MABBE (James), 1572-1642?

Spanish scholar. Identified by Bolton Corney with the author of the commendatory verses signed I.M. prefixed to the first folio Shakespeare, an identification which was accepted by Dyce.

1301 THE SPANISH BAWD REPRESENTED IN CELESTINA; or, The Tragicke-Comedy of Calisto and Melibea. Wherein is contained, besides the pleasantnesse and sweetenesse of the stile, many Philosophical Sentences, and profitable Instructions necessary for the younger sort: etc.

FIRST EDITION. Folio. Half calf.

London, Printed by J. B. and are to be sold by Robert Allot at the Signe of the Beare in Pauls Church-yard, 1631.

This play is the longest ever published, consisting of twenty-one acts. It was originally written in Spanish by El Bachiler Fernanda de Roxas de la Puebla de Montalvan, whose name is discoverable by the beginning of every line in an acrostic prefixed to the work. Mabbe, the translator, pretends to be a Spaniard, and assumes the name of Don Diego Puede-ser (i.e. James May-be).

Etc.

MANDEVILLE (Bernard), 1670?-1733.

"He was by far the ablest of the English deists, and though all the respectability of his time drew away from him, . . he was not without his very distinct influence on the progress of English literature."—Edmund Gosse.

1304 THE FABLE OF THE BEES: or, Private Vices, Publick Benefits.

THE FIRST ISSUE OF THE FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Fine copy in the original calf.

London, Printed for J. Roberts, 1714.

In this work Mandeville represents strongly the increasing tendency to dwell upon the evils of society as a result of over-civilisation, and anticipated the teaching of those philosophers who saw no hope of a return to innocence but by returning to the state of nature. . . . He argued, not, like Shaftesbury, that all is for good, but that the world is bad, and its whole civilisation fed by evil appetites and evil deeds. The work was indeed, a first sign of the strength of the reaction that gathered force year after year, until it struck on Europe with the shock of Revolution. But there was nothing in Bernard Mandeville of the fine yearning for a higher life that was to rise above the ruins of all that had been based on human wrong. It was enough for him to maintain steadily that evil was man's good.— (Henry Morley).

MANDEVILLE (Sir John), 1300?-1372?.

The name under which the famous book of travels, composed about 1350, was written. The author is possibly identical with Jean de Bourgogne, who died at Liège, Nov. 1372. He has been called "The Father of English Prose."

"His style is clear, simple, and natural. It is, to a modern reader the easiest of all the English writings of the fourteenth century; and it is certainly the most entertaining."—Sir Edward Creasy.

MANUSCRIPT OF MANDEVILLE'S TRAVELS WRITTEN IN THE MONASTERY OF GOOD CHILDREN AT LIEGE IN 1456.

Manuscript written in Latin by a Dutch scribe on 234 pages of paper, 22-24 lines to a page. Initials, paragraph-marks, initial-strokes and underlines supplied in red.

8vo. Calf gilt, g. e.

Liège, Monasterium Bonorum Puerorum, 31 March, 1456. (SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. LVII.)

Fifteenth century manuscript of the important Latin version known as the vulgate Latin text of the famous travels of Mandeville. The earliest printed edition of this Latin text appeared about thirty years after this manuscript was written.

In his preface the compiler calls himself a knight, and states that he was born and bred in England, of the town of St. Albans; had crossed the sea on Michaelmas Day, 1322; had travelled by way of Turkey (Asia Minor), Armenia the little (Cilicia) and the great, Tartary, Persia, Syria, Arabia, Egypt upper and lower, Libya, great part of Ethiopia, Chaldaea, Amazonia, India the less, the greater, and the middle, and many countries about India; had often been to Jerusalem; and had written in Romance as more generally understood than Latin. In the body of the work we hear that he had been at Paris and Constantinople; had served the sultan of Egypt a long time in his wars against the Bedouins, had been freely addressed by him on the corruption of contemporary Christendom, had been vainly offered by him a princely marriage and a great estate on condition of renouncing Christianity, and had left Egypt under Sultan Melech Madabron, i.e.,

Muzaffar or Mudhaffar (who reigned in 1346-7); had been at Mount Sinai, and had visited the Holy Land with letters under the great seal of the sultan, which gave him extraordinary facilities; had been in Russia, Livonia, Cracow, Lithuania, "en roialme daresten" (de Daresten or Silistria), and many other parts near Tartary, but not in Tartary itself; had drunk of the well of youth at Polombe (Quilon on the Malabar Coast), and still seemed to feel the better; had taken astronomical observations on the way to Lamary (Sumatra), as well as in the Brabant, Germany, Bohemia, and still farther north; had been at an isle called Pathen in the Indian Ocean; had been at Cansay (Hangchow-fu) in China, and had served the emperor of China fifteen months against the king of Manzi; had been among rocks of adamant in the Indian Ocean; had been through an haunted valley, which he places near Millestorach (= Millescorath, i.e., Malasgird in Armenia); had been at many great feats of arms, but had been incapable of performing any himself; had been driven home against his will in 1357 by arthritic gout (despite the well of youth!); and had written his book as a consolation for his " wetched rest."

This Latin version is important for the light it throws on the identity of the author, the final chapter being devoted to an account of how the book was written in the city of Liège. Mandeville is there made to say that, when in Egypt, he met about the Sultan's court a venerable and clever physician sprung from our own parts, that long afterwards at Liège, on his way home in 1355, he recognized the same physician in Master John 'ad Barbam,' whom he consulted when laid up with arthritic gout in the street Basse Sauvenière, and that he wrote the account of his warderings at Master John's instigation and with his aid. The same story has been quoted from a French manuscript, but with the physician's name given as Jean de Bourgogne.

On the Author's tomb at Liège his name was given as "Dom. Johannes de Mandeville, alias dictus ad Barbam"; and in the fourth book, now lost, of the "Myreur, des Histoirs," or "General Chronicle" of Jean des Preis or d'Outrem euse, there is a record to this effect: In 1372 died at Liège, 12 Nov., a man of very distinguished birth, but content to pass there under the name of "Jean de Bourgogne, not Mandeville, is the authentic one, and that he was a physician of Liège, d'Outremeuse, his friend and executor. In fact, in his will he styled himself "Messire Jean de Mandeville, chevalier, comte de Montfort en Angleterre et seigneur de l'isle de Campdi et du Chateau Perouse." It seems, therefore, safe to admit the identification of the physician Jean Burgogne, or à la Barbe, and Mandeville; but the modern presumption—based on the absence of any contemporary corroboration of such a Sir John Mandeville—is that the name Jean Burgogne, not Mandeville, is the authentic one, and that he was a physician of Liège, the same who wrote a tract on the pestilence. It is considered likely that he really lived for some time in Egypt, and during his sojourn there may have conceived the idea of describing a journey to the orient. Having visited no foreign country except Egypt, he was compelled to make use of the descriptions of others and to publish his compilation under a pseudonym.

This important manuscript originally belonged to the Monastery of Good Children at Liege, where it was written by a monk of the name of Sibitum Hokenbosch de Sittard, who completed it on the 31st of March, 1456. The scribe has signed the manuscript in two places. At the end of the table which precedes the text, he has written: "Iste liber pertinet monasterio bonorum puerorum in Leodio. Scriptus per me fratrem Sibitum Hokenbosth de Sittart natum et in prenominato monesterio professum, ad salute anime mee "; and at the finish of the text: "Explicit itinerarius domini Johannis de Mandeville militis anno domini MoCCCCCo quinquagesimo sexto ultima martii, etc. Scriptus est iste liber per fratrem sibertum de Sittart in hac domo bonorum puerorum professus. Anno domini quo supra."

(The Monastery of Good Children was presumably so called because the monks were ordered to give education to children).

Mandeville's Travels is a book which Shakespeare made use of in a number of his plays. Douce, in his "Illustrations" of The Tempest, remarks: "The 'dewlapp'd mountaineers' are shown to have been borrowed from Maundeville's travels, and the same author doubtless supplied the other monsters." Halliwell-Phillipps, in his edition of Midsummer Night's Dream, cites this book. Cited, too, by Dyce in his edition of The Winter's Tale.

1306 THE VOIAGE AND TRAVAILE OF SIR JOHN MAUNDEVILE, Kt. Which treats of the Way to Hierusalem; and of Marvayles of Inde, with other Iland and Countryes. Now publish'd entire from an Original MS. in the Cotton Library.

MARKHAM (Gervase), 1658?-1637.

Reputed the "first English hackney writer." His industry as author, translator, and compiler was enormous, and his work was distinctly meritorious, as well as advantageous to the kingdom. He was believed to have imported the first Arab horse into England

The exact date of Gervase Markham's birth is not known, but it is certain that he served in the Low Country Wars and in Ireland prior to 1593. He then settled down to miscellaneous writing, and in 1595 published his poem (174 eight-line stanzas) on the battle of the "Revenge"; some of its phrases reappear in Tennyson's (more condensed) story. He wrote numerous other poetical pieces, including a lengthy continuation of Sir Philip Sidney's "Arcadia." He also translated from the Italian, and had a share in two dramas. His principal works were in prose. "The Discourse of Horsemanshippe" (1593) was the first of eight or nine separate publications on horses and farriery. "The Young Sportsman's Instructor" is one of many books on archery, fowling, angling, cock-fighting, and hawking and hunting. "The English Husbandman (1613-15) and "Cheap and Good Husbandry" (1614) are two of his many books on farming and improving land. Then there is a series of books on soldiering and military exercises. Even with this record, he left works which yet remain in MS.

1320 CAVELARICE; or, The English Horseman, contayning all the Arte of Horseman-ship, as much as is necessary for any man to understand, whether he be Horse-Breeder, horse-ryder, horsehunter, horse-runner, horse-ambler, horse-farriar, horse-keeper, Coachman, Smith, or Sadler, together with the Discovery of the subtill trade or mistery of horse-coursers, & an explanation of the excellency of a horses understanding, or how to teach them to doe Trickes like Bankes his Curtall, and that horses may be made to draw drie-foot like a Hound, Secrets before unpublished and now carefully set down for the profit of this whole Nation.

MARLBOROUGH (John Churchill, Duke of), 1650-1722.

The greatest general of his day.

John Churchill, afterwards the Duke of Marlborough, was born 24th June, 1650, the son of an impoverished royalist. First a page to the Duke of York, he next secured an ensigncy in the Guards, and in 1667 was sent to Tangiers. Later he was promoted captain, and was with Turenne at the reduction of the Dutch fortresses. In 1675 he married the imperious and beautiful Sarah Jennings. He helped to quell the Monmouth Rebellion, but on the landing of the Prince of Orange joined the invader, who out of gratitude created him Earl of Marlborough. In 1692 he fell into disfavour, but on the accession of Queen Anne he was given the command of the British Army in the Netherlands in the war of the Spanish succession. He became regent in all but name. His wife governed the Queen, and he himself directed Godolphin. In 1702 he was made commander-in-chief of the combined English and Dutch forces. The campaign was a series of triumphs for the allies. He achieved the brilliant victories of Blenheim, Ramillies, Oudenarde and Malplaquet. The treaty of Utrecht in 1711 at length brought peace. On a charge of having embezzled public money, he was deprived of his offices till the accession of George I., when, in a day, he was restored to his honours. He died on 16th June, 1722 and was buried in Westminster Abbey with great magnificence.

A fine and most important letter conveying the Queen's decision to send Stanhope as Commander of her troops. (Trans.):—" I have already sent my respects to Your Majesty by the Sieur Worsley who was to leave more than a month ago in order to reside near you in the name of the Queen. But on the return of Messrs. Earl and Stanhope who handed me the letter which Your Majesty did me the honour to write to me, and who first reported to Her Majesty in detail on the state of affairs in Catalonia, the Queen deemed fit to despatch the Chevalier Lake at once with the Fleet, in spite of the threats and preparations of the enemy to invade Scotland which, God be thanked, have just miscarried in entire confusion.

"I hope that by this time this Fleet will have safely arrived in the Mediterranean.

"As Her Majesty also noticed from the report M. de Stanhope gave her that he showed much zeal and eagerness for the interests of Your Majesty she thought she cculd not do better than to send him instead of the said Sieur de Worsley; not only in order to reside near Your Majesty as her Ambassador Extraordinary, but also in order to command her troops. This ought to obviate many difficulties which existed on this point till now. He could thus also be much better informed on the measures taken in the interest of Your Majesty by the States and the Prince Eugene and on the working of the campaign elsewhere. I have brought him with me to the Hague where we came to complete agreement, and he will have the honour to acquaint Your Majesty by word of mouth with all the resolutions we have taken and the secret nature of which does not allow me to express them in Writing. . . ."

This, the First Edition of Marvell's poems, was edited by his wife.

"Marvell's poems possess many of the finest elements of popularity, a rich profusion of fancy, which almost dazzles the mind, as bright colours dazzle the eye; an earnestness and heartiness, which do not always—do not often—belong to these flowery fancies, but which, when found in their company, add to them inexpressible vitality and savour, and a frequent felicity of phrase, which, when once read, fixes itself in the memory and will not be forgotten. . . . His mind was a bright garden, such a garden as he has described so finely; and that a few gaudy weeds should mingle with the healthier plants, does but serve to prove the fertility of the soil."—Mitford's Recollections of a Literary Life.

This Tract, containing the letter of King Philip and Cardinal Pole, was published by Order of Pope Julius III., to announce to the world the Reconciliation of England with the Church of Rome, which took place on November S0, 1551.

