BENJAMIN DAWSON MAGGS

1862-1935

Ob. October 4th, 1935

ON October the 4th, 1935, Maggs Bros. Ltd. sustained an irreparable loss in the death of its senior Managing Director, Mr. Benjamin Dawson Maggs.

Mr. Maggs was born in London on the 10th of February, 1862. At that time his father, Uriah Maggs, was conducting a bookselling business at 41 Westborne Terrace North, Paddington. At the early age of 14 years, Mr. Maggs, who had inherited his father's love of books, entered the business, which by that time had moved to Church Street, Paddington Green. At the end of 1894, Mr. U. Maggs retired, and the business was left in the hands of his two elder sons, Benjamin Dawson and Henry. In 1901, the growth of the business necessitated a further move, this time to 109 Strand, within a few hundred yards of Holywell Street, commonly known as "Booksellers' Row". Henry died in 1905, and in the same year the two other sons, Charles and Ernest, joined the firm. Continuing to grow, it was later found necessary to take additional premises at 6 Maiden Lane, Strand, and these were retained until the firm, in 1918, moved to the West End, to its present premises at 34 & 35 Conduit Street, New Bond Street. Four years later Charles Maggs died, leaving as sole partners, his brothers Benjamin and Ernest, the eldest and youngest sons of the founder. A branch was subsequently opened in Paris, at 93 & 95 Rue la Boëtie. In the early part of last year the firm became a Private Limited Company, when Frank and Kenneth Maggs, two sons of Benjamin, were appointed directors with the two surviving partners.

From an early date Mr. B. D. Maggs was chiefly concerned with the purchasing side of the business and rarely missed an important sale, either in London, in the provinces or on the Continent. He was present at the sale of the Hoe Library in New York in 1911. Even when in failing health towards the end of his active life, the sale-room seemed to hold a magnetic fascination for him and he was never really happy unless there were a sale to attend.

Mr. Maggs took a keen interest in the Antiquarian Booksellers' Association. He was the second President and a member of its committee until his death. He was also a Freeman of the City of London and a liveryman of the Stationer's Company.

The present Directors have been most sincerely moved by the hundreds of tributes to Mr. Maggs which have reached them from collectors and his confrères in the trade, both at home and abroad. They fully appreciate the esteem and affection in which he was held and earnestly hope that they may merit in the future a similar trust and regard.

The Birth of the Novel

"Time and again, in the world's history, where East meets West, the spirit of romance has been born. Herodotus on his travels, Heliodorus carrying Ethiopian traditions to his bishopric, Apuleius the Carthaginian sojourning at home, are all parents of prose romance; and in mediaeval legend, Alexander in correspondence with the Brahmins, Charlemagne in conflict with the Moors, furnish the same unfailing inspiration."

WALTER RALEIGH.

THE ROMANCE IN ANTIQUITY

APULEIUS

FIRST EDITION OF "THE GOLDEN ASS" THE MODEL OF THE PICARESQUE NOVEL

[I] OPERA.

ROMAN LETTER, with passages in Greek. On the first page a fine illuminated initial B in gold and colours.

Folio. Red morocco with blue morocco doublures, g.e. by Trautz-Bauzonnet.

Rome, Conradus Sweynheym and Arnoldus Pannartz, 28 February, 1469.

£,420

THE RARE "EDITIO PRINCEPS" OF APULEIUS, edited by Joannes Andreae, bishop of Aleria. Chief of the writings of Apuleius is "The Golden Ass," a satirical and fantastic moral romance, the adventures of one Lucius, who is transformed into an ass as a punishment for his vices; under this guise he has the amplest opportunities for observing, undetected, the preposterous doings of mankind. Then, enlightened by this experience, and with the enchantment taken off him, he becomes quite a new man. Of the many episodes interwoven into the story, the most interesting is the beautiful allegorical fairy tale of Cupid and Psyche, so much used by later poets and artists.

A very fine copy of this important production of the first Roman press, of which only 275 copies were printed. (Hain 1314).

2 THE XI. BOOKES OF THE GOLDEN ASSE:

Containing the Metamorphosie of Lucius Apuleius, interlaced with sundry pleasant delectable Tales: With an excellent Narration of the marriage of Cupid and Psyche, set out in the fourth, fifth and sixth Bookes. Translated out of Latine into English, by William Adlington.

Small 4to. Brown morocco, g.e. London, 1639.

DICTYS & DARES

THE STORY OF TROY

[3] HISTORIA TROIANA.

ROMAN LETTER. Ornamental woodcut initials. Printer's device on the last page. 4to. Vellum.

Messina, Guillielmus Schonberger de Franckfordia, May 7 and 20, 1498.

The "Trojan History" of Dictys and that of Dares, dating probably from the 4th and 5th centuries A.D., were the chief authorities followed by the mediaeval writers who handled the story of Troy.

This rare edition was printed at an early Sicilian press, the second at Messina. It is the first dated book in which Schonberger's name occurs. The total recorded output of this press is seven books, all of which are extremely rare.

Blank corner of title repaired. (Hain 6157).

HELIODORUS

4 HELIODORUS, HIS AETHOPIAN HISTORY.

Done out of Greeke, and compared with other Translations in divers Languages.

FIRST EDITION OF WILLIAM BARRET'S TRANSLATION.

Small 4to. Fine copy in contemporary morocco gilt.

London, Felix Kyngston, for William Barret, 1622.

£,22 IOS

Heliodorus wrote about the year 400. His work has been praised as one of the best of the Greek Romances. It is the parent book from which later writers derived those tales of sensational adventure and hairs-breadth escapes, on which much of the plot of such dramas as "Pericles of Tyre" turns and depends.

HERODOTUS

[5] HISTORIAE.

Illuminated initial and arms (Orsini?) on 1st page of text. Folio. Old half russia.

Rome, "In domo Petri de Maximis," [Arnoldus Pannartz], 20 April, 1475. £150

THE SECOND EDITION OF HERODOTUS, translated into Latin by Laurentius Valla.

In this great work Herodotus recounts the origin and progress of the war between the Greek and Persians; and at successive stages of the main story he introduces episodes and stories of great interest which contribute to the illustration of the principal subject.

It is significant that the history is written in prose. "The voice of Herodotus is the first talking voice which comes down to us through the ages: the first voice which tries, not to stir our feelings and imagination by the magic of poetry, but to tell us quietly and conversationally just what the facts were, so far as he could find them out."

A large copy. First leaf of text partly re-margined. (Hain 8470).

ST. CYRIL OF THESSALONICA

7 SPECULUM SAPIENTIAE.

GOTHIC LETTER. 26 lines to a full page. Initials in red and blue. 4to. Levant morocco, g.e., by Rivière.

[Vienne, Eberhard Frommolt, about 1479].

A very early edition of one of the oldest Latin fable books of the Middle Ages. Its author, St. Cyril, born in Thessalonica in the ninth century, is known as the Apostle of the Slavs from his successful missionary work among the Tartar Khazars and the Moravians.

This copy belonged to Pedro Miguel Carbonell, the Catalan poet and author of Chroniques de Espana, and has rubrications and annotations in his hand, also his note of purchase dated 3rd April, 1483. (Hain 5906, 1).

REYNARD THE FOX

[9] THE MOST DELECTABLE HISTORY OF REYNARD THE FOX. Newly corrected and purged from all grossness in phrase and matter. Augmented and enlarged with sundry excellent morals and expositions upon every several character. To which may now be added a Second Part of the said History: as also the shifts of Reynardine the son of Reynard the Fox, together with his Life and Death, &c.

With woodcut on title and numerous curious cuts in the text.

Three parts in one volume. Small 4to. Fine copy in original half vellum, edges entirely uncut. London, 1694. £37 108

Each part with separate title-page, bearing respectively the dates, 1694, 1681 and 1684. Extremely rare in uncut state.

This great beast-epic has been traced as far back as the 10th century. Its central idea may have been a travesty of real persons and actual events, or it may have been an expression of thoughts and experiences, which recur in every generation, now on the general vices and weakness of humanity, now on the usual corruptions in Church and State, now on the historical events which occupied public attention from time to time. The enormous popularity of the subjects is shown by the long vogue which it had.

JOHN OF SALISBURY

10 DIALOGUS LINGUE ET VENTRIS.

GOTHIC LETTER. A large woodcut of an open hand occupies the verso of the last leaf.

4to. Levant morocco, by Rivière.

[Poiters, Jean Bouyer and Guillaume Bouchet, about 1499.]

AN UNRECORDED EDITION.

An exhortation to sobriety and industry in the form of a fable, which tells how the members of the body conspired together to starve the stomach, whom they found a tyrannous master, making them work hard to supply food for his enjoyment.

This allegory was introduced by Shakespeare into Coriolanus (Scene I, line 94), where Menenius Agrippa, addressing the mutinous citizens, begins:

"There was a time when all the body's members Rebell'd against the belly."

In conclusion he compares the mutinous Romans to the members of the body rebelling . against the stomach, typifying Rome.

The author, John of Salisbury, was one of the greatest scholars and philosophers of the Middle Ages. He was born near Salisbury; educated at Paris under the famous Peter Abelard and Alberic of Rheims, and at Chartres. He returned to England, c. 1150, to be secretary to Theodore, Abp. of Canterbury, and was employed on diplomatic missions to the Pope; incurred the displeasure of Henry II for defending the rights of the Church, and like Thomas à Becket was obliged to leave England for a time. He was with Becket at the time of his murder at Canterbury in 1170. There are one or two little holes through the text.

BISHOP THEOBALDUS (12th century)

[II] PHYSIOLOGUS DE DUODECIM ANIMALIUM NATURIS ET EORUM ALLEGORIIS.

GOTHIC LETTER. Sm. 4to. Levant morocco, by Rivière.

[Poitiers, Jean Bouyer and Guillaume Bouchet, 1500?].

£,10 105

These verses by Theobaldus or Thibault describe twelve "animals," their natures and the allegories concerning them; they are the lion, the eagle, the ant, the serpent, the fox, the stag, the bee, the whale, the sirens, the elephant, the turtle-dove, and the panther.

AN UNRECORDED EDITION printed at Poitiers.

FIRST EDITION OF BOTH VOLUMES. BLACK LETTER. Titles within woodcut borders, and on the reverse of each the arms of Henry VIII. At the end of each volume a woodcut of the arms of Lord Berners. 2 vols. Folio. Bound in old russia gilt.

London, Richard Pynson, 1523, 1525.

"Berner's great translation of Froissart's Chronicles is a splendid example of epical prose. He went much further than Malory in deliberately cultivating a sensuous and picturesque vocabulary and a simple, direct style, with studied cadences, perfectly fitted for chivalric narrative."

[Top margin of title to Vol. I repaired and last leaf of Vol. II in facsimile].

GESTA ROMANORUM

[14] EXGESTIS ROMANORUM HYSTORIE NOTABILES DE VICIIS VIRTUTIBUSQUE TRACTANTES, CUM APPLICATIONIBUS MORALIZATIS ET MISTICIS.

GOTHIC LETTER, double columns of 37 lines. The first page has ornamental woodcut border, on the last page is the large woodcut device of Leeu. Folio. Vellum, g.e.

Gouda, Gerardus Leeu, 1480.

Fine Copy from the Hoe Library.

THE FIRST DATED EDITION of the famous Gesta Romanorum, a Latin collection of stories, compiled probably about the beginning of the 14th century.

"The stories are drawn from very diverse sources; some of them are characteristically Oriental; some of them contain incidents of Roman history, refracted through the mediaeval imagination; some record only a witty response or wise saying, others again bear the mark of an original homilectic intent. All alike are applied, in the lengthy and violent "moralizations" that are appended, to the uses of pastoral theology and the illustration of Christian mysteries.

"To trace the history of the stories of the Gesta Romanorum, to chronicle their re-appearances in European literature, and to discuss their origin, would be an endless task. Some of the individual tales had honourable destinies in store for them."

JACOBUS DE THERAMO

[16] BELIAL.

Manuscript in German on 103 leaves of paper in double column.

