pieces:—

“ Oh slave of fate and fear
Oh Man be glad to-day;
Learn thy deliv’rance near,
Thy penance passed away;

Now shalt thou be as Gods, and know such things as they.”

“ For man of one same birth
Is born as Gods on high,
Though he inherit earth,
And they the utmost sky;

But he like them dreads no disease and may not die.”

1094 AUTOGRAPH POEM SIGNED, entitled “Celia.”

Comprising 18 lines on 1 page, 4to.

Also AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED to Rev. W. Boyd Carpenter (afterwards Bishop of Ripon).

1 page, small 8vo.

Kensington, 30th March. N.Y.

Together, £2 2s

The letter refers to the poem, which he gives Boyd Carpenter permission to use.

“ Tell me not that Rubies dwell
In the deeps of Celia’s eyes,
Cupid in that double well
Views his beauty with surprize,
And would, like Narcissus, drown
Deep in Celia’s eyes of brown.” Etc.

- 1095 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED (at head) entitled "The Barbarous Bird-Gods."

Comprising some 78 lines on 3 pp., folio. Unbound. £6 10s

Of unusual and peculiar interest, giving the song of the Birds-Gods. Lang, in an Introduction, says:—

"The myth in the 'Birds' of Aristophanes, which represents Birds as older than the Gods, may have been a genuine Greek Tradition. The following lines shew how prevalent is the myth among widely severed races."

"We would have you to wit, on eggs though we sit
And are spiked on the spit, and are baked in the pan,
Birds are older by far than your ancestors are
And made love and made war e'er the making of man!
For when all things were dark, not a glimmer nor spark,
And the world like a barque without rudder or sail
Floated on through the night, t'was a Bird struck a light, T'was a flash from the bright feather'd Tonatiu's tail!" Etc., etc.

- 1101 AUTOGRAPH POEM, “Confidences of an Irish M.P.”
 Comprising 4 verses of eight lines each on 2 pp., 4to.
 (1889.) £3 3s

This poem was first published in the “Scots Observer” in 1889; it concludes—

“ But it's all for poor ould Ireland, Tim, we'ar wearing this taste of the green,
 She's the most disthrousered country, Tim, that ever yet was seen,
 And three pounds a week's a convaynience, Tim, and earn it we must asthore,
 Or they'll put it in the papers, Tim, and they'll boycott us galore.
 But its O! for the great and glorious day when the cruel Red goes down,
 And never no more shall we need, bedad, to wear the martyr's crown!
 For it's heavy, my bhoy—it's heavy; and I think when I toe the line,
 'Bad cess to the dhirty hapence . . . if I had um I'd resign.' ”

The manuscript has been just a little damaged.

Whose hearts to-day are with you,—not alone
Your friends and lovers, who this hour have known
What wrathful tears tyrannic folly draws
From eyes that watch you clutched in the brute claws
Of senseless slaves, and on the dungeon stone
Naked and bruised, with felon violence thrown,
By hands law-licensed to defame the laws." Etc.

The poem, "The Promise of Sleep," reads as follows:

"All day I cd. not work for woe,
I cd. not work nor rest,
The trouble drove me to and fro
Like a leaf on the wind's breast.
Night came and saw my sorrow cease;
Sleep in the chambers stole:
Peace crept about my limbs and peace
Fell on my stormy soul.
And now I think of only this,
How I again may woo
The gentle sleep, who promises
That death is gentle too."

FIRST EDITION. Post 8vo. Original cloth, uncut.

London, Pickering, 1873.

£9 9s

From the Library of Sir Edmund Gosse, with interesting note by him on fly-leaf:—

“Copies of this edition are very rare. The author withdrew it from circulation, and used to disembowel every copy he came across. This particular copy was hidden for many months in a drawer, because he threatened its existence if he found it on my bookshelves. E.W.G.”

HEWLETT (Maurice), b. 1862.

- 1170 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT SIGNED of Two Short Unpublished Poetical Pieces, entitled respectively, "For Two Sisters," and "Runes on an Old Oar Pick't up at Sea."

Together some 13 lines on 1 page, 4to.

Signed and dated at end, 1916.

£2 10s

Both these poetical pieces are believed to be unpublished.