At the great oeremony in London upon the occasion of this reconciliation Cardinal Pole made the following speech: — "Much indeed," he said, "the English nation had to thank the Almighty for recalling them to his fold. Once again God had given a token of his special favour to the realm; for as this nation in the time of the Primitive Church, was the first to be called out of the darkness of heathenism, so now they were the first to whom God had given grace to repent of their schism; and if their repentance was sincere, how would the angels, who rejoice at the conversion of a single sinner triumph at the recovery of a great and noble people." He moved to rise: Mary and Philip; seeing that the crisis was approaching, fell on their knees, and the assembly dropped at their example; while, in dead silence, across the dimly-lighted hall came the low, awful words of the absolution

" Our Lord Jesus Christ, which with his most precious blood hath redeened and washed us from all our sins and iniquities, that he might purchase unto himself a glorious spouse without spot or wrinkle, whom the Father hath appointed head over all his Church,-he by his mercy absolves you, and We, by apostolic author-ity given unto us by the Most Hely Lord Pope Julius the Third, his vice-regent on earth, do absolve and deliver you, and every of you, with this whole realm and dominions thereof, from all heresy and schism, and from all and every judgment, censure, and pain for that cause incurred: and we do restore you again into the unity of our Mother the Holy Church, in the name of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

Pole went back to Lambeth, not to rest, but to pour out his soul to the Holy Father.

Pole went back to Lambeth, not to rest, but to pour out his soul to the Holy Father. In his last letter he said "he had told his Holiness that he had hoped that England would be recovered to the fold at last; yet he had then some fears re-maining, so far estranged were the minds of the people from the Holy See, lest at the last moment some compromise might ruin all." But the godly forwardness of the King and Queen had overcome every diffi-culty; and on that evening, the day of St. Andrew—of Andrew who first brought his brother Peter to Christ—the realm of England had been brought back to its obedience to Peter's See, and through Peter to Christ. The great act had been accorplished, accomplished by the virtue and the labour of the inestimable sovereigns with whom God had blessed the world. "And oh," he said, "how many things, how great things, may the Church our mother, the bride of Christ, promise herself from these her children? Oh piety! of antient faith! Whoever looks on them will repeat the words of the prophet of the Church's early offspring: 'This is the seed which the Lord bath blessed.' How earnestly, how lovingly, did your Holiness favour their marriage; a marriage formed after the very pattern of that of our Most High King, who, being Heir of the World, was sent down by his Father from his royal throne, to be at once the Spouse and the Son of the Virgin Mary, and be made the Com-forter and the Saviour of Mankind; and, in like manner, the greatest of all the princes upon earth, the heir of his father's kingdom, departed from his own broad and happy realms that he might come hither into this land of trouble, he, too, to be spouse and son of this virgin; for, indeed, through spouse he be, he so bears himself towards her as if he were her son, to aid in the reconciliation of this people to Christ and the Church. "When your Holiness first chose me as your legate, the Queen was rising up as a rod of incense out of trees of myrrh, and as frankincense out of the desert.

When your Holiness first chose me as your legate, the Queen was rising up as a rod of incense out of trees of myrrh, and as frankincense out of the desert. And how does she now shine out in loveliness? What a saviour doth she give forth unto her people. Yea, even as the prophet saith of the mother of Christ, ' before she was in labour she brought forth, before she was delivered she hath borne a man-child.' Who ever yet hath seen it, who has heard of the similitude of it? Shall the earth bring forth in a day, or shall a nation of men be born together? but Mary has brought forth the nation of England before the time of together? but Mary has brought forth the nation of England before the time of that delivery for which we all are hoping?"

An important letter evidently having to do with her proposed marriage to James V of Scotland. She mentions Cardinal David Beaton (Cardinal of St. Andrew's), who negotiated the marriage which took place in the May following. (Trans.):—"Cardinal de St. André is going to accompany the King, His Royal Highness. I have explained my affairs to him at full length, and he will tell you what he has heard from me. I beg you, cousin, to believe him as if I were speak-ing myself. I pray that God may grant him what he wants." Cardinal David Beaton negotiated the first marriage of James V with Mag-dalen, daughter of Francis I, and on her death he was sent on commission to bring to Scotland the King's second wife, Mary of Guise, who became the mother of Marv Queen of Scots.

of the help which the King of France had promised to the Jacobites in Ireland. (Trans.): —" I have just received a letter from England, which I am sending to you, not daring to send it to the King directly because I still doubt the news and shall doubt it until I have some myself from Ireland. However I flatter myself that some part of this may very well be true, and I am expecting confirmation of it every moment. In the name of God push forward the help which it has been decided to send to Ireland, as for lack of not following up the small successes we have, we may profit nothing at all from them; we have had so many misfortunes, that one can with difficulty believe in good news, but at last God will help us, and if only the King of France helps us, we may without a miracle, return to England. This is the time to act, if it is lost, we are ruined. But I waste my time in telling you all this for you know it better than I, and after myself I think it touches you more than anyone in the world."

Adam Blackwood, Scottish writer, was, by the instrumentality of Mary Queen of Scots, made counsellor or judge of the parliament of Poictiers. During Mary's captivity in England, he paid her frequent visits and was untiring in his efforts to do her all the service in his power. After her death he published a long exposure of her treatment in prison, interspersed with passionate denunciations of her enemies, especially Knox and Queen Elizabeth. The book is of special interest as a graphic presentation of the sentiments and feelings which her pitiable fate aroused in her devoted adherents fate aroused in her devoted adherents.

Buchanan charges Mary with an attempt to make Darnley and Moray quarrel, in the hope of ridding herself of both. For this and similar charges there is no evidence, and they have been silently dropped even by historians who believe her capable of any wickedness. We cannot wonder that she describes this work, when Elizabeth, with peculiar spite, sent her a copy of the "Detection" instead of the priest she asked for, as "a defamatory book by an atheist, Buchanan, the knowledge of whose impiety had made her request a year before that he should not be left near her son, to whom she heard he had been given as preceptor!"

and ending :-

Can I make Eudocia chaste,

O vile Paulinus honest." "In this fine speech Massinger has ventured to measure weapons with Shakespeare (Henry V., iv., i., as in Macbeth and Lear) and if I may trust my judgement, not ungracefully. The feelings, indeed, are more interested than the latter, but that arises from the situation of his chief character."

> With four explanatory plates. FIRST EDITION. 12mo. Fine copy in morocco gilt, g. e. Edinburgh, Andrew Hart, 1617.

A posthumous work. Napier explains the title "Rabdologiae" as numeration by little rods. These rods, being usually made of bone or ivory, were familiarly called Napier's bones. By means of them multiplication and division could be performed. The extraction of the square and cube root could also be performed by their help, in conjunction with two larger rods. In the appendix "do expeditissimo Multiplicationis Promptuario" he explains another invention for the performance of multiplication and division by means of metal plates arranged in a box. This is the earliest known attempt at the invention of a calculating machine. In his "Local Arithmetic" he describes how multiplication and division, and even extraction of roots, may be performed on a chess board by the movement of counters.

MAY (Thomas), 1595-1650.

"A dramatic poet capable of writing admirable blank verse of the stronger sort, and often pithy in the substance of his diction."—A. W. Ward.

1411 THE HISTORY OF THE PARLIAMENT OF ENGLAND: which began November the third M.DC.XL. with a short and necessary view of some precedent yeares.

FIRST EDITION. Folio. Calf gilt, g. e. London, Imprinted by Moses Bell, for George Thomason, 1647.

As a prose writer May's reputation rests on this, his history of the Long Parliament. It is written in a flowing and elegant style, abounding, like all May's writings, with quotations and parallels from Latin literature. Strafford is compared to Curio, Marie de Medicis to Agrippina. May bases his history on the newspapers and on the official manifestos of the two parties. He keeps himself studiously in the background, avoids, as far as possible, any expression of his own opinion, and is silent about his own reminiscences. He professes to relate facts without rhetoric or invective, to recall to the minds of his readers the judgments passed at the time on the facts he records, and to inform the world of the right nature, causes, and growth of the civil strife.

This rare little book is a medical treatise of prescriptions for various ailments, and Elyot gives an account of the disorders from which he himself suffered. The fact that it was written in English by one who was not a doctor roused much wrath on the part of the medical profession. It was originally published in 1534 but no copy of the first edition is now known. Elyot replied to his medical critics in a preface to the edition of 1541, also prefixed to this edition. The treatise was very popular till the close of the century.

FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Original calf (rebacked).

London, Printed for Richard Wilkin, 1698.

£.5 5s

"The work on asthma is also very noteworthy, not only as containing excellent clinical observations, but as giving the first account, derived from dissection, of the change in the lungs now called emphysema, which is found in one of the forms of asthma as then understood. This observation, which has been often quoted in modern text-books, was not made on the human subject, but on a broken winded mare. Floyer clearly distinguishes spasmodic asthma (from which he himself suffered), and assigns for it the same cause as do most modern authorities, viz.: ' contraction of the muscular fibres of the bronchia.'"—(D.N.B.).

Dr. Peter Lowe was founder of the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow. He was born about 1550. In the course of extensive practice in Glasgow, Lowe noticed the want of a governing body of medical men such as existed at Paris, and brought the matter in a petition before the King. The Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow was founded by charter dated 29 Nov., 1599, and by its terms Lowe was directed, with the assistance of Robert Hamilton, to supervise medicine and surgery in the west of Scotland, and also to regulate the sale of drugs.

The original owner, whose autograph is twice repeated on the book, Sir Roger Twysden, born in 1597, died 1672, was a famous antiquary. In 1603 he was selected to accompany James I. into London, being knighted by that king at the Charterhouse on 11th May.

MIDDLETON (Thomas), 1570?-1627.

"Humour, wit, and character, though in a degree inferior to that which distinguishes the preceding poets, are to be found in the comedy of Middleton; and, occasionally a pleasing interchange of elegant imagery and tender sentiment. His tragedy is not devoid of pathos, though possessing little dignity or elevation; but there is, in many of his plays, a strength and compass of imagination which entitle him to a very respectable rank among the cultivators of the Romantic drama."— Nathan Drake.

MILTON (John), 1608-1674.

After Shakespeare the greatest English poet. Macaulay speaks of him as "the poet, the stateman, the philosopher, the glory of English literature, the champion and the martyr of English liberty."

John Milton was born in Bread Street, Cheapside, on December 9, 1608, the son of a prosperous scrivener, a Puritan, but a musical composer. At St. Paul's School he distinguished himself as a scholar and poet. In 1625 he entered Christ's College, Cambridge, proceeding M.A. in 1632. His poetical genius had already been attested by the noble "Hymn on the Nativity" and "At a Solemn Music," as well as much admirable Latin verse; and at Horton he produced the "Allegro" and the "Penseroso," "Comus," and "Lycidas." In 1638-39 he paid a fifteen months' visit to Italy, where he was cordially received by the Italian literati. The Civil War long silenced his muse, except for an occasional sonnet. The tracts which he poured forth during that period are as truly lyrical inspirations as any of his poems. In 1645 he published his most famous prose-work, "Areopagitica." His defence of the execution of Charles I. (Jan., 1649), "The Tenure of Kings," was followed by his appointment as "Secretary of Foreign Tongues." His "Pro Populo Anglicano Defensio" (1651), in reply to Salmasius, made him famous all over Europe, but cost him his eyesight.

The Restoration drove him into hiding, for few had more bitterly exasperated the Royalist party. The "Defensio" was burnt by the hangman.

"Paradise Lost" was probably commenced some time before the Restoration, and completed about 1663, though not published till 1667. "Paradise Regained" and "Samson Agonistes" followed, the latter a splendid lament over the author's forlorn old age and the apostasy, as he deemed it, of his nation. He died November 8, 1674, and was buried in St. Giles's, Cripplegate.

Newbury and her having established Sunday Schools there the previous year; also making reference to the "blue stocking."

". . . My time was taken up, and my spirit exhausted by the Guests I had invited to dine here. My party was not of the blue stocking uniform; no witt, philosopher, or scholar was included; it was composed of 86 little girls belonging to the Newbury Sunday Schools. The sight of so many poor little innocent creatures exposed to the hardships and the hazards of poverty, is very affecting. . . "I was very zealous in my endeavours to get the Sunday schools established at Newbury last year, and I have reason to rejoice it was effected. There are now above 350 children taken into them, and their behaviour at church is so decent and orderly, and they are so much less riotous about ye streets than they used to be, that I flatter myself the rising generation will in general be more virtuous than the present race of poor people.

'When my plumb puddings, etc., have softened the hearts of the little folks, I then pour in my exhortations to be patient, attentive to doctrine and disciplin. While I was preaching to my congregation yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Crewe, with Ld. and Lady Falmouth call'd on me, so that between attention to great and small rich and poor, I was so fatigued." Etc.

In 1645 Wishart joined the Royalist army at Bothwell, and was appointed chaplain to Montrose, then Governor-General of Scotland. From this time he was constantly with the army, and his narrative of the campaign is that of an eye-witness. After the decisive battle of Philiphaugh he accompanied the remnant of the troops and shared in the dangers of Montrose's flight. Wishart remained with Montrose during his wanderings in Europe, and at length reached the Hague, where the story of the campaign of 1644-6 was written by him. "As he was led forth," Hume says, speaking of the execution of Montrose, "they made yet one effort more to insult him in this last and melancholy scene; the executioner brought that book which had been published in elegant Latin, of his great mili-tary actions, and tied it by a cord about his neck." ### MORE (Sir Thomas), 1478-1535.

Regarded as the first writer of classical English prose-a prose not merely modern in contrast with that of his predecessors, but simple, direct, nervous, rhythmical, natural, and entertaining.

Sir Thomas More was born in London, 7th February, 1478, the son of a justice of the King's Bench. He was placed at fifteen as page in the household of Archbishop Morton, and by him was sent to Oxford, where the Renaissance was represented by such men as Colet and Linacre. Having completed his legal studies at New Inn and Lincoln's Inn, he was for three years reader in Furnival's Inn, and spent the next four years in the Charterhouse in " devotion and prayer." During the last years of Henry VII. he became Under-Sheriff of London and member of Parliament. On the accession of Henry VIII., by the instrumentality of Wolsey, he became Master of Requests (1514), Treasurer of the Exchequer (1521), and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1525). On the fall of Wolsey in 1529, More was appointed Lord Chancellor. He saw with displeasure the successive steps which led Henry to the final Schism from Rome, and in 1532 resigned his Chancellorship. In 1534 Henry was declared head of the English Church; and More's steadfast refusal to recognise any other head but the Pope, resulted in his imprisonment, and finally his execution on 7th July, 1535. In 1513 he had written his "History of Richard III.," and in 1516 published his greatest work, "Utopia."