With 16 coloured drawings, nearly all full page, and many initials in red.

Small folio. Original binding of wooden boards, covered with red vellum, two clasps.

Heilbronn on the Neckar, 1448.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OPPOSITE).

£,110

An interesting and well illustrated manuscript of an extremely curious religious romance written originally in Latin towards the end of the fourteenth century, and known as "Consolatio Peccatorum, seu lis Christi et Belial."

"The Devil is represented as suing Christ for having infringed upon the rights of his ownership by descending into hell. At the first trial Solomon acts as judge, while Moses is counsel for Jesus Christ and Belial for the Devil. At the second trial the Patriarch Joseph is judge, Aristotle and Isaiah defend Jesus Christ, and the Emperor Augustus and Jeremiah defend the Devil. In both trials the decision is in favour of Christ, but at the second trial the Devil is granted the right to take possession of the bodies and souls of the damned at the last judgment." (Cath. Encyc.).

This work was first printed in 1472 and was immediately put on the "Index librorum prohibitorum" notwithstanding the eminence and favour enjoyed by its author, Bishop Jacobus of Theramo (died 1417), during his life time.

At the end of this Manuscript is the ownership note, 1448, of Mathias von Menshen of Heilbronn, architect of the Knights of the Teutonic Order; as this is the same writing as the rest of the book we may assume that von Menshen was the writer and possibly the illustrator.

SIR JOHN MANDEVILLE

XVTH CENTURY MANUSCRIPT IN ENGLISH

[17] VOYAGES AND TRAVELS TO THE EAST.

Manuscript in English prose. Written on 118 leaves of vellum.

On the opening page of text is an initial "F" in gold with some marginal scroll decoration, in the lower margin a Coat-of-Arms in red, blue and silver. Other initials in blue with pen decoration in red.

Small 4to. Original wooden boards, covered with doeskin.

England (Yorkshire?), early 15th century.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OPPOSITE).

EARLY MANUSCRIPTS OF MANDEVILLE'S "VOYAGES AND TRAVELS" ARE OF EXTREME RARITY. Of the three known English versions, two are represented by single manuscripts, both in the British Museum (Cotton and Egerton collections). This present manuscript belongs to an abridged version which was the basis of all the printed texts up to 1725 when the Cotton manuscript was edited.

£ 275

Jean d'Outremeuse, a writer living at Liège, states in his Myreur des Histors that he received the story known to us as "The Travels of Sir John Mandeville" in 1472 from the lips of a dying man, Jean à la Barbe, who alleged that his real name was Sir John Mandeville. Whether Jean à la Barbe was an invention of Jean d'Outremeuse or the inventor of the travels, it is certain that the book is a most amusing compilation of all that was known, believed, or fancied at that time about the Eastern world.

Avowedly written for the unlearned, and combining interest of matter with a quaint simplicity of style, the book hit the popular taste, and in a marvel-loving age its most extravagant features probably had the greatest charm.

The present MS. has probably a Yorkshire origin. The Arms at the foot of the first leaf appear to be those of a member of the ancient Yorkshire family of Norton. There is a list of the early Archbishops of York on one of the preliminary leaves at the beginning, and an analysis of the life of St. Wilfred, Abp. of York at the end. (The preliminary leaves also contain rules of health for each month).

[21] LEGENDA AUREA. THAT IS TO SAY IN ENGLISH, THE GOLDEN LEGENDE.

BLACK LETTER. With large woodcut of the Holy Trinity, with Saints below, with numerous other woodcuts in the text.

Thick folio. Original stamped calf (rebacked).

Imprynted at London in Flete Street at the Sygne of the Sonne by Wynkyn de Worde, 1527.

A PERFECT COPY, WITH THE WOODCUTS COLOURED BY A CONTEMPORARY HAND.

With the signature on the first leaf of text of Richard Neile, Archbishop of York (1562-1640), "Richard Neile. Maj. 31, 1629."

This famous book of the "Lives of the Saints" was compiled by Jacobus de Voragine, Archbishop of Genoa, who composed it under the title of "Legenda Aurea," in the Latin tongue, about the year 1290. In the subsequent century it was translated into French by Jean de Vignay, and from this French translation it was converted into our own language by the indefatigable Caxton.

The work is rightly called by Warton "an inexhaustible repository of religious fable"; and such was the almost sacred light in which it was considered abroad, for upwards of two centuries, that the learned Claude Espence, in the year 1555, was obliged to make a public recantation for calling it Legenda Ferrea!

ROMANCE OF THE ROSE

[21A] LE ROMMANT DE LA ROSE, NOUVELLEMENT REVUE ET CORRIGEÉ OULTRE LES PRECEDENTES IMPRESSIONS. (By Guillaume de Lorris and Jean de Meun).

Small 8vo. Bound by Capé in crimson levant morocco, g.e.

Paris, Arnoul et Charles Angeliers Frères, 1538.

Bourdillon, Roman de la Rose, S. This was the last early edition to be issued, no other appearing till 1735.

£.50

"The most extraordinary production in verse of the thirteenth century is undoubtedly Le Roman de la Rose. It is indeed no single achievement, but two very remarkable poems, written at two different periods, by two authors whose characters and gifts were not only alien, but opposed—two poems which reflect two different conditions of society. Of its twenty-two thousand octo-syllabic lines, upwards of four thousand are the work of Guillaume de Lorris; the remainder is the work of a later writer, Jean de Meun. Its subject is an allegorised tale of love, his own or imagined, transferred to the realm of dreams. The writer would fain win the heart of his beloved, and at the same time he would instruct all amorous spirits in the art of love. He is twenty years of age, in the Maymorn of youth. He has beheld his beautiful lady, and been charmed by her fairness, her grace, her courtesy; she has received him with gentleness, but when he declares his love she grows alarmed. He gains at last the kiss which tells of her affection; but her parents intervening, throw obstacles between the lovers. Such, divested of ornament, allegory, and personification, is the theme of the poem." (Dowden).

AMADIS OF GAUL

A COMPLETE SET OF THE FOLIO EDITION OF AMADIS

[22] LE PREMIER (AU DOUZIÈME) LIVRE DE AMADIS DE GAULE

Qui traicte de maintes adventures d'Armes & d'Amours, qu'eurent plusieurs Chevaliers & Dames tant du Royaulme de la Grand Bretaigne, que d'Aultres Pays. Traduict nouvellement d'Espagnol en Françoys, par Le Seigneur des Essars, Nicolas de Herberay.

With many woodcuts, all uncoloured, in the style of Jean Cousin.

5 volumes. Folio. Old calf, gilt lines on sides, with Arms on sides (1st Duke of Montagu).

Paris, D. Janot, J. Longis, J. de Marnef, Estienne Groulleau, 1541-1559. £150

A COMPLETE SET OF THE FIRST TWELVE BOOKS OF AMADIS, THE ONLY ONES TO APPEAR IN FRENCH IN FOLIO, MANY OF THEM BEING FIRST EDITIONS. The seventh book, although in uniform binding, has narrower margins.

A complete set of all the twelve books of the French folio edition of Amadis is one of the greatest of rarities, and few only of the many great collectors who endeavoured to assemble the Romances of Chivalry have been able to boast a set like ours. Neither Firmin-Didot, nor Solar, nor Baron Pichon, nor Yimenez, succeeded, and Heredia only had the first ten books. Even the De Backer copy was imperfect, wanting a number of leaves.

In addition to the four books of Amadis proper, this set comprises Esplandian (the source of the word California), Perion, Lisuarte of Greece, Amadis of Greece, Florisel de Niquea, Rogelio of Greece, and Agesilan of Colchis.

[23] LOS QUATRO LIBROS DE AMADIS DE GAULA NUEUA-MENTE IMPRESSOS Y HYSTORIADOS. (IN SPANISH).

With 136 small and 4 large quaint woodcuts.

Folio. Red morocco extra, with vellum fly leaves, g.e., by Hering.

Venice, Juan Antonio de Sabia, 1533.

ESPLANDIAN

THE FIFTH BOOK OF AMADIS

[24] EL RAMO QUE DE LOS QUATRO LIBROS DE AMADIS DE GAULA SALE, LLAMADO LAS SERGAS DEL MUY ESFORÇADO CAVALLERO ESPLANDIAN, HIJO DEL EXCELENTE REY AMADIS DE GAULA.

Title in red and black, with woodcut illustration of Esplandian in armour and mounted on horseback. Small folio. Mottled calf.

£85

Alcala de Henares, Juan Gracian, 1588.

The excessively rare fifth book of the Armadis of Gaul cycle.

California owes its name to this Romance, which was first published in 1510. The following is a translation of the passage in question :---

"Know that on the right hand of the Indies there is an island called California, very close to the side of the Terrestrial Paradise; and it was peopled by black women, without any man among them, for they lived in the fashion of Amazons. They were of strong and hardy bodies, of ardent courage and great force. Their island was the strongest in all the world, with its steep cliffs and rocky shores. Their arms were of gold, and so was the harness of the white beasts they tamed to ride; for in the whole island there was no metal but gold."

Palau's Manual, Vol. I, p. 63.

LISUARTE OF GREECE

THE SEVENTH BOOK OF AMADIS

25 LISUARTE DE GRECIA.

Libro Septimo de Amadis, en el qual se tratan los Grandes Hechos en Armas de Lisuarte de Grecia hijo de Esplandian, y de los Grandes Hechos de Perion de Gaula.

Title in red and black with large woodcut illustration of two mounted knights. Small folio. Crimson morocco with heavily gilt scroll ornamentation, g.e. Lisbon, Alfonso Lopez, 1587.

The seventh book of Amadis de Gaul. Anselmo (No. 789) cites but two copies of this edition.

A few letters on title and last page in facsimile.

FLORISEL

THE TENTH BOOK OF AMADIS

[26] LA CRONICA DE LOS MUY VALIENTES Y ESFORÇADOS Y INVENCIBLES CAVALLEROS DON FLORISEL DE NIQUEA: y el Fuerte Anaxartes: hijos del muy Excelente Principe Amadis de Grecia: emendada del Estilo Antiguo: segun que la Escrivio Cirsea Reyna de Argines por el muy Noble Cavallero Feliciano de Silva.

Title printed in large red Gothic Letter, within woodcut border, beneath woodcut representing a mounted knight in armour, followed by a lady on horseback, with a servant.

Folio. Mottled calf.

Valladolid, a Costa de Juan Despinosa Librero, y de Maestre Nicolas Tierri Impressor, 1532.

FIRST EDITION. (Title-page in facsimile). This is the tenth book of the exploits of Amadis de Gaul, and the first of several editions of this book.

The Author, Feliciano de Silva is regarded by Hurtado (in his Historia de Literatura Española) as the greatest "continuation" author of the Amadis; and to him is attributed the ninth book also, which is notable for the introduction of the pastoral element, for the first time, in Spanish literature. This tenth book is a chronicle of the deeds of Florizel de Niquea and Anaxartes, sons of Prince Amadis of Greece, whose adventures recontinued in the eleventh book of Amadis, also from the pen of the indefatigable Silva. As page to the Duke of Medina Sidonia, Feliciano de Silva began his career of chivalry by saving the Duchess from drowning in the Guadalquiver. He afterwards became a knight, and by pandering to the public taste for romances of chivalry, won both fame and fortune. It is amusing to note that Don Quixote declared that his favourite books were those written by Feliciano de Silva. Accordingly, the astute priest who revised Quixote's library promptly condemned these romances to the flames, as being unduly stimulating to the imagination of his chivalrous friend.

Palau's Manual, Vol. I, p. 64, could only trace the existence of one copy of this book. Salva (No. 1515) mentions, but did not possess this book.

ARTHURIAN LEGEND

FIFTEENTH CENTURY ENGLISH MANUSCRIPT

[27] CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, FROM THE TIME OF BRUT TO

THE ASCENT OF EDWARD IV TO THE THRONE.

Manuscript in English prose, on 214 leaves of vellum, with 26 lines to a full page. The first page enclosed by an illuminated border : fine initials, many in gold and colours with marginal elaborations.

