In this letter J. Payne Collier writes:—

"I can hardly expect that you will like, it but at 92 I send you a poem (so I venture to call it) which I wrote before I was 19, which I privately printed in 1825, and which I am not yet ashamed of: two stanzas I then added on the fall of Napoleon. . . . You dare not, for reverence of the art, put it behind the fire: and after reading your 'Study of Shakespeare' (part of which I may not well understand) I wish to shew you some mark of my regard. . . ."

"While I wrote it, I had the music of Spencer's verse always in my ears: and I had hardly then began my enquiries regarding Shakespeare."

 This tragedy is founded on a portion of the history of Sweden. Its performance in London was prohibited at the last moment by the Lord Chamberlain. This was ascribed to Sir Robert Walpole, who, it was supposed, was intended to be represented in the character of Trollis, Viceregent of Christiern, King of Denmark and Norway. In connection with the prohibition of the performance in London, Samuel Johnson wrote a satire entitled "A Complete Vindication of the Licensers of the Stage."

 Mr. Halliwell-Phillipp's object was to produce an edition of the works of Shakespeare with a collection of Facts and Documents respecting their literary history, by Annotations on their obsolete Phraseology and obscure Allusions, elucidated by Archæological Engravings and Extracts from contemporary works adopted or alluded to by the great dramatist.

Only 150 copies of this magnificent and valuable edition were printed, and after they were complete the whole of the engravings were destroyed. It is rarely now that a copy is offered for sale, nearly all those which have occurred of late years having been bought for Public Institutions at home and abroad, and the chances are very much against any of these coming into the market again.