It is undoubtedly connected with the general idea of a desert island, to which it forms on all but inevitable supplement. But to the influence or such accounts of desert places and their savage inhabitants was added that of a literary tendency of the age. I refer, of course, to the descriptions of Utopias, inhabited by beings free from the debasing influence of civilization, of which the best known example is Sir Thomas More's work."

FIRST EDITION. LARGE PAPER. Folio. Fine copy in original calf, with the Arms of Robert Berkeley in gilt in the centre of each cover.

London, 1617.

£ 18 18s

The first part supplies a journal of his travels through Europe, Scotland, and Ireland, with plans of the chief cities, full descriptions of their monuments, "as also the rates of hiring coaches and horses from place to place with each day's expenses for diet, horse-meat, and the like." The second part is a history of Tyrone's rebellion, replete with invaluable documents of state, and authentic details respecting the English forces engaged. The third part consists of essays on the advantages of travel, on the geography of various countries of Europe, and on their differences in national costume, character, religion and constitutional practice.

Moryson is a sober and truthful writer. He delights in statistics respecting the mileage of his daily journeys and the varieties in the values of coins he encountered. His descriptions of the inns in which he lodged, of the costume and the food of the countries visited, render his work invaluable to the social historian.

With the large engraved folding plate of Hulls steam tug towing a frigate.

12mo. Levant morocco gilt, g. e., by Rivière.

London, 1737.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. LXIX.)

Jonathan Hulls or Hull (fl. 1737), inventor, was born at Campden, Gloucester-shire, in 1699. He was the first who attempted practically to employ steam in propelling a vessel in water. His experiments were made on the Avon at Evesham propelling a vessel in water. This experiments were made on the Avon at Evesnan in 1737, the main idea being to have a Newcomen engine—the only sort then known—on a tow-boat in front of the vessel which it was intended to propel, and connected with it by a tow-rope. Six paddles in the stern of the tow-boat were fastened to a cross axis connected by ropes to another axis which was turned by the engine. Hulls undoubtedly showed how to convert the rectilineal motion of a piston-rod into a rotatory motion, which is an essential principle in steam loco-nuction whether on land or water. But Hull's experiment was a failure, and only excited derision.

1.55

The patent for his invention is dated 21 Dec., 1736, and his account of it appeared in a book (12mo, London, 1737) entitled "Description and Draught of a new-invented Machine. . . ." The Book, which is very rare, was reprinted in facsimile in 1855. De Morgan says that Hull's work "in all probability gave suggestions to Symington's, as Symington's did to Fulton's, and that Erasmus Darwin was thinking of Hulls when he prophesied that steam would soon "drag the slow barge." In 1754 Hulls published "The Art of Measuring made Easy by the help of a new Sliding Scale": he also wrote the "Maltmakers' Instructor."

12mo. Polished calf, gilt, g. e., by Sangorski and Sutcliffe. London, T. R. for Ben Tooke, at the sign of the Ship, 1672.

A very interesting and well written account of the shipwreck of the "William and John" of Ipswich, in 1648, on the coast of Norway near Fredrikstad, and of other escapes of the author from a watery grave. The writer, throughout his narrative, shews a strong sense of humour, which doubtless helped him in his numerous difficulties. In Norway, he and his fellow survivors were housed and fed by the local Minister, and he writes that on the Sunday morning " we went to hear our Landlord preach; after Sermon he gave us Coena dubia, a doubtful meal, full of variety, in one dish, as beef, mutton, lard, goat, roots, and so many of God's creatures, that it seem'd to me to be the first Chapter of Genesis in a Dish" 1

In 1665 he was associated with an unnamed experimenter, probably Maule of Melgium, the inventor of the diving-bell, in using the new invention in exploring the contents of the ship Florida, a relic of the Armada, wrecked on the Isle of Mull. ### FORMATION OF THE ENGLISH ARMY, 1661.

1609 THE ORIGINAL MUSTER ROLLS of the County of Norfolk and the County and City of Norwich, taken by the Muster Master General of the said Counties in connection with the Formation by Charles II of the English Standing Army; the signature of John Kendall the Muster Master being repeated six times on the Rolls.

Contained and written out on Nine Sheets of Vellum, each 2 feet 4 inches long. Folded and preserved in a well-made antique style box, with clasps, elaborately tooled and lettered on back, also with illuminated description on vellum inside lid.

1661.

A valuable and most interesting historical document concerning Norfolk in connection with the formation of the English Standing Army by King Charles II. These Muster Rolls, which together consist of nine long sheets of vellum, are headed :-

" A perfect list of the severall muster rolls of the officers and numbers of soldiers, both horse and foote, as also the number of horses, masquetts and pikes in the County of Norfolk and the County of the City of Norwich as they were taken by the Muster Master Generall of the said Counties 1661," and comprise the following :-

The Right Honble. Horatio Lord Townshend, Lod. Lieut. of the said Counties his Regiment of Horse, with the various officers serving under him, including Lieut.-Col. Sir Robert Kempe, Major Sir Wm. Hovell, Capt. Sir Jacob Astely, Capt. Sir Charles Mordant, Captn. Wm. Guibon, Captn. Nevill Cattelyn, and others.

The Right Honble. Thomas Lord Richardson, his Regiment of Foote, with the officers serving under him.

The Honble. Sir Ralph Hare, Bartt., his Regiment of Foote, with the officers serving under him. The Honble. Sir John Holland, Bartt., his Regiment of Foote, with the officers serving under him. Sr. Willm. Doyly, Knt., his Regiment of Foote, with the officers serving under him.

(Norwich). Sr. Joseph Paine, Knight, his Regiment of Foote, with the officers serving under him.

(Great Yarmouth). Major Sir Thomas Meddowe and others. (Linne Regis). Capt. Henry Bell, and others. The year 1661 was a memorable one in English Military History. The remnant of the Parliamentary Army under General Monk, all that was left of that invincible host of Puritan Republicans which had been swept away before the returning tide of loyalty, formed an escort at the Restoration of Charles II in 1660. In the following year, owing to the insurrection by what was known as the fifth Monarchy men, King Charles began to organise the Military forces, raising a regiment of guards of twelve companies, commanded by Colonel John Russell; a regiment of horse of eight troops, commanded by the Earl of Oxford; a regiment of horse-guards, commanded by Lord Gerard; and the Duke of York's troops were summoned from Scotland. On the 14th February, General Monk's troops mustered on Tower Hill, and took up arms for Charles II as the Lord General's Regiment of Foot-Guards, and were called the "Coldstreams." Thus we have the original germ in these soldiers of what is now known as the British Standing Army. General Monk was given command of the Military forces of Charles II, and was created Duke of Albemarle.

created Duke of Albemarle. In 1661, an Act was passed by the New Cavalier Parliament, for the reorganisation of the Militia. The obligations to provide horsemen and footmen were distributed, following the venerable precedent of the Statute of Winchester, according to a graduated scale of property, and the complete control of each country's force was committed to the Lord Lieutenant.

This muster roll represents the military forces raised, in connection with this re-organisation, in the County of Norfolk and the City of Norwich.

"I have received from his Ma<sup>tie</sup> a direction upon the motion of both houses of Parliamente to dischardge all recusante officers out of his Ma<sup>tie</sup> Armie and to put Protestant Officers in theire place. Under wch. General Order, you I understand are comprehended whose person I soe much valued as I should have been verie happie if I could have gotten you in particular exempted, but I found it not to be obteyned." Etc.

Sir Arthur Aston was dismissed from the Army, the King alleging that the cry of popery already ran so high against him that it would certainly inflame matters if he admitted so many persons of that persuasion.

Shortly afterwards, however, the King appointed Aston Colonel-General of the Dragoons.

Evidently written to Earl Macartney, then Governor of the Cape of Good Hope. In this letter the writer gives a graphic description of the state of affairs during the French Revolution; also mentions the defeat of the Dutch Fleet by Admiral Duncan, and Lord St. Vincent's recent victory over the Spaniards; further as to a secret treaty between the Portuguese and the Directory.

"All our expectations of Peace have failed, and Lord Malmesbury has returned home again, making much such a figure, as he did on the former occasion. I have reason to believe that the Directory are resolved not to agree to any Peace with Mr. Pitt; they say that after his repeated Publick Declarations they cannot depend upon his sincerity, and that if they were to agree to a Peace with him to-day, he would undoubtedly break with them again, as soon as ever he felt himself able to do so. . . . How far this recent defeat of the Dutch Fleet by Admiral Duncan may make them change their opinion God only knows. It is indeed a very signal and material victory, tho' it has cost us dear, the Dutch having fought with their usual sea bravery. Their fleet is by this blow almost entirely annihilated, and thus we are relieved from the Bugbear invasion in the North of Scotland or Ireland of which the dread was spread with uncommon pains. You and I who know what an invasion upon an Enemy's coast is, will not be much alarmed at such a threat, whilst our Navy rides triumphant in the Channel, and on the open seas. The Spaniards appear to have had enough of their last engagement with Lord St. Vincent, who writes me word that he cannot provoke them to come out of Cadiz, notwithstanding all the insults which he is daily offering them." Etc., etc.

Nostradamus, astrologer, was born at St. Remi in Provenance, 14th December, 1503. He became doctor of medicine in 1529, and practised at Agen, Lyons, etc. His prophesies commenced in about 1547. His "Centuries" of predictions, of which the above is a translation, in rhymed quatrains, expressed generally in obscure and enigmatical terms, brought their author a great reputation. Nostradamus died 2nd July, 1566. The above translation gives both English and French versions in verse. Also contains a "Life of Nostradamus." He greatly esteemed of Katharine de Medici, who was continually seeking him to "know things of the future." Henry II of France also frequently sought his advice and loaded him with books and costly presents.

"I am not certaine but that there may been some atemt to trim ye setlement of Ireland, and some neat-handed barbers of ye law may contrive how it hay bee don, if they are back with force, yet I should think ther are but two ways, ether by commission or by Par<sup>mt</sup>. That of commission has bin tryd and layd asyde but it may bee reassumed and this thought to be more favourable conjuncture for it than 1670. To shake ye setlemen by Par<sup>mt</sup> requires more preparation, sherifs to favour ellections must bee named, and ye Hous of Lords must bee fill'd with Peeres that will concurr, in short I know not what is designed or by what meanes. ### OF DUTCH INTEREST. "THE RESTRAINING ORDERS."

1637 LETTER SIGNED (IN FRENCH) BY THE THREE DEPUTIES OF THE STATES GENERAL OF THE ARMY, addressed to the Duke of Ormonde.

61/2 pp., folio.

Dated from "Au Camp d'Avesnes Le Sec," 4th June, 1712. Bearing the signatures of W. Hoost, W. J. Haerfolte, and P. F. Vegilin Van Claerbergen, the three deputies.  $f_{12}$  10s

Of the greatest historical importance, protesting against the inaction of the Duke in the war in Flanders; his terrible dilemma may well be imagined in which Ormonde found himself when, having received the strictest secret instructions from home to do nothing, he read this letter, and knew he would be regarded as betraying the Allies.

The Deputies set forth the extreme surprise which is felt by the States at the news of the Declaration the Duke has made that he can undertake nothing until he has letters from England, and of his refusal to engage either in the siege or a battle. The States cannot conceive that any general orders given to the Duke can be interpreted as a prohibition from taking active measures when so favourable a position as the present occurs. They remind him that a large portion of the troops which he commands are not British troops, but troops in the common pay of the Queen and of the States, and are engaged by the two powers to make war, and that they cannot be withdrawn from such common employment without violating treatises already existing.

The States therefore make a vigorous protest against the present inaction of the Duke, and ask him for a definite and precise indication of the nature of his orders from home, and require him to give no hindrance to the troops in common employment in their action according to the principles of war and in accordance with solemn treaties.

OTWAY (Thomas). 1652-1685.

According to Oliver Goldsmith, "next to Shakespeare, the greatest genius England ever produced in tragedy."

"No poet has touched the passions with a more masterly hand than Otway. He was acquainted with all the avenues to the human heart, and knew and felt all its emotions. He could rouse us into rage, and melt us into pity and tenderness. His language is that of nature, and consequently the simplest imaginable. He has equally avoided the rant of Lee, and the pomp of Dryden. Hence it was that his tragedies were received, not with loud applause, but with tears of approbation."— James Granger.

OVID.

1647 Ovid's Metamorphosis Englished, Mythologiz'd, and Represented in Figures: an Essay to the translation of Virgil's Aeneis. By G. S. (George Sandys).

With engraved title, portrait, and series of engravings illustrating the various Books.

Folio. Bound in contemporary morocco, the sides covered with gold ornamentation, full gilt back, g. e.

Oxford, Lohn Lichfield, 1632.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. LXXII.)

The most complete Edition of Sandys' Ovid. With the elaborate title-page by Francisco Clein engraved by Salomon Savery, and each of the 15 books preceded by a full-page engraving.

This first translation of Ovid's "Metamorphoses" was completed by Sandys while in America. He was one of the undertakers named in the third Virginia Charter of 1611. Upon Sandys' return to England he became the London Agent for Virginia.

Sandys' rendering of Ovid's "Metamorphoses " has chiefly preserved his name in literary circles. A writer in "Wits Recreations" congratulated Ovid on "the sumptuous bravery of that rich attire," in which Sandys had clad the Latin poet's work. He followed his text closely, and managed to compress his rendering into the same number of lines as the original—a feat involving some injury to the poetic quality and intelligibility of the English. But Sandys possessed exceptional metrical dexterity, and the refinement with which he handled the couplet entitles him to a place beside Denham and Waller. In a larger measure than either of them, he probably helped to develop the capacity of heroic rhyme. He was almost the first writer to vary the caesura efficiently, and by adroitly balancing one couplet against another, he anticipated some of the effects which Dryden and Pope brought to perfection. Both Dryden and Pope read Sandys' Ovid in boyhood. Dryden in later life, on the ground that Sandys' literal method of translation obscured his meaning, designed a new translation of the "Metamorphoses," which Sir Samuel Garth completed and published in 1717. Pope, who liked Sandys' Ovid "extremely," in very early life tried his hand on the same theme, but subsequently ridiculed Garth's efforts to supercede the older translator in a ballad called "Sandys' Ghost," or the proper New Ballad on the New Ovid's "Metamorphoses." THE DECREE ORDERING THE BURNING OF MILTON'S "EIKONOKLASTES" AND HIS "DEFENSIO POPULI" BESIDES BOOKS BY OTHER AUTHORS.