Folio. Original fifteenth-century binding of wooden boards covered with rough sheepskin (rebacked).

[England, circa 1461.]

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OPPOSITE).

This manuscript Chronicle of England with its long account of the exploits of Arthur and the prophecies of Merlin, has a place in the Arthurian literature. It was written apparently at the beginning of Edward IV's reign, probably about the time that Malory compiled his Morte Darthur.

£275

THE ARTHURIAN CHAPTERS OF THE CHRONICLE ARE AS FOLLOWS :---

Chapter 53. Of Uther Pendragon . . . and how King Arthur was got.

Chapter 54. Of King Arthur and how he fought with the Saxons.

Chapter 55. How King Arthur asked of Merlin the adventures of the six last Kings that were to reign in England and how the land should end. [Contains the Prophecies of Merlin].

Chapter 56. How King Arthur wedded Guinevere that was cousin to Cador Earl of Cornwall and how he conquered Ireland and of the Round Table.

Chapter 57. King Arthur went in to France and it conquered of Frolle that was a Roman.

Chapter 58. How King Arthur was crowned and of the letter that was sent to him from Rome.

Chapter 59. How King Arthur fought with a Giant that had ravished Helen King Hollis' niece of Little Britain.

Chapter 60. How King Arthur gave battle to the Emperor of Rome and slew him.

Chapter 61. How Mordred the Traitor arose against King Arthur.

Chapter 62. How Arthur gave his reign to Constantine his nephew.

Sir Frederic Madden, when keeper of the Manuscripts in the British Museum, examined this Manuscript and a copy of his report accompanies it.

THE MS. IS IN AN EXCELLENT STATE OF PRESERVATION, except as regards the end of Edward III's reign and the beginning of Richard II. Eight leaves of this part are mutilated and one or two leaves appear to be missing.

JOHN STOW, THE SIXTEENTH-CENTURY HISTORIAN, WAS AT ONE TIME IN POSSESSION OF THE MS., AS THERE ARE SEVERAL NOTES IN HIS HANDWRITING, particularly towards the close; he certainly made use of it in his Annals of England, but without specifying it. The MS. was afterwards used by John Speed, author of the The History of Great Britaine, 1611.

DON POLINDO

ONE OF THE RAREST SPANISH ROMANCES OF CHIVALRY

[28] HISTORIA DEL INVENCIBLE CAVALLERO DON POLINDO hijo del rey Paciano rey de Numidia: y de las maravillosas fazañas y estrañas aventuras que andando por el mundo acabo: por amores de la princesa Belisia fija del rey Naupilio rey de Macedonia.

Title in red and black, with three woodcuts.

Small folio. Crimson morocco, gilt panel border of interlaced scrolls, with fleurons in corners; gilt panelled back, g.e., doublures of blue crushed morocco, with gilt dentelles and fleurons; bound by Motte.

Toledo, 1526.

This quaint romance describes the adventures of Prince Polindo, son of the King of Numidia, who encountered perils in Greece and Turkey, and came to grips with the formidable Darbundeo, for love of his lady, the Princess Belisia, daughter of the King of Macedonia.

1,250

An excessively rare and valuable romance of chivalry, of which this may be the only perfect copy. Perez Pastor knew of only one copy, which lacked the title-page; and Heredia states that his copy, also lacking the title, was one of the only two copies known to bibliographers, adding that, in consequence of the missing title, "nobody has as yet given a complete description of this volume." Palau's Manual, Vol. VI, p. 134.

EMPERADOR CLARIMUNDO

[29] CHRONICA DO EMPERADOR CLARIMUNDO DONDE OS REYS DE PORTUGAL DESCENDEM.

Title in red and black, with large woodcut of a mounted knight, with legend "Clarimundo." Woodcut border round colophon.

Folio. Crimson morocco gilt, arms on sides, g.e., by Trautz-Bauzonnet.

Lisbon, Antonio Alvarez, 1601.

The Author, João de Barros, was a page in the service of Don João III, and published this romance under the King's patronage. It is a long romance of chivalry, crowded with actors and events, and contains affecting, even passionate, episodes. In the eighty-second chapter the hero delivers a series of prophecies in verse foretelling the triumphs of the Portuguese arms in the Eastern and Western Oceans.

FLORANDO DE CASTILLA

[30] FLORANDO DE CASTILLA, LAURO DE CAVALLEROS, COM-PUESTO EN OCTAVA RIMA, POR EL LICENCIADO HIERONYMO DE GUERTA.

With vignette on title. Small 4to. Gilt brown morocco, g.e.

Alcala de Henares, Juan Gracian, 1588.

This chivalric poem relates the adventures of Florando of Castile in Babylonia, whither he had gone to rescue the Infanta Saphirina. It succeeded the Palmerin romances of chivalry, which had such a great vogue in the sixteenth century. If these works were unpopular with the ascetics, "it is equally true," says Hurtado, "that people of such cultured taste as the Emperor Charles V, Saint Theresa and Juan de Valdes read them," while they numbered amongst their apologists Lope de Vega and the Portuguese littérateur Francisco Rodriguez Lobo.

Salamanca, Hans Giesser, 1503.

Magnificent copy of the sole edition of an excessively rare work, complete with both titles and the rare index. Salva (No. 1616) emphazizes its extreme rarity, stating that he had seen no other perfect copy but his own, and knew of no other besides that and the one in the library of the Instituto Asturiano.

In this medieval history, fabulous tales have been linked up with facts, including the chivalrous exploits of the Knight of the Swan, "a story full of enchantments, duels, and much of what characterizes the books of chivalry," for this reason Salva classifies it under the section of Romances of Chivalry in his bibliography.

The great history of "Overseas," was compiled at the instance of, if not actually by, Alfonso the Sage (Alfonso X), the highly cultured Spanish medieval sovereign who did so much for Spanish Literature and nationalized the Castilian language. It begins with the life of Mahomet and records the early Crusades in the Holy Land down to the year 1270. It is most valuable as a specimen of the earliest Castilian prose, indeed, as Ticknor declares: "Castilian prose can hardly be said to have existed earlier, unless we are willing to reckon as specimens of it the few meagre documents, generally grants in hard legal forms."

LANCELOT DU LAC

[33] HISTOIRE CONTENANT LES GRANDES PROUESSES, VAIL-LANCES, ET HEROIQUES FAICTS D'ARMES DE LANCELOT DU LAC, CHEUALIER DE LA TABLE RONDE.

Lyon, Benoist Rigaud, 1591.

The famous Lancelot romance, describing the adventures which befell Lancelot du Lac and other Knights of the Round Table.

The authorship is ascribed to Walter Map, a Welshman, who became Archdeacon of Oxford in 1197. His original Latin text was translated into French about the year 1220 by Robert de Borron, an Anglo-Norman knight.

LA SALADE

THE STORY OF TANNHAUSER

[34] LA SALADE, NOUVELLEMENT IMPRIMEE A PARIS, Laquelle fait mention de tous les Pays du Monde et du Pays de la Belle Sibille. Avec la figure pour aller au Mont de la dicte Sibille. Et aussi la figure de la mer et de la terre avec plusieurs belles remonstrances.

Title in red and black within a wide woodcut border, the reverse of title entirely occupied by a very large woodcut, numerous woodcuts in the text, and three large folding plates.

Folio. A magnificent copy in levant morocco, sides elaborately tooled in gold and blind, doublure of blue levant with a magnificent dentelle border in gold, watered blue fly leaves, g.e.

Paris, Philippe le Noir (1527).

Harrisse 140. (Harrisse could only locate one copy, that in the St. Geneviève Library). The Author gives an account of his visit to the Mountain of the Sibyl and describes the surroundings of the Cave of the Sibyl and its curious legend. The narrative is a variant of the story of Tannhäuser. A German knight and his squire enter the cave and are welcomed by "la royne" and her companions, and are prevailed upon by various inducements to remain, but they may not leave before eight days are passed. If on the 9th day they wish to stay longer, they cannot leave before the 30th day, if not on the 30th, they remain till the 330th, if not gone by then they stay for ever. The knight reports in time and leaves the subterranean abode on the 330th day. Like Tannhäuser, he cannot rest until he obtains absolution from the Pope. Absolution refused, he is prevailed upon by his esquire to return to the Mount of Venus, on the pretext that the Pope was seeking their death.

It has special American importance, for in the chapter on Geography, La Salle mentions Greenland on two occasions, and refers to certain rumours about this Northern land which caused him to pre-suppose a semi-civilisation in these American lands.

THIS ROMANCE, UNDER THE TITLE OF THE "MIRROR OF KNIGHTHOOD," BECAME A FAVOURITE IN ENGLAND.

The first volume of this chivalric romance, relating to the exploits of the "Emperor Trebacio and his sons, the great Phoebus and distinguished Rosicler" in Greece and Byzantium, was translated from the Latin by Diego Ortuñez de Calahorra. The second volume is the work of Pedro la Sierra Infançon, and the third, containing parts III and IV, was written by the Licentiate Marcos Martinez of Alcala.

LOS NUEVE DE LA FAMA

[36] EL TRIUMPHO DE LOS NUEVE MAS PRECIADOS VARONES DE LA FAMA.

Qui fut l'ung des Douze Pers de France. Lequel avec le secours et ayde du Roy Charlemaigne chassa les Payens hors de Romme et remist le Pape en son siege, et fut long temps en Faerie puis revint.

FIRST QUARTO EDITION. Title in red and black. With large woodcuts on recto and verso of title-page, 39 other woodcuts, chiefly representing battle scenes.

Small 4to. Bound by Trautz-Bauzonnet in crimson levant morocco, g.e.

Paris, Par la Veuve feu Trepperel et Jehan Jehannot (about 1515).

Otker or Olger, called the Dane, was a Frankish Markgraf who fought with the Lombards in 773, against Carl the Great, on behalf of the widow of Karlmann, the younger brother of the Frankish conqueror. Beaten and made prisoner, he transferred his fealty to Charlemagne, and became one of the Douze Pairs of romance. Around this historical personage, legends from many different sources grouped themselves and he became a hero of Fairyland. The Turpin Chronicle (about A.D. 1100) alludes to his wonderful deeds as renowned in ballads "sung to this very day." In the prose-romance compiled in the fifteenth century he is associated with Morgen la Fée who takes him to Avalon. The chess board incident is found in Ogier as well as in the Aymon; but here the slayer is Charlot, the Emperor's son, and the slain young Baudouin, Ogier's son.

Only two other copies are known, formerly in the Tufton and Didot collections.

This copy is from the libraries of Comte de Toulouse, King Louis Phillipe, Count Raoul de Lignerolles and de Backer.

PALMERIN OF OLIVA

[41] LIBRO DEL FAMOSO CAVALLERO PALMERIN DE OLIVA, que por el mundo grandes hechos en armas hizo sin saber cuyo hijo fuesse. Title in Roman Letter with woodcut device; text in Gothic Letter.

Folio. Vellum, gilt border.

Toledo, Pedro Lopez de Haro, 1580.

This is the second of another series of romances of chivalry, similar to the cycle of Amadis de Gaul, and relates to the exploits of PALMERIN DE OLIVA. This cycle is known as the Palmerines, and is rich in episode, many of the adventures having occurred to the first hero amongst the palms and olive groves of Constantinople, from which he derives his name.

Palau's Manual, VI, 23. Perez Pastor, La Imprenta en Toledo (No. 357) cites only one copy.

[42] L'HISTOIRE DE PALMERIN D'OLIVE, FILZ DU ROY FLORENDOS DE MACEDONE, ET DE LA BELLE GRIANE, FILLE DE REMICIUS EMPEREUR DE CONSTANTINOPLE:

PRIMALEON

[43] LOS TRES LIBROS DEL MUY ESFORCADO CAVALLERO PRIMALEON ET POLENDOS SU HERMANO, HIJOS DEL EMPERADOR PALMERIN DE OLIVA.

Three title-pages in red and black, each with a woodcut above title, and smaller woodcuts in the text. Folio. Calf gilt, g.e.