The "Runes of an old Oar" read:—

At home, head-washing, harbour slug,
While on the cold sea here I tug.
'Blisters and back-ache, there's my toll'
For Slug-at-home's soap-sudded poll."

£5 5s

Unique Copy, containing the Author's Original Manuscript for the Title, Dedication, Contents, and the Verse of four lines:—

"O Strength Divine of Roman Days
O Spirit of the Age of Faith
Go with our Sons on all their ways
When we long since are dust and wraith."

THE ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT.

1173 THE ISLAND RACE.

The Original Manuscript, etc., from which this book was printed, comprised on about 122 leaves of a 4to Notebook.

The Title-page, Dedication, Author's Note, Contents, and many of the Poems are in Sir Henry Newbolt's Autograph. The other Poems are partly in his Autograph and partly proof sheets from the Newspapers or Magazines in which they first appeared. The Printed Poems have numerous corrections by Newbolt, and in each case he has written the title.

The following are those in his Autograph:—

“The Quarter-Gunner's Yarn.” 15 verses of 4 lines each.

“Craven.” 9 verses of 4 lines each.

“Laudabunt Alii,” after Horace. 6 lines, the remainder being the printed proofs.

“San Stefano.” 18 lines.

“The Fighting Téméraire.” 28 lines.

“Drake's Drum.” 8 lines.

“Admirals All.” 4 verses (28 lines).

“The Guides at Cabul.” 11 lines.

“He Fell Among Thieves.” 7 verses of 4 lines each.

“Ionicus.” 3 verses of 8 lines each.

“Clifton Chapel.” 4 verses of 8 lines each.

“Gavotte.” 4 verses of 5 lines each.

“Nel Mezzo del Cammin.” 8 lines.

“Moonset.” 6 verses of 4 lines each.

And at end, Notes, 3 pp.

£.25

Accompanying this is a copy of the First Edition of the Book as published in 1898.

LATE NINETEENTH AND TWENTIETH CENTURY VERSE :
 NEWBOLT (SIR HENRY)—continued.

- 1174 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Poem, "The Pedlar's Song."
 Comprising 3 verses of seven lines each on 1 full page, 4to.
 1909. £2 2s

"I tramped among the townward throng
 A sultry summer's morn;
 They mocked me loud, they mocked me long
 They laughed my pack to scorn.
 But a likely pedlar holds his peace
 Until the reckoning's told:—
 Merrily I to market went, tho' songs were all my gold." Etc.

- 1175 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Poem entitled "The Flower Gatherers."
 Comprising four verses of four lines each, on 1 page, 8vo.
 12th April, 1906. £3 3s

Written for the Spectator. The first verse reads:—

"I left behind the ways of care,
 The crowded hurrying hours,
 I breathed again the woodland air,
 I plucked the woodland flowers." Etc.

- 1176 AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of a Poem, "The Last Word."
 Comprising 12 verses of four lines on 3 pp., 4to.
 Dated at end January, 1898. £3 15s

A lengthy poem published in the "Spectator" in March, 1898.

"Before the April night was late
 A rider came to the Castle gate;
 A rider breathing human breath,
 But the words he spoke were the words of Death.

"Greet you well from the King our Lord,
 He marches hot for the Eastward ford:
 Living or dying, all or one,
 Ye must keep the ford till the race be run." Etc.

Comprising 5 verses of 8 lines each, on 3 pp., 4to. With Autograph Signature and Address endorsed. £3 3s

Written at the time of the Boer war; it is addressed to the spirit of Sir Walter Raleigh as the builder of England's world-greatness.

The last verse reads:

"Thy wall is builded to the crest;
Sleep mighty spirit, take thy rest;
O rushing will
O passionate hands, be still;
There, where thou laboured for the imperial race,
The last huge stone swings slowly to its place;
So sleep till each man stands
Within that house not buile with hands."

£7 7s

An interesting verse reads:—

"Up now, answer me, on your mettle!
 Wisest man of the Mermaid Inn,
 Soberest man on the old black settle.
 Out with the truth! It was never a sin!
 Well . . . if God saved me alone of the seven,
 'Telling me you must be damned or you
 'This' I would say 'this is hell, not heaven;
 Give me the fire & a friend or two!'

Chorus:

Steel was never so ringing true!
 'God' we would say, this is hell, not heaven;
 Give us the fire & a friend or two."