1654 THE JUDGMENT AND DECREE OF THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD Past in their Convocation July 21, 1683, against certain Pernicious Books and Damnable Doctrines, destructive to the Sacred Persons of Princes, their State and Government, and of all Humane Society.

9 pp., folio (cut of Sheldonian Theatre on title). Half morocco.

(Oxford), Printed at the Theater. 1683.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. LXXIII.)

This rare piece is referred to in full in "Books Condemned to be Burnt," and described as "A Literary and Political Curiosity of the highest order, and not easily accessible."

The Authors whose books were condemned are sometimes referred quite generally, so that some are difficult to identify, but the following appear to be the principal ones that incurred the fury and indignation of the University :

Milton'; Eikonoklastes. Milton's Defensio Populi Anglicani. Bellarmine's De Conciliis et Ecclesia Militante.

Rutherford's Lex Rex. Buchanan's De Jure Regni apud Scotos. Baxter's Holy Commonwealth. Bellarnine's De Potestate Papae. Dolman's Succession.

Goodwin's Obstructors of Justice. Hobbe's De Cive and Leviathan.

After the Conspiracy known as the "Rye House Plot" to kill Charles II. and his brother the Duke of York, the University of Oxford issued this decree ordering the Public Burning of certain books which ran counter to the doctrine of the Divine Right of Kings.

"We decree, judge and declare all and every of these Propositions to be false, seditious and impious; and most of them to be also Heretical and Blas-phemous, infamous to Christian Religion, and destructive of all Government in Church and State.

"We further decree that the Books which contain the foresaid propositions and impious Doctrines, are fitted to deprave good manners; corrupt the minds of unwary men, stir up seditions and tumults, overthrow States and Kingdoms, and lead to Rebellion, Murther of Princes, and Atheism itself; and therefore we interdict all members of the University from the reading the said Books, under the penalties in the Statutes exprest.

"We also order the before cited Books to be publicly burnt, by the hand of our Marshal in the court of our Scholes." Etc.

With engraved title to each book by Wm. Marshall, and plates.

FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Russia, g. e. London, Printed by Tho. Harper, 1644. 4.14 145

Imprint on the first printed title slightly cut into. Bulwer devoted much attention to the discovery of methods for communi-cating knowledge to the deaf and dumb. Dr. John Wallis claimed to be the originator in England of the art by which the benefits of instruction are bestowed on the deaf, but it would seem that this honour was really due to his contempor-ary Bulwer. Bulwer was the first to recommend the institution of "an academy of the mute," and to notice the capacity which deaf persons usually possess of enjoying music through the medium of the teeth.

Cantabrigiae, Ex officina Johannis Legatt, 1590. £21

William Perkins, theological writer, was one of the most important religious reformers of Shakespeare's day. In "Shakespeare's England" he is referred to as follows: "At the end of the century the great popularity of the Cambridge preacher, William Perkins, fully maintained the Calvinist tradition. Perkins united scholastic method with simplicity and fervour, and his heavy tomes were continually reprinted."

William Perkins was born in Bulkington, in Warwickshire, in 1558. His early career gave no promise of future eminence; he was noted for recklessness and profanity, and addicted to drunkenness. In 1584, however, he was elected a Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge, and began to be widely known as a singularly earnest and effective preacher. He was noted for his outspoken resistance to all that savoured of Roman usage in the matter of ritual. His "Armilla Aurea" excited vehement opposition owing to its unflinching Calvanism, and according to Heylin, was the occasion of William Barret's violent attack on the Calvinistic tenets from the pulpit of St. Mary's. Perkins died in 1602. As a writer he continued to be studied throughout the 17th century as an authority but litle inferior to Hooker or Calvin.

This exceedingly scarce Tract is in prose, with the exception of some lines following the title, headed:—

" To ancient and famous Troynovant."

The name of the Author nowhere appears. Halliwell describes it as "An exceedingly curious and rare London Tract."

It is very probable that the Author had in mind Shakespeare's then recently published Play, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to induce him to introduce the character "Pyramis."

PHILIPS (Ambrose), 1675?-1749.

"An elegant versifier, and Goldsmith has eulogised the opening of his "Epistle to the Earl of Dorset' as 'incomparably fine." A fragment of Sappho, translated by Philips, is a poetical gem so brilliant, that it is thought Addison must have assisted in its composition."—Robt. Chambers.

1689 THE SPLENDID SHILLING. An Imitation of Milton. Now First Correctly Publish'd.

FIRST AUTHORISED EDITION. Folio. Half morocco.

London, Printed for Tho. Bennet, at the Half-Moon in St. Paul's Church-yard, 1705.

With the half-title.

Philips was always loth to publish his verses. His "Splendid Shilling" was included, without his consent, in a "Collection of Poems," published by David Brown and Benjamin Tooke in 1701; and on the appearance of another false copy early in 1705, Philips printed a correct folio edition in February of that year. This piece, which Addison called "the finest burlesque poem in the British language," was "an imitation of Milton," and in playful mock-heroic strains depicted—perhaps for the benefit of his impecunious friend Edmund Smith—the miseries of a debtor, in fear of duns, who no longer had a shilling in his purse wherewith to buy tobacco, wine, food, and clothes.

PHILIPS (Katharine), 1631-1664.

"Mrs. Philips has always seemed to me to be one of the best of our Female Poets. Her versification, though often careless, is chaste and harmonious, and her sentiments extremely pure and excellent."—Frederic Rowton.

£ 10 105

Mrs. Katharine Philips, verse writer, better known as "The Matchless Orinda," was at the height of her popularity, seized with smallpox, dying in Fleet Street on 22 June, 1664, aged 33 years. The above is an elegy lamenting her untimely death. Two poetical epitaphs are also included.

PHILLIPS (Edward), 1630-1696?

Author, and nephew of Milton, by whom he was educated.

1694 THEATRUM POETARUM, or a Compleat Collection of the Poets, especially the most Eminent, of all Ages. The Antients distinguish't from the Moderns in their several Alphabets. With some Observations and Reflections upon many of them, particularly those of our own Nation. Together with a Prefatory Discourse of the Poets and Poetry in Generall.

FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Full morocco.

London, Printed for Charles Smith, 1675.

"Edward Phillips's 'Theatrum Poetarum' is a brief description of the names of poets of all countries and ages, but chiefly English, arranged alphabetically, with occasional brief criticisms. An Introductory 'Discourse on Poets and Poetry' (addressed to his friends Thomas Stanley, of Cumberlo Green, Hertfordshire, and Edward Sherburn, clerk of the ordnance), embodies criticism couched in such dignified language that a long series of critics has traced in it the hand of Milton. Milton is also credited with supplying his nephew with the enlightened criticism that figures in the volume on Shakespeare and Marlowe. Phillips excuses himself for mentioning his uncle's name without any elaborate notice because it 'did not become him to deliver his judgment,' but he compensates his readers for the omission by inserting a very high flown eulogy on his brother John."—D.N.B.

There are many Shakespearian references in the volume, one being :--

"William Shakespear, the Glory of the English Stage; whose nativity at Stratford-upon-Avon is the highest honour that Town can boast of: from an Actor of Tragedies and Comedies, he became a Maker; and such a Maker, that though some others may perhaps pretend to a more exact Decorum and Economie, especially in Tragedy, never any express't a more lofty and Tragic height; never any represented nature more purely to the life, and where the polishments of Art are most wanting, as probably his Learning was not extraordinary, he pleaseth with a certain wild and native Elegance; and in all his Writings hath an unvulgar Style, as well in his Venus and Adonis, his Rape of Lucrece, and other various Poems, as in his Dramatics."

The parallel of the above may be found in the quarrel between Cassius and Brutus in the last Act of "Julius Caesar," terminating in Brutus saying:

"O Cassius, you are yoked with a Lamb That carrier anger, as the flint bears fire; Who much enforced, shews a hasty spark, And straight is cold again." Etc.

One of the rarest of Bishop Ponet's tracts.

Ponet was a great preacher, and had a wide range of acquirements, knowing mathematics, astronomy, German, and Italian, besides being a good classical scholar and a theologian. In Lent, 1550, he preached the Friday sermons before Edward VI., and on June 6, 1550, he was appointed Bishop of Rochester. He was the first Bishop consecrated, according to the new ordinal. He was the last Bishop who was allowed to hold with his See his other preferments; and there was some reason for the permission in his case, in that there was no palace for the bishop when he was consecrated. On Jan. 18, 1550-1, he was appointed one of the thirty-one commissioners to "correct and punish all anabaptists, and such as did not duly administer the sacraments according to the Book of Common Prayer."

Among the authors principally made use of in the compiling of the work are Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Drayton, Heywood, Massinger, Burton, Chapman, etc. In the Third Part, in which phrases and extracts are arranged under the alphabetical order of subjects, passages and lines from various poets are blended and run together in a way that is certainly ingenious. None of the extracts are subscribed, but a large number may be recognised as from Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, Romeo and Juliet, King Henry V., King Henry VI., Merchant of Venice, King Henry IV., King John, Hamlet, Othello, Tempest, Love's Labours Lost, etc.

Contains rare half-title, and the two leaves of advertisement at end, on a projected edition of Chaucer's works.

projected edition of Chaucer's works. "It was probably the similarity of taste that induced Pope when young to imitate several of the pieces of Chaucer, and in particular to write his "Temple of Fame," one of the noblest although one of the earliest of his productions. That the hint of the piece is taken from Chaucer's "House of Fame," is sufficiently obvious, yet the design is greatly altered, and the descriptions, and many of the particular thoughts, are his own; notwithstanding which, such is the coincidence and happy union of the work with its prototype, that it is almost impossible to distinguish those portions which are originally Pope's, from those for which he has been indebted to Chaucer."—William Roscoe.

London, Printed for H. Lintot, 1740-41.

" Sr, March ye 3rd. If you will do me the favour to acquaint me, by a line to Will's Coffeehouse, on what day I may wait on you at Fulham, after Thursday next, I will take the convenience of the stagecoach as you formerly directed me. I have some private business with you, and therefore desire it may be a Day when you are like to be much at leisure. I am with a true sincerity and affection. Sr, Yr. humble and obedt. Servant, A. Pope."

In volume 2, a manuscript poem purporting to be in Pope's handwriting, though we think that, like most of Pope's manuscript, it is in Warburton's hand, has been inserted opposite the printed version of the same poem. The manuscript is entitled: "Upon Silence in Imitation of a Modern Poem on Nothing!" while the printed version is headed "E. of Rochester. On Silence." The text of the two versions differ very greatly the one from the other, the printed version extending to XIV three line verses, while the manuscript extends to XVI verses.

Quoting from the manuscript, the first verse reads :--

Silence! thou primitive parent even to thought, They work ere Nature's was begun was wraught. Behind, and just behind, thy Eder Brother Nought."

The parallel verse from the printed text reads :-

"Silence! coeval with Eternity;

Thou wert, ere Nature's self began to be

'Twas one vast Nothing, all, and all slept fast in thee."

A contemporary owner of these volumes has written inside the front cover of volume 2:-

"In ye 200th Page of this Volume is a Poem in ye Author's own Handwriting, wch is printed in ye same Page, with great Alterations."

The lower margins of some leaves in volume 1 are wormed, not however affecting the text.

1799 LETTER SIGNED TO CAPTAIN D'AUVERGNE, Prince of Bouillon. 91/2 pp., folio. Parliament Street, 16th June, 1796. £.5 5s

A most important letter entirely dealing with the French Royalists who had sought refuge in Jersey upon the outbreak of the French Revolution. "... The sum of six thousand Louis d'or, and the articles specified in the inclosed Return are now ready to be embarked, and will be sent to Jersey without delay.

"It would be a matter of great satisfaction to His Majesty if any favourable circumstances (of which however there does not appear an immediate prospect) should arise to enable the numerous adversaries of the present form of Government in France to make either by themselves or in concert with Him, any vigorous and effectual attempt for the restoration of Monarchy. The persuasion His Majesty has more than once expressed that the attainment of this very important object would be the most certain means of promoting the Happiness and Prosperity of France, and of restoring Europe to a state of secure and Permanent Peace. is by no means diminished by the present posture of Affairs. Without losing sight of this ultimate object of their wishes and efforts, the attention of the Royalists is, at this moment, perhaps, more immediately engaged in procuring such means of at this moment, perhaps, more immediately engaged in procuring such means of resistance and defence against their Enemies, as may enable them to provide for their own personal security. This consideration has also the greatest weight with His Majesty, and will induce him, as long as He shall be under the necessity of continuing the present War with France, to afford them as far as may be in His power, every assistance which may conduce to either of the above-mentioned pur-poses. It is however his Majesty's express desire that it should be particularly understand by the Parality His Majesty's express desire that it should be particularly understood by the Royalists that His Majesty's first and most anxious wish is to restore His own subjects to the blessing of Peace as soon as it can be effected on just and honorable terms." Etc.

Authorizing Nicholas Steward to "collect and receive all manner of tithes of or belonging to the Impropriate Rectory of Lakenheath wch. are or shall become due for this harvest and to sue for the same in any Court of Law or Equity."

THE FIRST ENGLISH BOOK PUBLICLY BURNT BY THE COMMON HANGMAN. 1829 HISTRIO-MASTRIX, the Player's Scourge; or, Actor's Tragoedie, wherein it is largely evidenced by divers Arguments . . . that popular Stage-playes (the very Pompes of the Divell . . .) are sinfull, heathenish, lewde, ungodly spectacles, and most pernicious corruptions; condemned in all ages, as intolerable Mischiefs to Churches, to Republicks, to the manners, mindes, and soules of men. And that the Profession of Play-poets, of Stageplayers; together with the penning, acting, and frequenting of Stage playes, are unlawfull, infamous, and misbeseeming to Christians.

> FIRST EDITION. Thick small 4to. Original calf. London, 1633.