Venice, Juan Antonio de Nicolini de Sabio, 1534.

Primaleon relates the more complicated history of Palmerin de Oliva's sons, Primaleon and Polendos, with "Don Duardos," Prince Edward of England, whose name was given to a dramatized version of this romance, by Gil Vicente. The author of these two romances is unknown: some have attributed the work to a lady of Ciudad Rodrigo; others have cited Francisco Vasquez as the author. These romances were followed by Palmerin en Inglaterra, which is indebted to Cervantes for the perpetuation of its fame, being one of the works which Quixote was enjoined to preserve in his library. The three romances had a great European vogue in the sixteenth century. This fine and much sought after edition is mentioned by Salva in his notes to Palmerin de Oliva, but he did not possess a copy. The woodcut on the first titlepage represents Primaleon with Polendos and Duardos, facing the giant Gataru in the battlefield; while those on the second and third title-pages show a mounted knight, squire and page. The smaller woodcuts are quaint illustrations of the scenes in the story.

CHRISTINE DE PISAN

A COMPLETE AND UNRECORDED COPY OF "THE FEAT OF ARMS AND CHIVALRY" TRANSLATED AND PRINTED BY CAXTON

[47] THE BOOK OF THE FAYTTES OF ARMES AND OF CHYUALRYE.

[Translated from the French by Caxton.]

BLACK LETTER. 144 leaves (the last blank). 31 lines to a page. Woodcut initial letters.

Folio. Red levant morocco gilt, g.e., by Bedford.

[Westminster.] William Caxton, 14 July, 1489.

(sold)

FIRST EDITION OF CAXTON'S TRANSLATION OF THE "FAYTTES OF ARMES AND CHIVALRY," WHICH WAS ORIGINALLY COMPILED IN FRENCH BY CHRISTINE DE PISAN (1364-1430).

THIS IS THE FIRST WORK IN ENGLISH ON MILITARY AND NAVAL WARFARE, AND ON THE LAWS OF WAR.

The translation into English and the printing was undertaken by Caxton at the express desire of Henry VII, who himself lent the manuscript, now in the British Museum, from which the translation was made.

A PERFECT COPY, COMPLETE WITH THE BLANK LEAF AT END. In fine condition with wide margins; it measures 265 x 184 mm.; a few slight marginal repairs and some insignificant wormholes stopped.

ONLY SIX QUITE PERFECT COPIES ARE RECORDED and of these, two have been made up with leaves taken from another copy.

AN UNRECORDED COPY. This copy was unknown to De Ricci when he compiled his "Census of Caxtons" in 1911, and is not listed in the Gesamtkatalog der Wiegendrucke.

This copy comes to us from a descendant of the "Magister Whalley," who about 1540 wrote on the blank leaf at the end of this copy a list of the works in his library. The book has thus been in the possession of the one family for about 400 years at least, and in all probability was purchased from Caxton by a member of the same family.

The contents of the book are as follows:

PART I: REASONS FOR WAR, TRAINING IN ARMS, COMMAND OF THE ARMY, AND ORDERING OF BATTLE. "The fyrst partye deuyseth the manere that kynges and prynces oughten to holde in the fayttes of theyr werres and bataylles after thorde of bokes, dictes, and examples of the most preu  $\mathcal{O}$  noble conquerours of the World, etc."

PART II: ASSAULTING AND DEFENDING CASTLES AND CITIES, AND NAVAL WARFARE. The second partye speketh of . . . stratagenies of thordre & manere to fyghte & deffende castellis & cytees . . . and to make warre & gyue bataylle in ryuers and in the See.

Inserted in this part is an account of the "modern" way of assaulting a castle or town by the use of guns. This information the author says was given to her by certain

CHRISTINE DE PISAN

"wise knights that be expert in the said things." It gives particulars of the guns in use at the time, and appears to relate to some particular siege.

(Extract from Chapter XX) . . . Naval matters are treated in Chapters 34 (Blockade), 38 (Naval Battles), 39 (Fitting out Warships).

PART III: LAWS OF WAR. "The thyrde parte speketh of the droytes & ryghtes of armes after the lawes & droyt wreton."

PART IV: LAWS OF WAR (SAFE CONDUCTS, TRUCES, ETC.), ALSO TRIAL BY COMBAT, AND HERALDRY. "The IIII partye speketh of the droytes of armes in the faytes of sauf conduytes of tryews, of marke, & after of champ of bataylle, that is of fyghtyng within lystes."

Parts III & IV are chiefly compiled from the "Arbre des Batailles" of Honoré Bonet. "The influence of chivalry on the laws of nations nowhere appears more clearly than here." (See Huizinga. "The Waning of the Middle Ages, pp., 92 & 93).

Particularly interesting are chapters in Part IV on the trial of right "by single combat within the lists," as allowed and ordained by the Imperial and Lombard Laws.

Three chapters are devoted to Heraldry: Chap. XV: The Fayte of blasonnying of armes. Chap. XVI: In what manere a gentylman may chalenge another mannys armes. Chap. XVII: Of the armes & penoncelles & of the colours moste noble that apparteyne to the fayte of blasonnying.

THE NOVEL IN ENGLISH

GEOFFREY CHAUCER, 1340-1400

cos

"THE FIRST GREAT ENGLISH STORY-TELLER."

"It is difficult to pass over the name of Chaucer without marking the high pitch of perfection to which he brought the art of narration in verse. Not until centuries after his time could there be found in English prose the equivalent of his spirited incident, his delicate characterization, his dramatic realism, his sly humour. . . The great power has left its impress on his story-telling in a hundred subtleties of inspired observation. He was a great narrative artist, incomparably the greatest of an age that loved story-telling and knew nothing of the drama." (WALTER RALEIGH).

Lyly scored the great literary success of his life while he was still a "noted wit" of the university, by the publication of his "Euphues, the Anatomy of Wit," and the second part, called "Euphues and his England." On its appearance it took the fashionable world of ladies and courtiers by storm, so that "our nation was in his debt for a new English which he taught them." Euphuism, became the language of the court, until it was driven out in 1590 by a new affectation, and the Euphuized gentlewoman gave place to the Arcadian, who were complimented by their gallants in "pure Sir Philip Sidney."

"Euphues serves to mark the transition from verse to prose as the vehicle for narrative romantic fiction."

THE FIRST ENGLISH PASTORAL ROMANCE

[57] THE COUNTESSE OF PEMBROKES ARCADIA.

Now since the First Edition augmented and ended.

Title within ornamental border. Small folio. Calf.

London, William Ponsonbie, 1593.

THE FIRST EDITION OF THE COMPLETE TEXT AND THE FIRST FOLIO EDITION.

The Edition of 1590 consisted of the First, Second, and a portion of the Third Book of Arcadia, ending abruptly in the middle of a sentence in the Third Book. The Countess of Pembroke (Sir Philip Sidney's sister) subsequently discovered the draft of the continuation, forming the conclusion of the Third Book, with the succeeding Fourth and Fifth Books, and she accordingly published this, the Second Edition, "Augmented and Ended," AND IT IS THIS EDITION UPON WHICH ALL LATER EDITIONS ARE BASED.

"As the first example in English of a pastoral romance, it commanded an influence on later writers, both in England and France, which no other Elizabethan romance attained, so that Sidney's borrowings and lendings have a real bearing in the development of the prose story.

'Read the Countess of Pembroke's Arcadia,' says Gabriel Harvey, 'a gallant legendary, full of pleasurable accidents and profitable discourses; for three things especially, very notable—for amorous courting (he was young in years); for sage counselling (he was ripe in judgment) and for valourous fighting (his sovereign profession was arms); and delightful pastime by way of pastoral exercises, may pass for the fourth.' The Arcadia, in fact, is in some sort of halfway house between the older romances of chivalry and the long-winded "heroic" romances of the seventeenth century. Action and adventure are already giving way to the description of sentiment, or are remaining merely as a frame on which the diverse-coloured flowers of sentiment may be broidered."

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OPPOSITE).

With the Errata leaf in Vol. I and the text uncorrected.

"Tom Jones" is one of the greatest novels in the English Language,—Edward Dowden wrote "that the only great English epic of that century is the prose Odyssey of which Mr. Tom Jones is the hero." The late Walter Raleigh styled it "the Epic of Youth."

FIRST EDITION. 4 vols. Small 8vo. Fine copy in original calf. London, for A. Millar, 1752.

£52 10s

£,15 15s

£37 10s

An exceptionally fine and tall copy, with the rare leaf of advertisements of "The Universal-Register-Office" following p. 262 in Vol. II.

"I think that of all the novels of that period, 'Amelia' is the one which gives the most generally truthful ideas of the manners and habits of middle-class society then. There is little, if any, exaggeration or caricature, and I have no doubt that Fielding intended faithfully to depict Society, such as he knew it, with its merits and its faults; its licentious manners, and domestic virtues; its brawls; its oaths; its prisons and its masquerades."—William Forsyth.

[101] [JONATHAN WILD]. MISCELLANIES. FIRST EDITION. 3 vols. 8vo. Original calf (joints repaired). London, Printed for the Author, 1743.

In the Miscellanies was first published "The Life of Mr. Jonathan Wild the Great." "The fundamental brain work necessary for a great work of fiction is not only present but apparent in all Fielding's novels. But in Jonathan Wild above all he indulges to the full his taste for clearness and unity of intellectual structure."

The Thorn-Dury copy, with note by him on the fly-leaf.

TOBIAS SMOLLETT, 1721-1771

"He knew the very spirit of adventure, and gave a long lease of life in England to his revival of the picaresque romance."

[105] THE ADVENTURES OF PEREGRINE PICKLE. IN WHICH ARE INCLUDED, MEMOIRS OF A LADY OF QUALITY. FIRST EDITION. 4 vols. Small 8vo. Fine copy in original calf. London, for the Author, 1751.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OVERLEAF).

"Its brightness and hearty fun made the book widely popular and the author famous. The hero is a scoundrel and a swashbuckler with little to his credit but wit and courage, and the book is mainly occupied with his adventures in England and on the continent, many of them of an amatory character. Smollett in this book seized the opportunity to let fly at all his real or supposed enemies with unrestrained scurrility. In the second edition he cut out these attacks and toned down many other passages."

[106] THE ADVENTURES OF FERDINAND COUNT FATHOM. FIRST EDITION. 2 vols. Small 8vo. Fine copy in original calf.

London, for W. Johnston, 1753.

Smollett's third novel, but his most sustained effort. The irony of the opening chapters, the ruthless characterisation of a scoundrel, and the description of the robber's hut in the Black Forest exhibit a striking reserve of power. Few novels have been more imitated.

[IIO] THE EXPEDITION OF HUMPHREY CLINKER. AN UNCUT COPY OF THE FIRST ISSUE OF THE FIRST EDITION.

3 vols. Small 8vo. Uncut copy bound by Rivière in full red morocco.

London, for W. Johnston and B. Collins, 1671 (1771).

Exceptionally rare in uncut state.

"In this novel the author most successfully executes, what had scarcely ever been before attempted—a representation of the different effects which the same scenes, and persons and transactions, have on different dispositions and tempers."—John Dunlop.

"The novel of 'Humphrey Clinker' is, I do think, the most laughable story that has been written since the goodly art of novel-writing began."—W. M. Thackeray. "'Humphrey Clinker' is the best of his novels. It is pervaded by a manly tone of feeling, natural, caustic, and humorous observation, and fine discrimination of character. The descriptions of rural scenery, society, and manners are clear and fascinating. Smollett was gifted with a keen sense of the comic and ludicrous, which he deftly used."—John Mackintosh.

[113] THE FEMALE QUIXOTE; OR, THE ADVENTURES OF ARABELLA. FIRST EDITION. 2 vols. Small 8vo. Original calf (repaired)

£5 15s

London, for A. Millar, 1752.

"A clever satirical novel in which is set forth the perils that environ a young lady who goes through life applying the ideas and standards of the heroic romances, and expecting from the Tom Joneses or Lovelaces of the eighteenth century the deportment and conversation of the grand Cyrus, or of Ibrahim, that illustrious Pasha."