London, 1033. In the address "To the Christian Reader " he writes: "Shackspeers Plais are printed on the best crowne paper, far better than most Bibles." Prynne was only thirty-three when, in 1633, he published his Histriomastix; or, the Player's Scourge. His labour had taken him seven years, nor was it the first work of his that had attracted the notice of authority. In a thousand closely printed pages, he argued, by an appeal to fifty-five councils, seventy-one fathers and Christian writers, one hundred and fifty Protestant and Catholic authors, and forty heathenish, were "intolerable mischiefs to churches, to re-publics, to the manners, minds, and souls of men." Little as we think so now, this opinion, which was afterwards also Defoe's, was not without justification in those days. But Prynne's crusade did not stop at theatres; and Heylin's account reveals the feeling of contemporaries: "Neither the hospitality of the gentry in the time of Christmas, nor the music in cathedrals and the chapels royal, nor the pomps and gallantries of the Court, nor the Queen's harmless recrea-tions, King's solacing himself sometimes in masques and dances, could escape the venom of his pen. He seemed to breathe nothing but disgrace to the nation, infamy to the Church, reproaches to the Court, dishonour to the Queen." For his remarks against female actors were thought to be aimed at Henrietta Maria, though the pastoral in which she took part was posterior by six weeks to the though the pastoral in which she took part was posterior by six weeks to the (Continued over) publication of the book! The four legal societies "presented their Majesties with a pompous and magnificent masque, to let them see that Prynne's leaven had not scoured them all, and that they were not poisoned with the same infection."

This surely might have been enough; but by the time the matter had come before the Star Chamber, Laud had succeeded Abbot (with whom Prynne was on friendly terms) as Archbishop of Canterbury (August, 1633); and Laud was in favour of rigorous measures. So was Lord Dorset, and Lord Cottington, Chancellor of the Exchequer, whose judgment is of importance as showing that this was really the first occasion when the hangman's services were called in aid of the suppression of books:—

"I do in the first place begin censure with his book. I condemn it to be burnt in the most public manner that can be. The manner in other countries is (where such books are) to be burnt by the hangman, though not used in England (yet I wish it may, in respect of the strangeness and heinousness of the matter contained in it) to have a strange manner of burning; therefore, I shall desire it may be so burnt by the hand of the hangman. If it may agree with the Court, I do adjudge Mr. Prynne to be put from the Bar, and to be for ever uncapable of his profession. I do adjudge him, my Lords, that the Society of Lincoln's Inn do put him out of the Society; and because he had his offspring from Oxford " (now with a low voice, said the Archbishop of Canterbury, "I am sorry that ever Oxford bred such an evil member ") " there to be degraded. And I do condemn Mr. Prynne to stand in the pillory in two places, in Westminster and Cheapside, and that he shall lose both his ears, one in each place; and with a paper on his head declaring how foul an offence it is, viz., that it is for an infamous libel against both their Majesties, State, and Government. And, lastly (nay, not lastly), I do condemn him in £5,000 fine to the King. And, lastly, perpetual imprisonment."

BISHOP AUDLEY'S PSALTER. A FIFTEENTH CENTURY MANUSCRIPT OF THE PSALTER BY AN ENGLISH SCRIBE.

1832 PSALTER. ILLUMINATED MANUSCRIPT ON 190 leaves of thin vellum, beautifully written in Latin by an English scribe, in small Gothic characters, 18 lines to a page ( $4\frac{1}{2}$  by 3 inches).

Seven pages are very elaborately decorated with illuminated borders, each of these pages having charming tiny miniatures in gold and colours, other pages adorned with initial letters in gold and colours.

12mo. Green morocco, g. e., with doublures of red morocco bearing a geometrical design, the ground filled with arabesque tooling and au pointillé work, by Petit. (Enclosed in a dark green morocco drop case.)

(England, circa 1430-1440.)

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. LXXVIII.)

The Psalter is of special interest on account of its having become, some years after it was composed, the property of Edmund Audley, who was Bishop of Salisbury, from 1502-1504. An inscription on the first of a few extra end leaves records that the Psalter was given by the Bishop to his niece, Anne Audley, a Nun at Shaftsbury, where there was a very celebrated Benedictine Convent. She has signed her name below a prayer at the beginning.

The initial letter of each Psalm is illuminated in red, blue, and gold, with ornamental foliation in the margins. The beginning of each section is very elaborately decorated. The large initial is of different shades of red and blue, relieved with white, upon a gold background, and contains a painted miniature generally referring to some subject in the Psalm. That to Psalm 69 is particularly remarkable, depicting David with nothing on but a crown, standing in the water. Besides the initial the whole page is surrounded with an elaborate foliate border in red. blue, green, and gold.

The Kalendar, a quire of six leaves, is beautifully written in a very minute hand. At the end of the text, and at the foot of the third leaf of the Kalendar, is written the word "Loth." From its position at the end of the text it would appear to be the name of the Scribe. Three extra leaves at the beginning and three at the end contain the Athanasian Creed, and various prayers, in a slightly later hand.

1833 THE CLUB: or, a Dialogue between Father and Son.

FIRST EDITION. 12mo. Original calf (rebacked).

London, Printed for the Author, 1711.

Puckle's surest title to fame is as the author of "The Club." The volume is dedicated to two merchants, Micajah and Richard Perry, and to the memory of a third, Thomas Lane, who married Mary Puckle, a cousin of the writer. Puckle's book belongs to the class of collected character sketches which Sir Thomas Overbury began and Earle brought to perfection in his "Micro-Cosmographie." A young man is represented by the author as having met one night at a friend's club, assembled at "The Noah's Ark," twenty-five typical personages, including an antiquary, buffoon, critic, quack, rake, and usurer, and he gives next morning a sprightly description of each of his companions to his father. At the close of each of his son's sketches the father interposes much sententious moralising on the habits of life of the person described. The work exhibits shrewd observation.

Francis Bugg was at one time a member of the Society of Friends, but later left the body and began to write against it. He was thus well acquainted with all the weak places in the organisation of the sect as well as the blots on the characters of some of its adherents. Of the knowledge he possessed he made unsparing use, and his allegations were the more difficult to refute, as they often retained, however distorted and exaggeratd, a substratum of truth. His works are of special interest as they afford excellent specimens of the controversial spirit of the age, as well as from their quaint vivacity.

Edward Burrough was born in 1634 at Underbarrow, near Kendal, and from an early age was so remarkable for his gravity and piety that Howgill, in his "Testimony" to him, says that "grey hairs were upon him when he was but a youth, for he was clothed with wisdom from his infancy." Dissatisfied with the Anglican church he joined the presbyterians and finally the Quakers in 1652. Subsequently he travelled as a Quaker minister in Scotland and the northern counties of England and had to endure much suffering. He died in Newgate prison in 1662 and was buried in the Quaker burial-ground, Bunhill Fields.

Ellwood's first work, an attack on the established clergy.

Thomas Ellwood's first work, an attack on the established clergy. Thomas Ellwood, quaker and friend of Milton, was born at Crowell, Oxford-shire, in October, 1639. He joined the quakers in 1659 and became active as a controversialist and preacher. He suffered many terms of imprisonment for his faith. He is chiefly remembered in his connection with Milton, being indirectly the instrument of the latter writing "Paradise Regained." On his release from prison in 1665 he visited Milton at Chalfont St. Giles, and the poet lent him the manuscript of "Paradise Lost." Ellwood, when returning the paper, remarked, "Thou hast said much of 'Paradise Lost,' but what has thou to say of 'Para-dise Found?'" When he called on Milton in London in the autumn he was shown the second poem called "Paradise Regained," and Milton added, "This is owing to you, for you put it into my head by the question you put me at Chalfont, which before I had not thought of."

Francis Howgill was born at Todthorne, near Grayrigg, Westmorland, in 1618. He was first ordained as a minister of the established church, but adopted Quakerism in 1652, and became an active minister among the Friends, especially in the north of England. With Anthony Pearson he commenced the first quaker meetings held in London, at a house in Watling Street. He was an active pamphleteer and suffered many sentences of imprisonment, finally dying in prison on Jan. 20, 1669.

James Naylor was one of the outstanding figures in the early days of Quakerism. He was born at Ardsley, near Wakefield, about 1617. He served in the parliamentary forces under Fairfax in the Civil War. While in the army he became an independent and a preacher. In 1651 he adopted quakerism and accompanied Fox on many of his missions. Differences led to their estrangement. Naylor was pilloried, branded, and suffered many terms of imprisonment. He died October, 1660, at the age of 43. His controversial pamphlets compare favourably, in their restraint of tone, with those of many of his coadjutors. Some of his other pieces bear the stamps of spiritual genius of a high order.

1866 DOCUMENT SIGNED.

An extremely rare and interesting document being Raleigh's signature on an indenture appointing John Chudleigh, captain of a ship for the intended voyage to South America.

1 page, folio (vellum). 23rd March, 1616. £,350

The document has some small holes and is a little rubbed in places.

In February, 1595, Raleigh sailed from Plymouth with a fleet of five ships to explore the Ormoco, called by the Spanish settlers Guiana. Interested in the Spanish legend of the fabulous wealth of Manoa, he made a search for the city, which he failed to find, but brought back specimens of gold-bearing quartz.

In 1603, Raleigh was confined to the Tower on the charge of conspiring against James I., but in 1616 his friends persuaded the King to permit him to undertake another expedition to the Orinoco in search of gold, the expense of the adventure being defrayed by himself and his wife and the gentlemen adventurers who gathered around him. On arriving at the Isle de Salut, being too ill to proceed, he placed the expedition up the river under the command of Laurence Kemys, who failed after burning the Spanish settlement of San Tomas. He was unable to induce his men to make another attempt and returned to England in 1618, where he was executed on 29th October. RALEIGH (SIR WALTER)-continued.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLAFE NO. LXXIX.)

This, the First Issue, contains the date 1614, both on the engraved title-page and colophon at end. Engraved title laid down. It was rigidly suppressed by order of King James 1st, in spite of the lauda-tory notice given him. This issue has neither printed title or portrait. James complained that Raleigh had in his preface spoken irreverently of Henry VIII., and he believed he could detect his own features in Raleigh's por-trait of Ninias, the effeminate successor of Queen Semiramis. The following Order was issued for the suppression and destruction of this hook:

RICHMOND (Charles Lennox, 1st Duke of), 1672-1723. Natural Son of Charles II. by the Duchess of Portsmouth.

A FAMOUS ROMANTIC MARRIAGE.

1893 THE ORIGINAL MARRIAGE SETTLEMENT SIGNED BY THE DUKE OF RICHMOND, on the occasion of the Famous Romantic Boy and Girl Marriage of his Son Charles (afterwards 2nd Duke) to Lady Sara, Daughter of William Earl of Cadogan.

3 pp., folio. Sealed and dated from the Hague, 11th December, 1719. 1.15 155

This, one of the most famous of boy and girl marriages, was arranged between the parents to satisfy a debt of honour due from the Duke of Richmond to the Earl of Cadogan and which the former was unable to pay. The following extract from "The Galaxy" graphically describes the incidents of this extraordinary marriage, and the romantic meeting and falling in love of the young couple many years subsequently, they not having seen each other since their wedding day. "At the gaming table, whilst at the Hague, the Duke of Richmond incurred a debt of honour to Lord Cadogan, which he was unable to pay, and it was agreed that his son, a lad of fifteen, who bore the title of Earl of March, should (Continued over)

GNED—continued. marry the still younger daughter of Lord Cadogan. The boy was sent for from school, and the girl from the nursery; a clergyman was in attendnace, and the children were told that they were to be married on the spot. The girl had nothing to say; the boy cried out 'They are surely not going to marry me to that dowdy.' But married they were. A post-chaise was at the door, the bridegroom was packed off with his tutor to make the grand tour, and the bride sent back to her mother. Lord March remained abroad for several years, after which he returned to London, a well-educated, handsome young man, but in no haste to meet his wife, who he had never seen except upon the occasion of their hasty marriage. So he tarried in London to amuse himself. One night at the opera his attention was attracted to a beautiful young lady in the boxes. 'Who is that?' he asked of a gentleman beside him. 'You must be a stranger in London,' was the reply, 'not to know the toast of the town, the beautiful Lady March.' The Earl went straight to the box, announced himself, and claimed his bride. The two fell in love with each other on the spot, and lived long and happily together; and when the husband died she also died of a broken heart within a few months.'' By this Marriage Settlement, dated a week after the marriage, the Duke acknowledges to have received form the Earl of Cadogan the sum of Five Thous-and Pounds (apparently the amount of the unpaid gambling debt) part of the marriage portion of Twenty thousand pounds, and in consideration thereof he undertakes to pay his son Charles £250 p.a., but should his son die before the consummation of the marriage to Lady Sara, then the said sum of Five thousand pounds was to be repaid to the Earl. — Tedorsed is also a separate Deed by Anne. Duchess of Richmond confirming pounds was to be repaid to the Earl.

Endorsed is also a separate Deed by Anne, Duchess of Richmond confirming the Settlement.

> FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Half calf gilt, g. e., by Rivière. Oxford, Printed by L. Lichfield, 1653.

On 3rd Feb., 1653, the "most pleasant comedy of Mucedorus" was acted in a room of the inn at Witney, before three or four hundred spectators, by a company of amateurs from Stanton-Harcourt. After the second act the floor collapsed and five persons were killed. Rowe, a nonconformist divine of some note, made this catastrophe the topic of a series of sermons.

Mucedorus was credited to Shakespeare by Langbaine in 1661, but is now supposed to be by Robert Greene. It is really the foundation play of "The Tempest."

1922 THE TRAGEDY OF JANE SHORE: Written in Imitation of Shakespear's Style.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Half calf.

London, Printed for Bernard Lintott, N.D. (c. 1710). £6 6s

In this little Play there is a Prologue spoken by Mr. Wilks and an Epilogue spoken by Mrs. Oldfield. In the Prologue the following Shakespearean reference occurs: —

"In such an Age, Immortal Shakespear wrote, By no quaint rules, nor hampering Criticks raught; With rough, majestick Force he mov'd the Heart, And Strength, and Nature, made amends for Art. Our humble Author does his Steps pursue, He owns he had the mighty Bard in view." Etc.

Jane Shore, the wife of a London goldsmith; became mistress of King Edward IV, and greatly influenced him by her wit and beauty. She was finally accused of sorcery by Richard III, imprisoned, and made to do penance. She is continually referred to in Shakespeare's tragedy of "Richard III."

1930 CONTEMPORARY MANUSCRIPT OF A SPEECH MADE BY SIR BENJAMIN RUDYERD, in the House of Commons.

3 pp., folio. N.D. (1642).

An exceedingly important manuscript, being Sir Benjamin Rudyerd's vigorous attack on the king's evil counsellors. "Under the name of Puritans," he complains, "all our religion is branded."

"... They have soe brought it to passe, that under the name of Puritanes all or religion is branded, under a few hard words against Jesuites all Popery is countenanced, whosoever squares his Actiones by any rule either divine or humane he is a Puritane, whosoever would be govern'd by the Kings Lawes he is puritane, he that will not doe whatsoever other men would have him doe he is a Puritane, their great worke theyr master-piece now is, to make those of that Religion to be the suspected part of the Kingdome. . . .

"His Ma<sup>tio</sup>. is wiser than they y<sup>t</sup>. have advised him, therefore he cannot but see their subvertinge destructive Counsells, wch. speake louder y<sup>n</sup>. I can speake of y<sup>m</sup>. for they ring a dolefull deadly knell over ye whole kingdome.

"His Ma<sup>tie</sup>. lest knows they are, for us let ye matters bolt out y<sup>e</sup> men, their actiones, discover them, they are men that talke largly of ye Kings service have done none but their owne & y<sup>t</sup>. is too evident.

"They speake highly of ye Kings power, but they have made a miserable power, y<sup>t</sup>. produceth nothinge but weaknesse to ye King & Kingdome.

"They have exhausted ye Kings revenews to ye bottome, nay through the bottome & beyond.

"They have spent vast somes of money wastfully, fruitlessly, dangerously, soe that more money, without other Counsells, will be but a swift undoeinge, they have always peremptorily pursued an obstinate pnicious course, first they bring things to an extremity, y<sup>n</sup>. they make that extreamity of their owne makinge, ye reason of their next action seaven times worse than the former and there we are at this instant.

"They have almost spoiled the best instituted gov<sup>n</sup>mt. in ye whole world for sovraignty to a King, liberty to the subject, the proportionable temper of both which makes ye happiest state for power, for riches, for duration." Etc.

1931 IGNORAMUS. Comoedia coram Regia Maiestate Iacobi Regis Angliae, &c.

With fanciful portrait of "Ignoramus." FIRST EDITION. 12mo. Original calf. Londini, Impensis I(ohn) S(pencer), 1630.

Ruggle's Latin comedy was suggested by Giambattista Porta's "Trappolaria," but was certainly no slavish imitation of the Italian piece. It was devised as a satire on lawyers, Ruggle's hero, the Lawyer Ignoramus, is intended to represent the recorder of Cambridge, Francis Brakin. The comedy was performed before James I in 1615. John Chamberlain, the letter-writer, reported that "the thing was full of mirth and variety, with many excellent actors." Further Chamberlain writes "the piece hath so nettled the lawyers that they are almost out of patience." Ruggle's work gave rise to numerous "rhymes and ballads " circulated in the lawyers' defence. Subsequently the poet Cowley warned poets not to quarrel with Scholars, "lest some one take spleen and another 'Ignoramus' make."

Corruption. With some Reflections on Shakespear and other Practitioners for the Stage.

FIRST EDITION. London, Printed by Richard Baldwin, 1693. Together in one volume. Small 8vo. Half calf. 1.10 IOS on fly-leaf, "John Genest, 1828." In his preface to the first of the above pieces, Rymer promises to examine in detail six plays, viz., Fletcher's "Rollo," "King or no King," and "Maid's Tragedy," Shakespeare's "Othello" and "Julius Cæsar," and Ben Jonson's "Catiline." He confines himself, however, to the first three plays only. Most of his remarks are captious, but he displayed wide reading in the classics and occa-sionally exposed a genuine defeat. In the second work, Rymer severely criticises Shakespeare's "Othello." In his eyes it was a "bloody farce without salt or savour." He denies that Shake-speare showed any capacity in tragedy, although he allows him comic genius and humour. It is the earliest work of express Shakespearian criticism. Both works attracted considerable attention.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S PENSION TO JAMES VI OF SCOTLAND.

1949 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED TO MR. SKINNER.

I page, 4to. Dated from the Court, 22nd June, 1594. £21 Ordering that, by the Queen's command, £3,000 only should be paid to one Fowlys, who held a warrant for £4,000, on behalf of the Scottish King (afterwards James I of England).

In April, 1585, The English Ambassador, Edward Wotton, arranged that James was to have a pension of  $\pounds 5,000$  a year and to ally himself with England. and Elizabeth, and an alliance with the Guise and Catholic powers, of which he preferred the former. A treaty with England, which had been authorised by the estates in July, 1585, and again by the estates which met in December of the same year, was pushed on, and was at last signed between the two crowns at Berwick 2nd July, 1586. James eventually received a pension of  $\pounds 4,000$  a year from Elizabeth, who engaged, in terms intentionally vague, to do nothing or to allow anything to be done to derogate from "any greatness that might be due to him, unless provoked on his part by manifest ingratitude."

1 page, folio. 18th January, 1609.

A very interesting Document giving details of the expenses connected with the visit of the three Ambassadors, Francesco Contarini, Ambassador for Venice; Monsieur de La Boderie, from Paris; and Count Mansfelt from Saxony.

 $f_{2I}$

"Francesco Contarini, Ambassador from Venice, came to Dartford the 18th of January, when I was appointed to meete hym with. one of the R. coches & four other hyred coches, for conduction of hym to London, by Lande whether I brought hym ye 19th of ye same.

"For the hyre of 2 caroches, wth. 4 horses (to bring the fr. Ambassadour to his fyrst audience wth. the k.) at 20s. a day & 2 others at 15s. a day. £3 10s.

"For the hyre of those coches to bringe hym to his fyrst audience to the Queene. £3 10s.

"I mett them [Count Mansfelt & the other Commissioners of Saxony] at Gravsende the 20th of January, & brought them & their trayne the next day in Barges to London, for the charges of my self & my servants thes 2 dayes at Gravesende. £4. Etc."

Robert Cecil, 1st Earl of Salisbury, became secretary of state in 1596. He was accused by Essex of doubting Elizabeth's title in 1601 and secured the accession of James VI to the English throne in 1603. He built Hatfield House.

Thomas Howard, 1st Earl of Suffolk, distinguished himself against the Armada in 1588. He commanded in the attack on Azores fleet in 1591, and became Lord High Treasure in 1614. He was fined and imprisoned for embezzlement in 1619 and died in 1626.

SALISBURY (ROBERT CECIL, IST EARL OF)-continued.

1951 PRIVY COUNCIL LETTER SIGNED by the Earl of Salisbury, Thomas Egerton, Lord Buckhurst, Earl of Shrewsbury, Earl of Worcester, William Knollys, J. Stanhope, Sir John Fortescu, Lord Herbert.

1 page, folio. Whitehall, 20th January, 1601/2. 4.10 IOS

Being a Privy Council Warrant addressed to Lord Buckhurst, Treasurer of England, desiring him to repay the amount expended on coats, etc., for the troops sent to Chester for Ireland.

Salisbury was accused by the Earl of Essex of doubting Elizabeth's title. He made overtures to James VI of Scotland and secured his accession to the English throne in 1603. Two years later he was created Earl of Salisbury.

Sir Thomas Egerton was employed by Elizabeth on diplomatic commissions.

He became Lord Chancellor in 1603. Thomas Sackville, Lord Buckhurst, announced to Mary, Queen of Scots, sen-tence of death in 1586. He became Lord Treasurer in 1599, and was Lord High

Steward presiding at Essex's trial, 1601. Gilbert Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury, was arrested by order of Queen Flizabeth in 1595, but in the following year was sent to invest Henri IV with the Garter. William Knollys, Earl of Banbury, became Comptroller of the Royal House-hold Master of the Horse. He examined the plotters of 1605, and was Great Chamberlain at Charles I's coronation. Lohn Stanborne Baron Stanborne was Treasurer of the Chamber 1596 1616

John Stanhope, Baron Stanhope, was Treasurer of the Chamber, 1596-1616. Signed the warrant for torture of Edmond Peacham. Sir John Fortescue became Chancellor of the Exchequer and Privy Coun-cillor in 1589. He was deprived of the Exchequer by James I, but continued in his other offices. Intimate with Burghley, Bacon, Raleigh and Essex.

SAVAGE (Richard), 1690?-1743.

"Though he may not be altogether secure against the objections of the critic, it must however be acknowledged, that his works are the productions of a genius truly poetical . . . and have an original air, which has no resemblance to any fore-going writer, that the versification and sentiments have a cast peculiar to themselves, which no man can imitate with success, because what was nature in Savage, would in another be affection."-Dr. Johnson.

FIRST EDITION. Folio. Half morocco.

£16 16s London, Printed for M. Cooper, 1744.

Slight repair on title affecting one letter. In 1743, having exhausted the hospitality of the inhabitants of Bristol, Savage was arrested for debt, and confined in the city Newgate. Beau Nash sent him £5 from Bath; but otherwise he received little assistance. To avenge this neglect he composed the above satire.

1963 THE WANDERER: A Poem.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo. Calf.

London, 1729.

Savage considered this poem his masterpiece and Pope read it thrice with increasing approval. It bears traces of the influence of Thompson and contains vivid descriptions of nature. "'The Wanderer' of Savage is a very remarkable production; the more remarkable when we consider the circumstances in which it was composed. Stanzas of it were often written upon cobbler's stalls, and sometimes whole passages were indicted in a pauper-lodging. One special quality of the poem is the extreme purity, and moral elevation of sentiment, contrasted with his own practical con-duct." Henry Giles.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Full mottled calf gilt, g. e. Etonae, in Collegio Regali, Excudebat Joannes Norton, in Greçis, Oc. Regiis Typographus, 1610. 1.12 125

The second book issued from the Eton Press of Sir Henry Savile. The loss of his only son in 1604 was probably one of the chief causes which induced Savile from that time onward to devote the greater part of his fortune to the advancement of learning at Eton, where he was provost. He gathered round him there men of learning like Richard Montague (the editor of the above work), Hall, Boys, Carleton, and Allen. He founded a press at the College, purchasing a special fount from Holland. He engaged John Norton, the king's printer, for his publications, he himself supervising the whole of the printing.

£25

This amusing history of strolling players is exceedingly rare. At p. 17 will be found an interesting mention of Shakespeare, and other English dramatists. This reference to Shakespeare is all the more remarkable as it is an introduction by the translator of the present version—it does not appear in Scarron's original, in Browne's, nor in Goldsmith's translations. Many allusions to London are also introduced.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. LXXXVI.)

The First Part has a separate title at Sig. I. "Certaine Pieces of this Age paraboliz'd. Viz. Duellum Britannicum Regalis Justitia Jacobi Aquignispicium. Antidotum Cecillianum. London: Edward Griffin, 1616."

SCOT (THOMAS): PHILOMYTHIE—continued.

This rare and curious work is written in verse throughout. It is referred to in Drake's "Shakespeare and His Times," Vol. I., p. 701.

Prefixed are "A Praemonition to the intelligent Reader"; "Sacasmos Mundo, or The Frontispiece explained"; and "A supply of the description of Monsier Pandorsus Waldolynnatus, that merry American Philosopher, or the Wiseman of the New World, being Antipode of Æsop, placed with him as parrallel in the front."

In the address to the readers Spenser is mentioned :---

"If Spenser were now living, to report His Mother Hubberts tale, there would be sport: To see him in a blanket tost, and mounted

Up to the stars, and yet no starre accounted." Etc.

Perhaps the most remarkable poem is entitled "Regalis Justitia Jacobi," in which Scot celebrates the impartial Justice of King James in refusing to pardon Lord Sanquhar, or Sanquier, for the deliberate murder of Turner, the celebrated fencer in 1612, as may be seen in Wilson's history of that reign.

Of the first portion of the above work, the first edition appeared in the same year.

The inside and bottom margins of the first and last few leaves repaired.

The inside and bottom margins of the first and last few leaves repaired. Patten apparently accompanied the expedition into Scotland in 1548, and the Earl of Warwick, lieutenant of the host, made him "one of the Judges of the Marshelsey." William Cecil (afterwards Lord Burghley) went with him, and both, according to Patten, took notes day by day. Patten prepared the above account of the expedition, and obtained some aid from Cecil's diary. Patten's narrative was largely quoted by Holinshed, and was followed in Sir John Hayward's "Life and Reign of Edward VI."

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Half morocco.

London, Printed by D. Mallet, for L. C. and Timothy Goodwin, 1687.

The plot is taken from the "Eunuch" of Terence. It was at the acting of it that the roof of the theatre fell down. Few were hurt except the author himself, which occasioned Sir Fleetwood Shepherd to say, "there was so much fire in his play, that it blew up the poet, house, and all."—"No," replied the author, "the play was so heavy, it broke down the house, and buried the poet in his own rubbish."

Some chapters in this work are taken almost verbatim from the "Booke of Henor and Armes" published by Segar in 1590. It's third book contains fifty-four curious and interesting chapters upon the subjects of jousts, tournaments, triumphs and inaugurations of emperors, kings and princes.

curious and interesting chapters upon the subjects of jousts, tournaments, triumphs and inaugurations of emperors, kings and princes.
Mcule in his "Bibliotheca Heraldica," speaking of Segar's "Booke of Honor and Armes" says: "Shakespeare, in his boundless display of characters, has not failed to mark the pedantic manners of the courtiers of his time: in the play of "As you like it," an allusion was probably intended to this very book; see Touchstone's reply to Jacques, "O Sir, we quarrel in print by the book" etc., Act V., Sc. IV."

SELDEN (John), 1584-1654.