SAMUEL JOHNSON, 1709-1784

[115] [RASSELAS]. THE PRINCE OF ABISSINIA. A TALE. FIRST EDITION. 2 vols. 12mo. Fine copy in brown morocco gilt, g.e. by Rivière. London, for R. and J. Dodsley and W. Johnston, 1759.

"In 'Rasselas' Dr. Johnson showed that the new kind of writing (novels) could be used to give entertainment to a sermon and in this he was to have a multitude of followers."

"Johnson's immediate object in writing it was, as the printer told Boswell, 'that with the profits he might defray the expense of his mother's funeral and pay some little debts that she had left.' There could be no doubt that a novel by the great lexicographer would be eagerly bought by the public, and, in seeking for a framework for his story, it is possible that Johnson was directed to Abyssinia by the memory of his labours, twenty-five years earlier, on the translation of Father Lobo's Voyage to Abyssinia. However this may be, the theme of the story was all his own."

[116] [RASSELAS]. THE PRINCE OF ABISSINIA. A TALE. Another copy of the FIRST EDITION. 2 vols. Small 8vo. Orig. calf. London, for R. and J. Dodsley and W. Johnston, 1759. £65 Contemporary name on titles. One sheet misplaced.

JOHN SHEBBEARE, 1709-1788

[116A] THE MARRIAGE ACT. A NOVEL, CONTAINING A SERIES OF INTERESTING ADVENTURES.

FIRST EDITION. 2 vols. 12mo. Original calf. London: 1754. £6 6s The author, by profession a surgeon, was imprisoned for his attacks in this novel on Lord Hardwicke's unpopular Marriage Act of the previous year.

In 1758 Shebbeare was again sentenced to imprisonment, besides having to stand in the pillory. He was, however, allowed to stand upright between the upper and lower boards of the pillory, while an Irish chairman held an umbrella over his head. At the end of an hour he retired amidst the cheers of the crowd, who had been invited by printed bills to come and see "the British champion."

On 29 Feb. 1764 Shebbeare was granted a pension of  $\pounds 200$  a year by the King. The names of Johnson and Shebbeare were usually coupled in this connection; it was said that the King had pensioned both a He-bear and a She-bear. Wilkes spoke of them as the "two famous doctors" who were "the state hirelings called pensioners," and whose names "disgraced the civil list." His sudden transition from pillory to pension was glanced at in "Humphrey Clinker," and he is the "Ferret" of Smollett's "Sir Launcelot Greaves."

[124] THE CASTLE OF OTRANTO, A STORY.

Translated by William Marshal, Gent. From the Original Italian of Onuphrio Muralto, Canon of the Church of St. Nicholas at Otranto.

RARE FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Fine copy in contemporary half calf. London, for Tho. Lowndes, 1765.

"Fifty years before the success of Scott, the attempt was here made 'to blend the two kinds of romance, the ancient and the modern,' to reintroduce, that is, the greatest possible freedom of invention, and to give full rein to fancy by the admission of the supernatural element of the old romances, at the same time borrowing from the newly developed novel its close adherence to nature and life in the matter of character and conversation.

"The Castle of Otranto, as a story, is raised on the structural scheme of the modern detective novel; the puzzle which every page complicates finds its solution only in the last few pages." (Walter Raleigh).

THE FIRST EDITION AS WRITTEN BY BECKFORD IN FRENCH, AND THE FIRST AUTHORISED EDITION.

Small 8vo. Fine copy in the original half calf.

Lausanne, chez Isaac Hignou & Compe. M.DCC.LXXXVII.

The first English edition published in the previous year had been translated by Henley from his transcription of Beckford's manuscript. Early in 1786 he had proposed publication to Beckford, but the latter, definitely forbidding publication for another year, wrote: "I would not on any account have him precede the French edition." Henley, however, took no notice of this command and published his translation on 7th June, 1786.

On hearing that Henley had published contrary to his wishes, Beckford at once handed his manuscript to Hignou, a Lausanne bookseller, for immediate publication.

CHARLES DICKENS, 1812-1870

"The most popular and famous of English writers. In his own realm he has always been unrivalled. His genius was essentially creative, humorous, and fantastic. He was an idealist and a dreamer of poetic dreams. What he had observed of human nature served him as raw material. His sleepless imagination exaggerated the comic side of everything, and developed the suggestions of reality into humorous idealisms far transcending the proportions of ordinary life."

GEORGE MEREDITH, 1828-1909

His humour is bound up with his broad, sympathetic knowledge of life. It is a part of that largeness of view which is necessary to his conception of the comic writer, who "must be able to penetrate." He has wit, brilliant and illumining; it is his distinguishing, his unique possession; no other English writer possesses in equal degree dexterity in the manipulation of language and the power to impart to the reader enjoyment of such subtlety.

[383] THE EBB-TIDE. A TRIO AND QUARTETTE.

FIRST EDITION. Post 8vo. Original cloth, uncut.

London, 1894.

Presentation Copy from Robert Louis Stevenson to his Mother, with inscription by her on fly-leaf :----

"This is my Presentation Copy of the Ebb Tide, but my dear Son always forgot to put his name on it till it was too late. M. I. Stevenson, Dec. 1894."

This book was written in collaboration with his step-son Lloyd Osbourne, who has made a further interesting inscription on the fly-title :---

"To Aunt Maggie. In memory of the patrimoni S the never-to-be-forgotten days of our voyaging in the Eastern Pacific, from hers ever affectionately, Lloyd Osbourne. Vailima, March 3rd, 1895."

Mrs. Stevenson joined her son at Vailima in the Spring of 1891 and remained theretill after his death (December 4th, 1894). This volume was evidently inscribed by Lloyd Osbourne when Mrs. Stevenson was leaving Vailima.

PRINCE JUAN MANUEL: 1282-1348

The honour of being the forerunner of the real modern short story must be awarded to this Spanish Prince.

[522] EL CONDE LUCANOR.

Compuesto por el excelentissimo principe don Juan Manuel, hijo del Infante don Manuel, y nieto del sancto rey don Fernando.

THE EXCESSIVELY RARE FIRST EDITION, EDITED BY GONÇALO DE ARGOTE. With woodcut heraldic device on title-page, and printer's device on last page.

Small 4to. Brown morocco gilt, g. e.

Seville, Hernando Diaz, 1575.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OPPOSITE).

The Conde Lucanor is a collection of forty-nine historical tales and anecdotes with an individual copla or proverb summarising the moral of each tale. It is, as Martin Hume states, a book of the highest importance, and one which must always be held as marking a great epoch in literary history. "The honour of being the forerunner of the real modern short story must be awarded to the Spanish prince. The book was enormously popular, and versions of it soon found their way to France and Italy, and thence many of the tales drifted to England. In more than one of the Canterbury Tales the influence of Don Juan Manuel may be seen."

Don Juan Manuel, born circa 1282, was the son of the Infante Don Manuel and grandson of (Saint) Ferdinand III, King of Leon and Castile. He was a favourite of Ferdinand IV, who made him his chief steward and a member of his Council of State.

The Editor of El Conde Lucanor was a sixteenth century litterateur of Seville, who wrote the famous Libro de la Monteria and various historical works on Seville. Palau's Manual, Vol. V, p. 43. Salva, 1885. Heredia, 2626.

DIEGO DE SAN PEDRO (15th Century)

ONE OF THE FIRST ATTEMPTS TO CHANGE THE FORM OF ROMANTIC FICTION

524] CARCEL DE AMOR.

Woodcut on title, illustrating "Love's Prison," and numerous small woodcuts. Small 8vo. Old vellum.

Venice, Juan Batista Pedrezano, 1531.

A rare edition of Diego de San Pedro's most important work, first published in 1492. It was one of the first attempts to change the form of romantic fiction—until then, almost exclusively concerned with romances of chivalry.

"The Carcel de Amor (Love's Prison) is a novel in which the author disguises his own memories and personal confessions as the amours of Leriano and Laureola, and threw in love-letters, fabulous adventures, a eulogy of women and allegories in Dante's manner. This famous book went through thirty editions in Spain, and more than twenty in foreign languages."

Palau's Manual, Vol. VI, pp. 421-2. Salva, No. 1671.

[525] CARCER D'AMORE TRADOTTO DAL MAGNIFICIO MESSER LELIO DE MANFREDI, FERRARESE, DE IDIOMA SPAGNOLO IN LINGUA MATERNA, HISTORIATO E NUOVAMENTE CORRETTO. With large woodcut on title and numerous picturesque small woodcuts. Small 8vo. Vellum. Venice, 1537.

The early imaginative writers of Spain and Portugal were accustomed to call some compositions "Comedias" even though they were not primarily written for acting, but were novels in dramatic form.

THE EARLIEST OF THE PICARESQUE NOVELS

[526] [CELESTINA]. TRAGICOMEDIA DE CALISTO Y MELIBEA. Title in red and black. Large woodcut on title-page, and smaller cuts in text. 8vo. Crimson morocco, gilt inside dentelles, g. e., by Trautz-Bauzonnet.

Seville, 1523.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OVERLEAF).

THE FIRST OCTAVO EDITION OF CELESTINA.

"The most authentic masterpiece written in Spanish prose up to the close of the 15th Century, and a work of first rate significance in the comparative literature of Europe. In spite of it being styled "Tragicomedia," it is not an acting drama, but a series of scenes. Under the pretext of warning the young against the dangerous results of guilty love and bad company, the author relates the growing passion of a youth and maid, Calisto and Melibea. About the two, swarm many lesser figures : in the foreground the go-between Celestina; then vicious valets, bullies, shameless wenches, frequenters of low houses, bourgeois, a throng of creatures now comic, now tragic; charming or horrible."

"Among these live and picturesque creations Celestina is the most amazingly real and vivid; she has become a definitive and universal type. The rest are pallid at her side. Taken all together, they portray to perfection the dregs and vices of the same society whose noble aspirations and knightly ideals were revealed in the Amadis. Low life is painted with a crudity which bespeaks a living model studied in the open air, not in any weak studio-light. Thus the Celestina comes to be the earliest of the picaresque novels."—It was first translated into English in 1631 by Mabbe, under the title of The Spanish Bawd.

Palau's Manual (II, 127).

Small folio. Boards.

[Valencia?-circa 1520].

(SEE ILLUSTRATION BELOW).

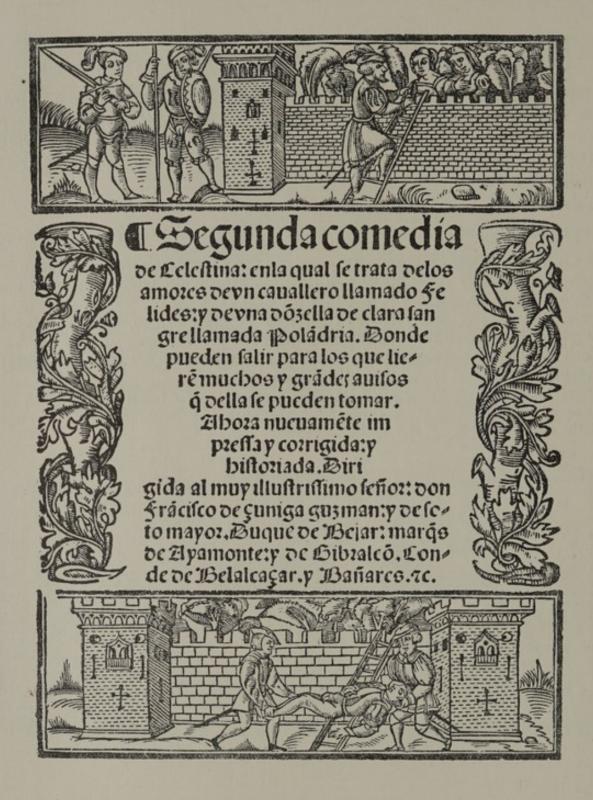

£105

This is the first known edition of an excessively rare early Spanish novel in dramatic form, of which only one other copy is recorded, namely, the Grenville copy in the British Museum.