John Selden, sometimes styled "The great dictator of learning of the English Nation," and pronounced by Grotius, his antagonist, to be the glory of it, was a man of as extensive and profound knowledge as any of his age. Like a man of genius, he was not content with walking in the beaten track of learning, but was for striking out new paths, and enlarging the territories of science.

1996 OF THE DOMINION, or, Ownership of the Sea. Two Books. Writen at first in Latin, and Entituled, Mare Chausum seu, De Dominio Maris. Translated into English; and set forth with some Additional Evidences and Discourses by Marchamont Nedham.

With engraved frontispiece by P. Lombart (verses opposite), and engravings in the text.

FIRST EDITION IN ENGLISH. Folio. Original calf.

London, Printed by William Du-Gard, 1652. £10 10s

Written as an answer to the "Mare Liberum" of Grotius and the Dutch claims to fish off the British coasts. In the first book Selden argues that by law of nature or nations the sea is not common to all men, but is as much as the land the subject of private property. In the second book he maintains that the lordship of the circumbient ocean belongs to the crown of Great Britain as an indivisible and perpetual appendage.

1999 Privilege of the Baronage of England.

Probably the Original Manuscript of this important Treatise as delivered to the Sub-Committee of the House of Lords: written on 250 leaves.

Folio. Original vellum. (1641.) £,52 105

John Selden, the celebrated antiquary, lived from 1584 to 1654. He prepared this treatise in obedience to a command of the House of Lords. Selden delivered his work on the 6th December, 1641, and this is probably the actual Manuscript delivered. The first part relates to privileges enjoyed by the baronage of England, "as they are one estate together in the upper house," as, e.g., the privilege of voting by proxies; the second relates to privileges enjoyed by them, "as every one of them is privately a single baron," as e.g., their right of substituting a protestation upon honour for an oath, and their benefit of clergy though unable to read. ### 2019 A TRUE WIDOW. A Comedy, Acted by the Duke's Servants. FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Half morocco.

London, Printed for Benjamin Tooke, 1679.

The prologue written by Dryden, who later prefixed it to Mrs. Behn's play of the "Widow Ranter," 1690, after his quarrel with Shadwell. With reference to Shakespeare in the Dedicatory Epistle to Sir Charles Sedley: — "Nor are your Writings unequal to any Man's of this Age (not to speak of abundance of excellent Copies of Verses) you have in the 'Mulberry-Garden' shown the true Wit, Humour, and Satyr of a Comedy; and in 'Antony and Cleopatra,' the true Spirit of a Tragedy, the only one (except two of Johnson's, and one of Shakespear's) wherein Romans are made to speak and do like Romans : there are to be found the true characters of Antony and Cleopatra, as they were; whereas a French Author would have made the Ægyptian and the Roman both become French under his pen." Etc.

SHAKESPEARE (William), 1564-1616.

"He was not of an age, but for all time! And all the Muses still were in their prime, When like Apollo he came forth to warme Our eares, or like a Mercury to charme! Nature her selfe was proud of his designes, And joy'd to weare the dressing of his lines! Which were so richly spun, and woven so fit, As, since, she will vouchsafe no other Wit."

-Ben. Jonson.

"Nor even in his plays is Shakspeare merely a dramatist. Apart altogether from his dramatic power, he is the greatest poet that ever lived. His sympathy is the most universal, his imagination the most plastic, his diction the most expressive, ever given to any writer. His poetry has in itself the power and varied excellences of all other poetry. While in grandeur, and beauty, and passion, and sweetest music, and all the other higher gifts of song he may be ranked with the greatest."-George Craik.

Adapted from Shakespeare's play of the same name. In "The Preface to the Play," Shakespeare's version is fully discussed and comparison made between it and Dryden's adaptation. "The grounds of Criticism in Tragedy" deals very fully with the dramatic art, continually citing Shakespeare and his plays, comparing him with Fletcher, Ben Jonson and the like."

"The difference between Shakespear and Fletcher in their Plotting seems to be this, that Shakespear generally moves more terror, and Fletcher more com-passion: For the first had a more Masculine, a bolder and more fiery genius; the second a more soft and womanish. In the mechanic beauties of the Plot, which are the observation of the three Unities, Time, Place, and Action, they are both deficient; but Shakespear most. Ben. Johnson reform'd those errors in his Comedies, yet one of Shakespear's was Regular before him: which is, 'The Merry Wives of Windsor.'"

Wives of Windsor."
"But our Shakespear, having ascrib'd to 'Henry the Fourth' the character of a King, and of a Father, gives him the perfect manners of each Relation, when either he transacts with his son, or with his subjects. Fletcher, on the other side, gives neither to Arbaces, nor to the King in the 'Maids Tragedy,' the qualities which are suitable to a Monarch."
"To return once more to Shakespeare; no man ever drew so many characters, or generally distinguished 'em better from one another, excepting only Johnson: I will instance hut in one, to show the copiousness of his Invention; 'tis that of Calyban or the Monster in the 'Tempest.'" Etc., etc.
The Prologue spoken by Mr. Betterton, representing the Ghost of Shakespear: "See, my lov'd Britons, see your Shakespeare rise, An awfull ghost confess'd to human eyes!" Etc.

Together with the RARE SEVENTH VOLUME OF POEMS.

Portrait of Shakespeare in each volume of the Plays, a fullpage illustration to each Play, and Frontispiece to the Poems.

7 vols., 8vo. Old calf.

London, Tonson, 1709.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. LXXXIX.)

In importance and interest this edition ranks second to the editio princeps. It is the first manual text, the first to present a biography of the poet, the first to bear an editor's name, the first to possess illustration, and the first of the endless army of editions in octavo. The text is copied from the fourth folio of 1685. Rowe commissioned Thomas Betterton, the actor, to glean for him in and around Stratford particulars of Shakespeare's life. At that period it was still possible to get a few authentic details.

The attributed plays are also found in this version, and the plates are of no small value because of their contemporary costume. In this issue will also be found the earliest effort to trace parallels between Shakespeare and other classics.

This edition was edited by Voltaire, and the present copy is highly interesting as in Volume I appears the Shakespeare Play, "Jules Cesar," pages 453-520, which has numerous contemporary manuscript notes in English, commenting on the translation, such as:—

"The Cobblers playing upon words here, in which the humour of the dialogue consists is quite lost here, and nothing else can be more useless than to call this a faithful translation."

"Voltaire would in florid sterile words have given us a long speech to tell us the conspirators held their meetings till near sun rise-let the reader judge which shews more true poetical art and taste."

"Good friends go in and taste some wine with me, and we like friends will straitway go together, this he endeavours to debase by introducing it in the vulgar phrase—take a bottle, I would fain know whether it does not owe all its vulgarity to the translator?" Etc.

These notes were evidently written by a scholar of the period.

A work of the highest importance to students of the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy. Until a few years back it was entirely unknown. It is the first book to attribute the authorship of the Shakespeare Plays to Sir Francis Bacon, and precedes all other books on the Controversy by nearly a hundred years. One of the most remarkable statements is a reference to the Manuscript of Bacon's "Commonplace Book" (now in the British Museum). It is only since about 1883 that this Commonplace Book has been brought into prominence in the discussion.

It was written by Herbert Lawrence, a Surgeon and Apothecary. He was a schoolfellow and intimate friend of David Garrick.

The Shakespeare and Bacon references are on pages 144-149.

"At the Time of my Imprisonment in Florence, it seems, my Father, Genius and Humour, made a trip to London, where, upon their Arrival, they made an Acquaintance with a Person belonging to the Playhouse; this Man was a profligate in his Youth, and, as some say, had been a deer_stealer, others deny it; but be that as it will, he certainly was a Thief from the Time he was first capable of distinguishing any Thing; and therefore it is immaterial what Articles he dealt in. I say, my Father and his Friends made a sudden and violent Intimacy with this Man, who, seeing that they were a negligent careless People, took the first opportunity that presented itself, to rob them of every Thing he could lay his hands on, and the better to conceal his theft, he told them, with an affected Concern, that one Misfortune never came alone—that they had been actually informed against, as Persons concerned in an assassination Plot, now secretly crarying on by Mary Queen of Scots against the Queen of England, that he knew their Innocence, but they must not depend upon that—nothing but quitting the Country could save them. They took his Word and marched off forthwith for Holland. As soon as he had got fairly rid of them, he began to examine the fruits of his Ingenuity. Amongst my Father's Baggage, he presently cast his Eye upon a common place Book, in which was contained, an infinite variety of Modes and Forms, to express all the different Sentiments of the human Mind, together with Rules for their Combinations and Connections upon every Subject or Occasion that might Occur in Dramatic Writing. He found too in a small Cabinet, a Glass, possessed of very extraordinary Properties, belonging to Genius, and invented by him; by the Help of this Glasse he could, not only approximate the external Surface of any Object, but even penetrate into the deep Recesses of the Soul of Man. Could discover all the Passions and note their various Operations in the Human Heart. In a Hatbox, wherein all the Goods and Chattells of Humour were deposited, he met with a Mask of curious Workmanship; it had the Power of making every Sentence that came out of the Mouth of the Wearer, appear extremely pleasant and entertaining, the jocose Expression of the Features was exceedingly natural, and it had Nothing of that shining Polish common to other Masks, which is too apt to cast disagreeable Reflections.

cast disagreeable Reflections. "In what Manner he had obtained this illgotten Treasure was unknown to every Body, but my Mother, Wisdom, and Myself; and we should not have found it out, if the Mask, which upon all other Occasions is used as a Disguise, had not made the Discovery. The Mask of Humour was our old Acquaintance, but we agreed, tho' much against my Mother's Inclination, to take no Notice of the Robbery, for we conceived that my Father and his Friends would easily recover their Loss, and were likewise apprehensive that we could not distress this Man without depriving his Country of its greatest Ornament.

"With these Materials, and with good Parts of his own, he commenced Play-Writing; how he succeeded is needless to say, when I tell the Reader that his name was Shakespear."

London, Printed for F. Coles, in Wine-street, neer Hatten-Garden, N.D. (c. 1635).

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. XCI.)

Probably unique broadside. Of considerable interest and importance to the Shakespearean collector. Shakespeare is supposed to have drawn the plot or dramatic framework for his play "The Taming of the Shrew" from a comedy called "The Taming of A Shrew," first produced in 1594. In the above broadside the title has been taken from the original piece, having "A" instead of "The" in the wording.

James O. Halliwell, in his Introduction to "The Taming of the Shrew" in his monumental Edition of Shakespeare's Works, actually mentions this broadside, and it may be presumed that the copy he saw is identical with the above. Halliwell after mentioning the existence of this rare piece, goes on to say: "The dramatic and literary merit of the 'Taming of The Shrew' can only be correctly estimated by bearing in mind the manners and tendencies of the age in which it was written. It must be recollected that the power of gentleness, its efficiency greater than force, moving to accomplish the same influence, is a truth barely yet recognised in its fulness. Shakespeare was one of the few writers of his time that appreciated this moral law." Etc. This spirit of gentleness so well expounded by Shakespeare is fully represented in the above broadside, and parallels may be drawn between the two, pointing to the fact that the author of the broadside verses must have been well acquainted with Shakespeare's Play. Quoting from Shakespeare :--

Pet.—" I pray you do. I will attend her here And woo her with some spirit when she comes. Say that she rail, why then I'll tell her plain She sings as sweetly as a nightingale: Say that she frown, I'll say she looks as clear As morning roses newly wash'd with dew." Etc.

Quoting from the broadside :---

"Young man that now art wedded to a wife, Use her even as the apple of thine eye, Then if she be of nature bent to strife, Thy love will cause that wrath in her to dye; Even as soft things fiery bullets do allay, That through walls of stone do make their way." Etc.

Consists of a critical examination of "Hamlet."

In the course of his notes Theobald calmly asserted that whoever edited Shakespeare, be he Pope or any other, he (Theobald) would at the end still be able to give five hundred emendations which would escape any other editor. Pope retaliated by creating Theobald here of "The dunciad," while Hogarth has given us the only known portrait of him in his print, "The distrest poet." Valuable for its text of "Hamlet," formed from that of the Jaggard canon and second quarto. Theobald's foundation was adopted for the Cambridge edition of 1863-66, and is now the accepted text.

Speaking of Shenstone's "Schoolmistress," Goldsmith says: "This poem is one of those happinesses in which a poet excels himself, as there is nothing in all Shenstone which any way approaches it in merit; and, though I dislike the imitations of our English poets in general, yet, on this minute subject, the antiquity of the style produces a very ludicrous solemnity."

IV, and greatly influenced him by her wit and beauty. Later, she is said to have become, successively, mistress of Lord Hastings and Thos. Grey, 1st Marquese of Dorset. She was accused of sorcery by Richard III, imprisoned and made to do penance. She died in 1527.

Jane Shore is introduced into Shakespeare's Tragedy of "Richard III." Clarence and Gloucester discuss the power exercised over the King by her beauty and "passing pleasing tongue"; Gloucester sends a mocking message to Hastings to "give Mistress S. one gentle kiss the more"; Gloucester declares that the Queen is in league with the "harlot, strumpet Shore," and that Hastings is the latter's protector; etc.

Both the Duchess of Cleveland and the Duchess of Portsmouth were mistresses of Charles II.

to us, they had put themselves out the mediation. The French Ambr. and wee thinking Swedes and Danes Well enough inclined to peace the principall obstacles still proceeding from the Hollanders, did undertake the mediation by ourselves in which work wee have soe well succeeded, that the conditions are all agreed upon. . . The conditions granted to Denmark are more easy than those offered for them by Holland, unto which the Swedes were induced, that they might oblige the King of Denmark, to be theire friend, as well as at peace with them, and to make the peace without the intervention of the Hollanders. The next work will be how to joine theis two crownes to us, as if the Hollanders would make warre upon us, which is too much to be suspected they intend, wee may have more help and favour for them than is given unto our enimyes, which will be noe hard matter perhaps he writes :-

"I doe not say anything of my owne intentions in relation unto the changes that are fallen out already, or the others that are dayly expected. The truth is I knowe them not, the business is too difficult to iudge of at this distance, especially not knowing what will be in my power, or choice if I doe not receave newe orders I shall returns speedily home and shall then followe that way which your Lordsp. shall command, and my best friends advise, as farre as I can without breaking the rules of honour or conscience, which I am sure will never be expected from me, by your Lordsp. nor thoes whoes opinions I consider. Subtle, delicate, refined, with a keen and curious wit, a rare faculty of verse, and a singular capacity of expression. Sidney's "Arcadia," besides its excellent language, rare contrivances, and delectable stories, hath in it all the strains of poesy. His sonnets are among the very best of their sort.