Torres Naharro's comedies followed the style of the Celestina, being developed entirely in dialogue, and based on a similar theme : "the disasters caused by love "— which has inspired the author of Thebayda to evolve a curious medley of sentiments expressing the highest morality and the grossest indecency.

Torres Naharro's works were subsequently banned by the Inquisition; and if, as seems probable, he was the author of Thebayda, this circumstance would account for the extreme scarcity of the work.

SEE NO. 528.

FELICIANO DE SILVA

"The great literary merchant who for the first time in Spain, and perhaps in Europe, set up a factory of novels which the public of that day awaited and devoured with as much eagerness as the innumerable readers of the elder Dumas followed the thread of the Three Musketeers and its seauels."

[528] SEGUNDA COMEDIA DE CELESTINA EN LA QUAL SE TRATA DE LOS AMORES DE UN CAVALLERO LLAMADO FELIDES Y DE UNA DONZELLA DE CLARA SANGRE LLAMADA POLANDRIA. Title within woodcut border; numerous woodcuts in text. Gothic Letter.

Small 4to. Brown morocco, gilt Arms on sides, crimson morocco doublures gilt, g. e., by Chambolle-Duru.

Salamanca, Pedro de Castro, 1536.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OPPOSITE).

"In this romance, which proved very popular at the time, Celestina is raised from the dead, and trafficks with a second pair of lovers, as with Calisto and Melibea in the original dialogue."

Palau (in his Manual, VI, 516) mentions a copy seen by Brunet, but apparently hasnot seen one himself. No copy of this edition in the British Museum.

Palau's Manual (VII, 62) only cites the copy described by Wolfe who suggests that the author's name is revealed in acrostic-fashion, in four preliminary stanzas; the initial letters of these lines spelling "El Bachiller Sebastian Fernandez."

No copy in the British Museum or Hispanic Society's Library.

PEDRO ARETINO, 1492-1556

THE FIRST SPANISH EDITION OF ARETINO'S "DIALOGUES OF COURTESANS" FORBIDDEN BY THE SPANISH INQUISITION

[530] COLOQUIO DE LAS DAMAS. Small 8vo. Red morocco gilt fillet border, g. e. [Secretly printed], 1548.

The first Spanish edition of this work, translated from the Italian by Fernan Suarez. The "colloquy" is supposed to take place between Lucrecia, a courtesan of Rome, and Antonia, her friend, in which they relate their views and experiences of low life. Palau supposes the book to have been printed at Lyons by Gryphius, but according to Salva, it seems to have been printed surreptitiously at Salamanca. This first edition is extremely rare and contains an interesting prologue by the translator who has written three verses at the end, pointing the moral of the transitory nature of earthly pleasures. He explains that his purpose in publishing this contribution to "profane" literature is to reveal to blind youth the abyss which lies at the end of the downward path. It is certain that this first edition was published secretly and that copies were only permitted to circulate "sous le manteau."

Salva, No. 1707. Palau's Manual, Vol. I, p. 104.

JUAN RODRIGUEZ FLORIAN

[531] COMEDIA LLAMADA FLORINEA, QUE TRACTA DE LOS AMORES DEL BUEN DUQUE FLORIANO, CON LA LINDA Y MUY CASTA Y GENEROSA BELISEA.

FIRST EDITION. Title in red and black, within woodcut border. Small 4to. Old brown calf.

Medina del Campo, Guillermo de Millis, 1554.

£,125

This work is a composition in prose, with some verse interspersed, and is divided into forty-three scenes. The author's object was to imitate the style of the Celestina. "Some of the scenes are as indecent as any in the Celestina; but it ends with an honourable love-match between Floriano and Belisea, the hero and heroine of the drama, and promises to give their wedding in a continuation, which, however, never appeared."

Palau's Manual, Vol. VI, p. 317.

ALONSO DE VILLEGAS SELVAGO

[532] COMEDIA LLAMADA SELVAGIA, EN QUE SE INTRO-DUZEN LOS AMORES DE UN CAVALLERO LLAMADO SELVAGO CON UNA YLUSTRE DAMA DICHA YSABELA. FIRST EDITION. Title in red and black, beneath woodcut illustration. Small 4to. Crimson morocco, inside dentelles, g. e., by Thibaron-Joly.

Toledo, Joan Ferrer, 1554.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION BELOW.)

£125

THE EXTREME RARITY OF THIS EDITION is explained by the fact that the author, who wrote it as a student at the age of twenty, when he became a Chaplain at Toledo, resolutely searched for copies of this book and destroyed every one that he could find. Palau only cites the Salva-Heredia copy, which is now in the British Museum.

PEDRO HURTADO DE LA VERA

FIRST EDITION. 16mo. Old vellum.

Antwerp, viuda y los herederos de Juan Stelsio, 1572.

£35

In this curious allegorical fantasy, in which each character personifies some virtue or vice, the author attempts to depict the illusion of the worldly life. Palau's Manual (IV, p. 79) cites two copies of this rare edition.

LUIS DE CAMOENS AND ANTONIO PRESTES

THE FIRST EDITION OF CAMOENS' COMEDIES

[534] PRIMEIRA PARTE DOS AUTOS E COMEDIAS PORTU-GUESAS FEITAS POR ANTONIO PRESTES, & POR LUIS DE CAMÕES & POR OUTROS AUTORES PORTUGUESES CUJOS NÕMES VÃO NOS PRINCIPIOS DE SUAS OBRAS.

FIRST EDITION. Title within ornamental woodcut border. Small 4to. Old calf. Lisbon, Andres Lobato, 1587.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OVERLEAF).

OUR COPY IS PERFECT (the title is re-margined, and has a letter or two in facsimile), ONLY TWO OTHER COPIES ARE KNOWN TO US, ONE BEING IMPERFECT.

THIS IS PERHAPS THE RAREST VOLUME OF PORTUGUESE LITERATURE. It comprises the two famous plays of Camoens, here printed for the first time, also seven plays by Prestes, and one each by Anrique Lopez, Jorge Pinto and Jeronimo Ribeiro.

OS ENFATRIÕES.	By Camões.	DA SIOZA. By Prestes.
FILODEMO.	By Camões.	O MOURO ENCANTADO. By Prestes.
AVE MARIA.	By Prestes.	OS CANTARINHOS. By Prestes.
O PROCURADOR.	By Prestes.	CENA POLISIANA OF O ESTUDANTE.
O DESEMBARGADOR.	By Prestes.	By Lopez.
OS DOUS IRMÃOS.	By Prestes.	RODRIGO EMENDO. By Jorge Pinto.
		DO FISICO. By Jeronimo Ribeiro.

Camoens' influence on the Portuguese language was all important, and he so far fixed the written language that at the present day it is commonly and not inaccurately called "the language of Camoens."

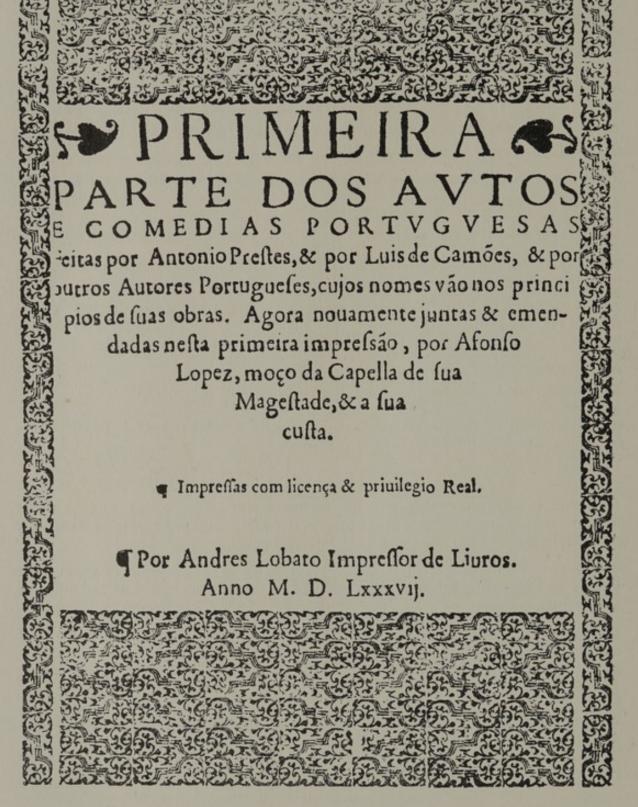

The plays of Prestes throw interesting light on his times: the position of women, the bribery of judges and lawyers, the apeing of foreign manners, the mixed styles of architecture.

Ribeiro in his Auto do Fisico gives some farcical Vicentian scenes, with the inevitable hits against the doctors and lawyers.

Traces of Gil Vicente and the Celestina are apparent in Anrique Lopez' Cena Policiana.

In Pinto's Rodrigo Emendo Spanish romances are quoted with great frequency.

PART I. THE SECOND ISSUE OF THE FIRST EDITION (with the privilege not for Madrid only but extended to Aragon and Portugal). Rius only knew of about 8 copies of this issue.

PART II. THE FIRST EDITION. (Rius only knew of four copies). This Second Part is infinitely rarer and much more difficult to obtain than its predecessor.

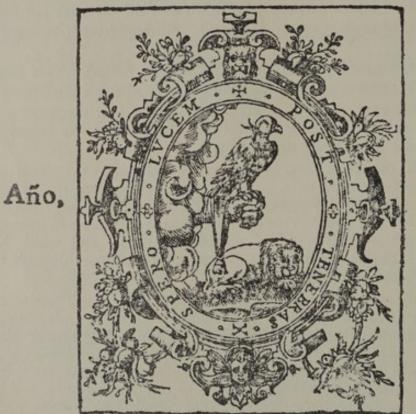

"Don Quixote" has two unique distinctions. Not only is it the greatest novel of all time, but it is the one example of a great book in which the sequel not only equalled the first part but actually surpassed it.

The second part was printed in 1615, its publication hastened by the action of another author, one Alonso Fernandez de Avallaneda, who in 1614 had the impudence to publish a work entitled the "Segundo Tomo del ingenioso hidalgo Don Quixote de la Mancha." (See No. 544). This intrusion caused Cervantes to concentrate on his own second part, which was duly published in 1615, and which had such immediate success that this part is now infinitely rarer and more difficult to obtain than its predecessor.

"Small wonder if the world received Don Quixote with delight! There was nothing like unto it before : there has been nothing to eclipse it since. It ends one epoch and begins another : it intones the dirge of the mediæval novel : it announces the arrival of the new generations, and it belongs to both the past and coming ages. At the point where the paths diverge, Don Quixote stands, dominating the entire landscape of fiction. Time has failed to wither its variety or to lessen its force, and posterity accepts it as a masterpiece of humoristic fancy, of complete observation and unsurpassed invention. It ceases, in effect, to belong to Spain as a mere local possession, though nothing can deprive her of the glory of producing it. Cervantes ranks with Shakespeare and with Homer as a citizen of the world, a man of all times and countries, and Don Quixote, with Hamlet and the Iliad, belongs to universal literature, and is become an eternal pleasaunce of the mind for all the nations."

THE THIRD MADRID EDITION. With woodcut printer's device on title. Small 4to. Original vellum. Madrid, Juan de la Cuesta, 1608.

THIS IS THE THIRD MADRID EDITION printed by Juan de la Cuesta; and contains the revised text upon which all other authentic editions were founded. The revisions were, according to Rius, "in all probability done by the author himself, as he was then already domiciled in Madrid." This edition is rare, and, being what might be termed the first "academic" edition, is now regarded as the authorized text. Rius, No. 8.

THE FIRST ORIGINAL SHORT STORIES IN SPANISH, AND THE HIGH-WATER-MARK OF THE SHORT STORY IN THE 17th CENTURY

542 NOVELAS EXEMPLARES.

THE EXCESSIVELY RARE FIRST EDITION.

Small 4to. A very fine copy in contemporary white morocco, with arms on side. En Madrid, por Iuan de la Cuesta, 1613.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OPPOSITE.)

"' The Novelas Exemplares,' twelve in number, are masterpieces which it has become a commonplace to say would have established Cervantes' lasting fame as a writer of fiction, even if he had never produced Don Quixote. Indeed they represent the highwater-mark of the short story in the Seventeenth Century, for as Cervantes overtops the earliest novelistas, so he remains superior to those who followed him. Not one of his successors reached the same level of attainment, none articulates his stories so well or writes with the same mastery of style, not one approaches him as a psychologist or observer; none compare with him in his power to depict life truly and to create character. It is doubtful whether the whole body of short stories after the 'Novelas exemplares' could yield a group of characters so living and so highly individualized."

The twelve Novels are :-

I. La Gitanilla. VII. El zeloso Estremeño. II. El Amante liberal. VIII. La illustre fregona. IX. Las dos donzellas. III. Rinconete, y Cortadillo. IV. La Española Inglessa. X. La Señora Cornelia. V. El Licenciado Vidriera. XI. El casamiento engañoso. VI. La fuerça de la sangre. XII. La de los perros Cipio, y Bergaça.

The success of the 'Novelas' was immediate and lasting; twelve editions were made within ten years of their first appearance, and twelve more had been issued by 1665. They were translated into French as early as 1615 and into Italian in 1626. Six of them were rendered into English in 1640.

This copy was bound for Jerome Bignon (1627-1697), "Grand Maître de la Bibliothèque du Roi," and has his arms on sides.

MAGNIFICENT COPY OF THE RARE FIRST EDITION of this spurious "continuation" to Cervantes' masterpiece. The author, whose pseudonym is said to have veiled the identity of a Dominican monk, was a bitter enemy of Cervantes, and makes offensive remarks about him in this work. We owe to Avellaneda a clever, brutal, cynical, amusing book. Nor is this our only debt to him: he put an end to Cervantes' dawdling and procured the publication of the second part of Don Quixote. Cervantes left it doubtful if he meant to write the sequel; he even seems to invite another to undertake it. Eight years had passed, during which Cervantes made no sign. Avellaneda, with an eye to profit, wrote his continuation in good faith, and his insolent Preface is explained by his rage at seeing the bread taken out of his mouth when the true sequel was announced in the Preface to the Novelas. Had not his intrusion stung Cervantes to the quick, the second part of Don Quixote might never have appeared.

[545] EL PELAYO DEL PINCIANO. Woodcut allegorical device on title.

Small 8vo. Crimson morocco, panelled back, gilt inside dentelles, g. e. Madrid, Luis Sanchez, 1605.

The poem, an allegory written in octavas and divided into twenty "books," describes the perilous voyages of Pelayo from Spain to Palestine and back.

Doctor Alonso Lopez was the medical attendant of Doña Maria, sister of Philip II, and widow of the Emperor Maximilian II.

Fine copy, with the additional six leaves at end; this work is rarely to be found in perfect condition.

Originally published in 1605, this was the first of the novels written in imitation of Aleman's "Guzman de Alfarache," and, indeed, Justina the heroine, declares herself the spouse of that redoubtable picaro. She was a worthy companion to that rogue. Palau, IV, 275.

[547] LUSITANIA TRANSFORMADA.

FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Crimson morocco, gilt tooling on sides, gilt fleurons in corners, gilt lines round sides, gilt back.

Lisbon, por Luys Estupinan, 1607.

"The scene of Lusitania Transformada is partly in Portugal (the banks of the river Nabao and the seven hills of Thomar) and partly in India (no nosso Oriente). Like Montemôr's Diana, it is divided into prosas and poems, and it is modelled on the Arcada of Jacopo Sannazzaro—the mountains of Arcadia transformed into Lusitania—which however, each of its three books equals in length. The prose setting is mellifluous and clear, and the poems, which contain reminiscences of Camoens, rival in the harmony and transparent flow of the verse that 'prince of the poets of our time,' as Alvarez calls him." (A. F. G. Bell).

This little volume, divided into an account of three nights during Carnival, and written in the form of dialogues, full of both ingenious wit and broad humour, has been regarded as a model of the Spanish language in its own particular way. Its great rarity is due to the fact that it was banned by the Inquisition.

ALONSO DE SALAS BARBADILLO, 1581-1635

"To the category of satirical-didactic fiction belong in general the works of Alonso Gerónimo de Salas Barbadillo, undoubtedly the subtlest intelligence among the seventeenth-century short story writers after Cervantes. Looking upon life with a keen and ironic eye, Salas Barbadillo gave expression to his versatile talent in prose and in verse, in plays, longer novels, short stories and satirical character sketches."

[549] EL SUBTIL CORDOVES PEDRO DE URDEMALAS. CON UN TRATADO DEL CAVALLERO PERFECTO. FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Spanish mottled calf.

Madrid, Juan de la Cuesta, 1620.

The Subtil Cordoves is a novel in prose and verse, followed by a short comedy, El Gallardo Escarraman. It should be noted that neither this copy, nor any that Salva had seen, other than his own copy, contains the Cavallero Perfecto which is mentioned on the title page, but which was apparently published separately. (See No. 550). The author was a friend of Cervantes, and "The Pedro de Urdemalas" referred to in the above novela was probably the knave of Cervantes' comedy of the same name. Salva, No. 1401. Palau's Manual, Vol. VI, p. 377.

THE NOVEL OF THE "PERFECT KNIGHT"

[550] EL CAVALLERO PERFECTO. EN CUYOS HECHOS Y DICTOS SE PROPONE A LOS OJOS UN EXEMPLO MORAL Y POLITICO, DIGNA IMITACION DE LOS NOBLES Y NECESSARIA PARA LA PERFECCION DE SUS COSTUMBRES A ESTOS REYNOS JUNTOS EN CORTES.

FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Polished calf, gilt back, inside dentelles, g. e. Madrid, Juan de la Cuesta, 1620.

This story of the Perfect Knight—describing the travels of a Spanish cavalier in the service of Alonso of Aragon—was intended to set an example of chivalry to the youth of Barbadillo's own day. The perfect knight travels to Italy and decides to settle down in Naples to serve Alonso there. He obtains the King's favour, and is given the highest military and diplomatic posts; and after mediating between imaginary Kings of England and Ireland, retires to the neighbourhood of Baia to enjoy a well-earned rest in his old age.

[552] EL SAGAZ ESTACIO, MARIDO EXAMINADO. Small 8vo. Old vellum. Madrid, Luis Sanchez, 1621.

A comedy in three acts in prose, with some verse interposed, of which this and the first edition (1620) are both rare. According to Hurtado, it is based on episodes in the author's own life.

"A courtesan in search of a complacent husband finds one through a marriage agent, but he proves after all to be less of a dupe than he has seemed, for after the wedding he explains that when shipwrecked he made a vow to draw a sinful woman from depravity by marrying her, a somewhat doubtful expedient, which, however, succeeds in this instance, since he now is redeemed from poverty by his wife's riches, and she from her evil courses by love of him." ## "NOCTURNAL LOVE ADVENTURES"

[553] DON DIEGO DE NOCHE. FIRST EDITION. 12mo. Old vellum.

Madrid, viuda de Cosme Delgado, 1623.

This is considered one of the best works of Salas Barbadillo, and describes the amorous adventures of "Don Diego" during nine successive nights. Salas possessed a distinct talent for presenting ridiculous characters and satirizing their foibles with consummate skill.

[556] NOCHES CLARAS.

FIRST EDITION. 12mo. Old mottled calf, gilt panelled back.

Madrid, viuda de Cosme Delgado, 1624.

The book consists of seven parts or "nights," each of which is devoted to a philosophical discourse in dialogue. The author was a Portuguese philosopher, who wrote in beautiful Spanish at a time when Portugal was still under Spanish rule, and contributed various learned works to Spanish literature. He had intended this book to be called "Discursos morales y politicos" and sent it to his Madrid printer under that title, but the publisher altered the name to "Brilliant Nights," in the hope that the title would attract a larger public.

[561] LA DAMA BEATA.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Half morocco, gilt panelled back.

Madrid, Pablo de Val, 1655.

The author created a central figure, rather than a heroine, for his Dama Beata, a character which might have served as a model for Corinne: Lucinda, who, in the course of seven visitas, holds small intellectual and artistic salons and entertains her coterie in prose and verse. The result is an ingenious and entertaining novel in which the author expresses his views upon a diversity of subjects.

The second and revised edition, with additions, of this "history" of the caves of Salamanca, by the "chronicler of the gnomes and hobgoblins." The work (an Epic Poem), which seems to be derived from Don Quixote's Adventure in the Cave of Montesinos, is divided into seven "books," and records with much ingenuity and wit some fantastic and gruesome tales. According to tradition, certain grottos existed on the banks of the Tormes, sealed by magic, and here the author found Amadis de Gaul, Celestina, and other personages of the printed page, with whom he discourses on various subjects. Many of the conversations give the author an opportunity to exercise his talent for satire, and he ridicules the use of affected language which was then prevalent.

The author assumed the pen-name of Merlinus Coccaius. "In many important features he was a Rabelaisian before Rabelais, which is perhaps, not an unfair way of stating the debt which the great Frenchman owed to him. "Rabelais intended this work as a burlesque continuation of a mediaeval romance of bombastic and impossible heroism. No aspect of human existence does he omit to place beneath his satiric microscope. Religion, philosophy, law, politics, education, are all scrutinized, and the chaff sifted from the grain with droll animation."

"The discursive plot brings Rabelais's heroes after much devious travel to the Shrine of the Divine Bottle, where the Priestess of the Oracle greets the pilgrims with the exhilarating injunction 'Drink.' The Priestess delivers the genuine message of the Renaissance: 'Let every man possess his soul with cheerfulness, sing, laugh, and talk, enjoy the golden sunshine and the purple wine, and live according to the laws of the world, but at the same time, study nature, learn patiently and hopefully all that is to be known of her, and never lose faith in a Divine Creator."

MATTEO BANDELLO, 1480-1562

No other Italian writer of that age had a wider influence outside his own country; none was more popular among Englishmen. All the best stories in the second tome of Painter's "Palace of Pleasure" were taken from him, whilst Fenton's "Tragical Discourses" is entirely composed of translations of his tales. From him also came the themes of some of our Elizabethan and Jacobean dramas.

MARGUERITE DE VALOIS, REINE DE NAVARRE, 1492-1549

The great masterpiece of Margaret's Court was the collection of tales, the "Heptameron," originally known as "Stories of Fortunate Lovers." That it is commonly ascribed solely to Margaret herself does not mean that no other pen was employed in it. The tales treat mainly of love, and are related in turn by a group of narrators, brought together by a traveller's mischance.

[602] DE GLI HECATOMMITHI. With portrait of Giraldi on back of title-page of each volume. FIRST EDITION. 2 vols. 8vo. Vellum. Monte Regale, Lionardo Torrentino, 1565.

"Cinthio deliberately set himself to be the Boccaccio of his age with his famous collection of novels "Hecatommithi," substituting the sack of Rome in 1527 for the pestilence of 1348. To him English literature owes the plots of 'Measure for Measure' and 'Othello.' The professed moral purpose of his stories reflects the influence of the Counter-Reformation."

[607] DISCOURS DE L'UNIQUE AMOUR D'HIPOLITE. AVEC LA CONTINUATION PAR LA MESME DEMOYSELLE. 12mo. Red morocco, inside dentelles (Petit-Simier). A Rouen, 1596.

A scarce metrical romance. The name of the author is concealed in the anagram, "L'Arbre Anobly de Dieu," for which the solution "Diane de la Berbourly" has been suggested.

HONORÉ D'URFE, 1568-1625

" THE FIRST REGULAR NOVEL IN THE FRENCH LANGUAGE "

[608] L'ASTRÉE. . . . OU PAR PLUSIEURS HISTOIRES, ET SOUZ PERSONNES DE BERGERS, & D'AUTRES, SONT DEDUITS LES DIUERS EFFETS DE L'HONNESTE AMITIÉ.

Illustrated with five frontispieces, 60 plates, and 11 portraits.

5 vols. Red morocco gilt, g. e., by Chambolle-Duru.

Imprimée à Rouen, & se vend à Paris, Augustin Courbé, 1647.

THE SECOND COMPLETE EDITION OF "L'ASTRÉE," edited by Baro, the secretary of d'Urfé. "This celebrated novel of imagination and fantasy had an enormous success. It is a heroic pastoral novel drawn from real life. It was the Spanish model which admitted real names and places in the midst of the pastoral illusion, and d'Urfé's extension of this licence and his more or less unvarnished prose narrative, contrasted with the heroic-poetic tone of the purer pastoralists, suggests that he aimed at representing the life of the French aristocracy of his day under a thin disguise of fiction. To this extent it marks an advance in the cultivation of fiction."

Among the stories told by Perrault are the following : "La belle au bois dormant," "Le petit chaperon rouge," "La barbe bleue," "Le Maistre Chat, ou le chat botté," "Cendrillon, ou la petite pantoufle de verre," and "Le petit poucet."

FRANCOIS FENELON, 1651-1715

[613] LES AVENTURES DE TÉLÉMAQUE, FILS D'ULYSSE. Portrait and 24 plates and a map.

12mo. Red morocco, gold borders to sides, g. e. Paris, 1729.

"The chief place among Fénélon's writings belongs to his 'Télemaque,' which is chosen for the sake of its excellent prose, and its not less excellent moral, as the apprentice book for the student of the French language. On the didactic side its influence was considerable, and its tenets were eagerly gathered by the milder social reformers of the eighteenth century."

[614] LES AVENTURES DE TÉLÉMAQUE, FILS D'ULYSSE. 2 vols. Small 8vo. Contemporary French binding, red morocco gilt, g. e. (by Derome).

ALAIN RENÉ LESAGE, 1668-1747

[616] LE DIABLE BOITEUX.

Frontispiece.

Second Edition. 12mo. Blue morocco gilt, g. e., by Chambolle-Duru. Paris, Barbin 1707.

This, the "true" Second Edition, published the same year as the First Edition, contains a new chapter. It is recorded that two gentlemen of the Court fought a duel in the bookshop of the publisher Barbin to decide who should have the last remaining copy of this second edition.

"'Le Diable Boiteux' (The Devil on Two Sticks) is in essence a gallery of satirical portraits, and the amusing procession defiles rapidly before our eyes, linked, character to character, by the shrewd and not unkind wit of the showman-spectator of roguery. It should be added that the 'Diable Boiteux' supplied the classic instance of the linked-narrative of successive adventures, familiar in all ages from the 'Arabian Nights' to 'Sherlock Holmes'."

[617] LE BACHELIER DE SALAMANQUE, OU LES MEMOIRES DE D. CHERUBIN DE LA RONDA.

Traduit de l'allemand de M. Viss, et terminé par la Baronne Isabelle de Montolieu. Nouvelle édition, ornée de figures en taille-douce et de la carte de l'île déserte.

5 vols. Small 8vo. Contemporary red leather. Paris, 1829.

The Swiss Family Robinson is the most famous of the successors of Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe," and became immediately established as a Child's Classic, when first published, in German, in 1813.

This edition contains besides the translation of the original work, which occupies the first three volumes, a continuation, in two volumes, by the translator, Baronne de Montolieu, who considered that the original work ended too abruptly.

From the library of the Comte de Chambord (Henry V. of France). This is one of the books that the Comte de Chambord read when, as a boy, he was in exile at Holyrood Palace, Edinburgh.

"ESTHER HAS BEEN IDENTIFIED WITH SHAHRAZAD OF 'THE ARABIAN NIGHTS'."

The story of Esther and that of the original Nights have one main feature in common. In the former the king is offended with his wife, and divorces her; in the Arabian Nights he finds her unfaithful, and kills her. But both stories agree that thereafter a new wife was brought to him every night, and on the morrow passed into the second house of the women (Esther), or was slain (Nights). At length Esther or Shahrazād wins his heart and becomes queen.

The issue in the Jewish story is that Esther saves her people; in the Nights the gainers are "the daughters of the Moslems," but the old story had, of course, some other word than "Moslems." Esther's foster father becomes vizier, and Shahrazād's father is also vizier. Shahrazād's plan is helped forward in the Nights by Dināzād, who is, according to Mas'udi, her slave, or according to other MSS., her nurse, and, according to the Fihrist, the king's stewardess. The last account comes nearest to Esther, where Esther gains the favour of the king's chamberlain, keeper of the women. It is also to be noted that Ahasuerus is read to at night when he cannot sleep (Esther)."

NIZAMI, c. 1140-1203

One of the greatest of the Persian poets, and in the particular vein of the Romantic Epic, supreme among them.

[677] KHAMSA, OR "FIVE TREASURES."

Makhzan al Asrar or "Treasury of Mysteries."

"Khusraw and Shirin."

"Layla and Majnun."

" Alexander the Great."

"Haft Paykar" or "Seven Portraits."

A Persian manuscript beautifully written in Nasta'liq within broad gold and coloured rules on 393 leaves; with five illuminated Sarlouhs, many floral decorations on gold panels dividing the text.

Adorned with 15 very fine full-page miniatures in brilliant colours, heightened with gold, as follows:

1. An old woman appealing to Sultan Sanjar.

2. Scene in a "Haman."

3. Khusraw's first sight of Shirin.

4. Farhad meets Shirin on her black horse Shabdiz.

5. Majnun at the door of Ka'aba at Mecca.

6. Majnun's cause upheld by Noufal fighting Laila's tribesmen.

7-13. Bahram Gur with seven princesses in seven variously coloured palaces, beginning with the Indian Princess in a black palace.

14. Sikandar's grief at the murder of Dara.

15. The nuptials of Sikandar with the daughter of Dara.

Folio. Fine contemporary Persian binding of leather covered with gold stamping, and with elaborate doublure of cut leather with blue and gold decoration. The scribe has written has name and date at end: Yúsuf ibn Husain ibn Yúsuf, 979 A.H. (= 1575 A.D.)

(SEE ILLUSTRATION OPPOSITE).

£175

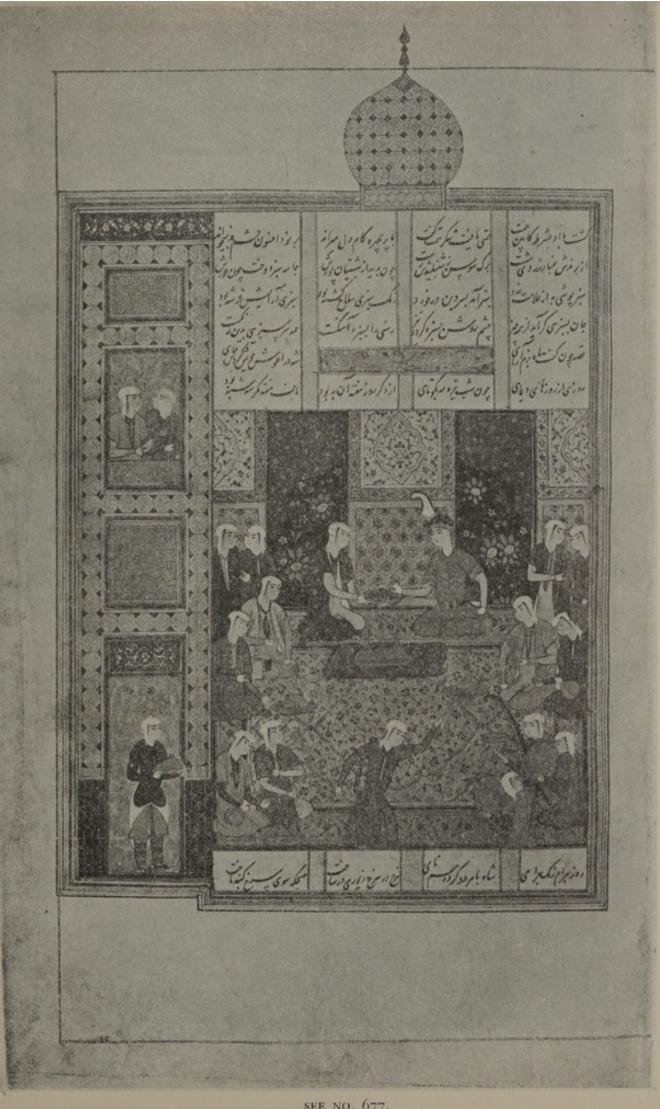

1. The Treasury of Mysteries is a mystical poem with illustrative anecdotes.

2. The Romance of Khusraw and Shirin relates the adventures of the King Khusraw Parwiz and his amours with the beautiful Shirin.

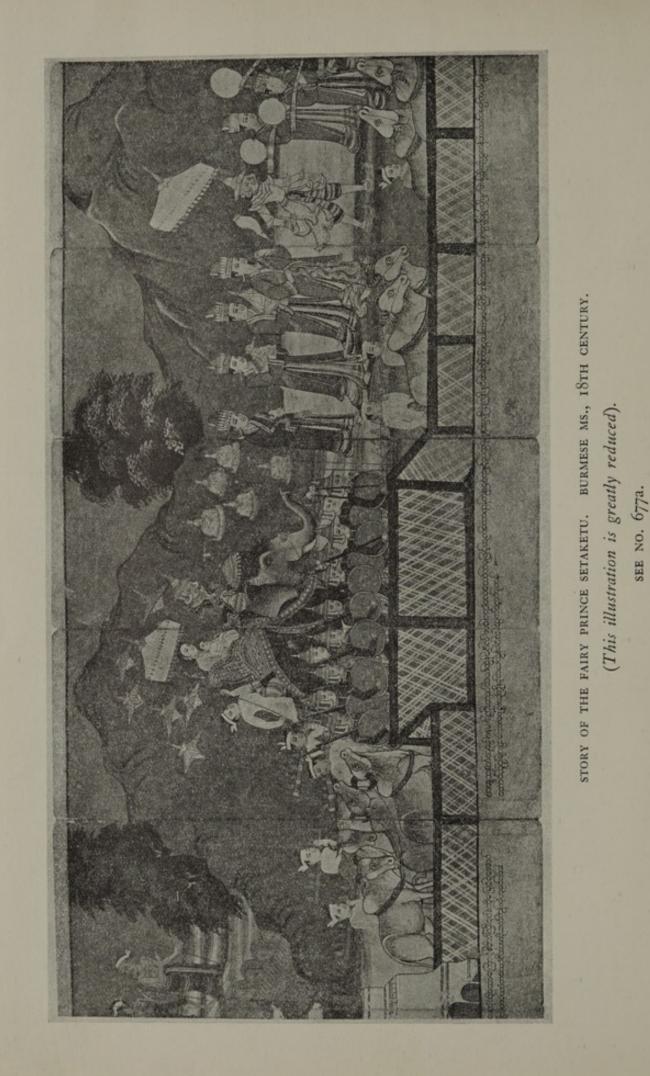

3. The Romance of Layla and Majnun is the most popular of all love stories of the East.

4. The Romance of Alexander the Great is a narration of Alexander's conquests.

5. The Haft Paykar or "Seven Portraits" is the legendary history of the King Bahram Gur. The seven portraits, representing seven princesses of incomparable beauty, were discovered by Bahram in a secret chamber. The king falls in love with these portraits and obtains the seven princesses in marriage. Each one, representing one of the Seven Climes, is lodged in a separate palace symbolically coloured, and Bahram visits them on successive days. They each entertain him with a story in the manner of the Arabian Nights.

SEE NO. 677.

"It has appeared to me that no better means could be chosen of preserving a record of a curious and fast disappearing civilization than the translation of some of the most interesting national legends and histories, together with other specimens of literature bearing upon the same subject. Thus the Japanese may tell their own tale, their translator only adding here and there a few words of heading or tag to a chapter, where an explanation or amplification may seem necessary." (A. B. Mitford).