2128 ITINERARIA COLLECTANEA; or, Instructions for a Traveler Directing him how to make the best use of his Travels: Together with the Pollitique survay of a Kingdome.

Seventeenth-century manuscript, neatly written on 104 pages.

12mo. Original vellum. 1629.

From the Collection of the celebrated Shakespeare Antiquary, Dr. Farmer (author of "Essay on Shakespeare's Learning, 1767," etc.), who has added in a note :----

"The Names of Robert, Earl of Essex, and Sir Philip Sidney, are put to this book, but it is a question whether either had a hand in it." The volume includes Sir Francis Bacon's "Essay of Travell," 7 pp., etc.

SHAKESPEARE WITNESSED SIR PHILIP SIDNEY'S MILITARY FUNERAL.

2129 BROOKE (Fulke Greville, Lord). THE MANNER OF SIR PHILIP SIDNEY'S DEATH. 1586.

Important Sixteenth-century Manuscript closely written on 10 pp., small 8vo, and bound with other manuscript pieces relating to the defence of England against the expected Spanish Invasion and Armada. Written throughout in the same neat hand.

Extending in all to over 70 pp., and bound in contemporary vellum. C. 1595.

The other pieces consist of :---

"A military discourse whether it be better for England to give the Invader present battaile or to temporize and deferre the same." 46 pp.

"The advise of the Lord Gray, Sir Thomas Leighton, Sir John Norris, and others touching the meanes fittest to be obteyned for defence of the Realme. Anno 1587." 7 pp.

"Scaliger (J.) The Polite of the United Provinces." 8 pp.

Fulke Greville's account of Sir Philip Sidney's death is very detailed, giving his dying speeches, appearance, etc. This account was presumably incorporated in his "Life of the renowned Sir Philip Sidney," published in 1652. Greville undoubtedly contemplated expanding this "Life" still further into an elaborate historical treatise, beginning with the marriage of Henry VII, but mainly dealing with Elizabeth's life. Owing to objections by Sir Robert Cecil, this plan was

"A special occasion for trailing a pike was a military funeral, a duty which the train-bands enjoyed immensely. The classical instance of a military funeral at St. Paul's is that of Sir Philip Sidney in 1586. Shakespeare must have wit-nessed more than one; and here at the close of "Coriolanus" we find Anfidius saying over the corpse of the hero:

" Take him up: Help, three o' the chiefest soldiers; I'll be one.

Beat thou the drum, that it speak mournfully; Trail your steel pikes." Etc.

320

Four engravings are reproduced from Lant's Funeral of Sir Philip Sidney, in which the custom of trailling pikes at military funerals is fully illustrated.

2130 SIR GYLES GOOSE-CAPPE KNIGHT: A Comedy lately Acted with great applause at the private House in Salisbury Court.

Small 4to. Full green morocco gilt, g. e., by Riviere. London, Printed by Hugh Perry, 1636. £31 IOS

The author of this Play is unknown. It is dedicated by the Publisher, Hugh Perry, to Richard Young. "Sir Gyles Goose-Cappe" is a character copied from Shakespeare's "Falstaff." Fleay, in his English Drama, compares "Goosecap of Essex, with his endless "tickle" and "mortal" with "Falstaff" (2 Henry IV, II, 1). He further remarks that:— "Rudesby, the Northern or Western man, 'two parts soldier'; Foulweather, the Southern man, the 'emphatic 'Captain of the Low Countries, with his 'com-mendations'; Tales of Kent, and Kingcob, the Western man, are certainly per-sonal caricatures; while Clarence is, I think, meant for the author himself." Fleay considers that Chapman was most likely the Author.

he were one of those there encamped, he would have experienced the hardships and discomforts so fully spoken of by that great military reformer, Sir John Smythe, who for his pains in advocating reforms, was sent to prison. The bad quality and fit of the armour supplied to the forces of the Crown was an old story. "In 1590, Sir John Smythe, speaking of the musters of 1587 and 1588 of the Essex Regiment, while admitting that he had found some good old armour amongst them, complained that many of the ordinary corselets had great imperfections in the shallowness of the burgonets (head-pieces), the straightness of the collors (gorgets), and the lack of compass in the pauldrons (shoulder defences). These and other faults of construction and material made the armour (much of which was imported) ' unfit for the soldiers, with ease to fetch their breaths, and to march in,' and ' much armour unfit and uneasy to fight it.'"

On the fly-leaf is the following inscription and date: — Leonardus Danet emito ame Johanne Thatcher.

> Londinensi vicesimo primo die mensis Martii anno domini. 1562.

This important English manuscript on the Hunting Laws of the Forest is one of the earliest known, and it pre-dates by 36 years the treatise published by Manwood. It is evidently the work of John Thatcher.

The book is divided into chapters :--

FOREST. What thing dothe make a forest, and how a forest is made, what thinges be incident to a forest, who maie have a forest, and what difference is between a forest, chase, warren, and park:

"The forest is a place fytt for wylde beastes in the protection of ye king for ye pleasure and sporte of ye same, and not for all beastes, but for beastes belonging to the wood, that is to saie: for hawks, males and females, deer, sanglier, wilde hogge, wilde bulles, and lyen, wilde beares, and haires, wilde ratte, foxes, wolfes, squirrelle, and for all other beastes of venery and vermyns of chase. And none may chase within ye forest, at anie of the beastes aforesaid, without the Kings licence." Etc.

- JUSTICES. "What law is used in a forest and the authoritie of the Justices." Etc.
- DISTRESSE. "What thynge the foresters shall have. The forester shall have the lefte shoulder of every deare or lamb, which shalbe slaine within ye forest, and where he him selfe doth kill the beaste, he shall have the skynne, and the parson of the churche shall have the rigt shoulder." Etc.
- CHASING. "A man shall lose his life for killing a wild beaste having . . . or other notorious signe about his neck. A priest shalbe taken for chasing in the forest. An Archbishop shall not be taken for chasing. . . . If any man be founde killing of wild beastes in the forest he shalbe imprisoned.

BEASTES. "Nowe it is to be seen what lordes may take wilde beastes by this Article and who cannot.

Ffirste the Statute doth not speake but or Archbishoppes, Bishoppes, Erles, or Barons. But if a prince be coming towardes the King by his commandement, he shall have the Benifitt of this Article, and the same law is of a marquis, etc.

Also the eldest sonne of a Duke is an Erle, and the eldest sonne of an Erle is a Baron and every sonne of a Duke or Marquis a lorde, but they cannot take the benifit of this Statute for they are not pieres of the Realme.

What beastes a man shall take. . . . By these wourdes it is not lymitted what beastes he shall take, but it is supposed that he shall take wilde beastes, and it is not matter of what kyndes or sortes he do take, be it hawke, deer, Bull or Sanglier." Etc.

HAWKES. "If any hawke distresses in a wood they are the lordes of the wood. The owners of the wood shall have a writt of trespas for taking of hawkes out of their nestes within the wood." Etc.

No man upon paine of fine may flea a heron out of his owne ground, except that he flea him without a lare or falcon or other hawke of praye, etc.

BEES. "Ffor the taking of hony and wax from any manner of tree."

- OUTLAWS. "How and by what prooves a man shalbe outlawed for trespas done in the forest."
- VENERIE. "Nowe it is to be seen what thing shalbe understood by this worde De Venarione-Beastes of venary, wild bulles and bores, beavers, hare, etc."

de Scrbière, a Frenchman, had published in 1664 a work entitled "Relation d'un Voyage en Angleterre," in which he touched upon some of the defects of the national character. Sprat, with some assistance from Evelyn, composed the above biting reply. It is addressed to his friend and frequent correspondent, Christopher Wren. It was a popular vindication of Englishmen, praised by Addison as "full of just satire and ingenuity." Johnson's comment on it was that it was "not ill performed, but perhaps rewarded with at least its full proportion of praise."

Early in 1719 Steele was involved in a painful controversy with his lifelong friend Addison. He started a periodical called the "Phebeian," to denounce Lord Sunderland's bill for limiting the power of creating new peers. Addison replied acrimoniously in the "Old Whig." Steele's opposition to the measure led indirectly to the withdrawal by the Duke of Newcastle, in January, 1720, of the Drury Lane patent. With the last occurrence is connected the establishment of the most interesting of Steele's later periodical efforts, "The Theatre." The above pamphlet is concerned with his defence, citing the patent granted to the Drury Lane Theatre, 1719.

Sir William Alexander, Earl of Stirling, was not only a poet and dramatist, but one of the foremost statesmen of his day. In 1621 the King gave him a charter, granting "him, his heirs and assigns, the Continent, lands and islands, situate and lying in America, with the cape or promontory called the Cape de Sable." This included Nova Scotia, practically all the then known Canada, and a great portion of the now United States. This unique gift caused many sarcastic comments. Sir Thomas Urquhart writes that Stirling "was born a poet and aimed to be a king."

2222 ARTICLES OF THE COMMONS ASSEMBLED IN PARLIAMENT, against Thomas Earle of Strafford, in maintenance of their Accusation whereby he stands charged with high treason.

The Official Manuscript on 5 page folio, endorsed on the back "The Lower House Charge against the Earle of Stafford the 24 of November, 1640." £5 5s

This is the preliminary to the famous trial of the Earl of Strafford, which ended with his execution on the 12th of May, 1641.

On November 11th, 1640, whether in consequence of Charles's indecision, or because it was intended to seize the leaders before the accusation was brought, Strafford appeared in the House of Lords, but soon left without uttering a word. On 25th November the above preliminary charge against him was brought up by the Commons, on which the Lords committed him to the Tower. In the first article it was declared that he had "traitorously endeavoured to subvert the fundamental laws and government of the realms of England and Ireland, and instead thereof to introduce an arbitrary and tyrannical government against law, which he hath declared by traitorous words, counsels, and actions, and by giving his majesty advice by force of arms to compel his loyal subjects to submit thereunto." This was the gist of the whole accusation. Pym and the commoners had resolved to support two propositions: first, that Strafford had endeavoured to subvert the fundamental laws; and, Secondly, that such an endeavour was tantamount to high treason. Thomas de Cantelupe, chancellor, Bishop of Hereford, and saint, was one of the most influencial and prominent men in the reigns of Henry III and Edward I. A vast mass of testimony as to his life, character, and saintliness exists, the above work incorporating the best from all former sources. Cantelupe was made a saint by John XXII in 1320. Long before this, however, his cultus had ob-tained a popularity second only, among recent English saints, to that of Thomas of Canterbury of Canterbury.

STRAWBERRY HILL PRESS.

The "Strawberry Hill Press" took its name from a private press set up in a cottage adjoining Horace Walpole's house at Strawberry Hill, near Twickenham, in 1757. Walpole took for his sole manager and operator an Irish printer named William Robinson. His first issue was the "Odes" of Gray, which he set up for the Dodsleys in 1757. These in due course were followed by a number of works of varying importance, several from Walpole's own pen. All the earlier books were printed by his first printer, Robinson. But Robinson was dismissed in 1759, and, after an interval of occasional hands, was succeeded by Thomas Kirgate, who continued to perform his duties until Walpole's death.

Lady Arabella Stuart, was at this time the next heir to the English throne after James I. She married secretly William Seymour, second son of Lord Beauchamp, and by so doing acted contrary to the wishes of the King, who caused them both to be imprisoned. They escaped and the above proclamation was issued for their re-arrest.

The claim of Lady Arabella Stuart to the English throne led to the downfall of Sir Walter Raleigh. Possibly he may have in his haste spoken, or at least listened to, words expressing a preference for Arabella Stuart. He was arrested on 17th July 1603, condemned to death, and only on the scaffold was his sentence commuted to perpetual imprisonment. His beheading in 1618 was the result of this sentence.

An interesting document signed by the Young Pretender appointing "a cap-tain of his Majesty's forces in the regiment commanded by Evan McPherson of Clunie." The name has not been filled in. At the time of the arrival of Prince Charles in 1745, Macpherson held com-mand of a company in Lord Loudoun's regiment, and, although the clan had fought for the Pretender in 1715, he professed his determination to support the Government. On 28th August, 1745, he was seized in his own house during the night by a large party from the Young Pretender's army, and brought a prisoner to their camp. After being detained for some time he finally agreed to muster his clan on behalf of the Pretender, and displayed the utmost enthusiasm in the Jacobite cause, afterwards helping the Prince to escape to France.

THE "1745" REBELLION.

2237 A SERIES OF SIX AUTOGRAPH LETTERS SIGNED FROM WILLIAM MARSDEN, all (with one exception) being addressed to the Duke of Leeds.

Comprising together 14 pp., folio and 4to, dated from Barnsley, etc., 26th October to 7th December, 1745. 1.25

A most important series of letters of historical interest concerning the 1745 Rebellion; they are all of a confidential nature detailing the progress of the Rebellion in various districts during its most exciting period.

The following extracts indicate to a slight extent the absorbing interest of the letters : ---

". . . On Tuesday last the Rebells had been twice before the Town of Carlisle, and had been repulsed by the Cannon from the walls; from whence they march'd to a town called Brampton, abt. 7 miles east of Carlisle in the road tomarch'd to a town called Brampton, abt. 7 miles east of Carlisle in the road to-wards Newcastle, but were certainly going back to besiege it in haveing with em as is now said upwards of twenty pieces of cannon, and are agreed on all hands to be stronger than was expected, tho I don't hear their numbers are about 100,000. They seem very resolute and regular in their marches, doe it very quietly, and pretty much in the night time. The fate of Carlisle must be known by this time. . . The people about Preston, and other parts of Lancashire are in terrible fears, and many of em have left their habitations, and taken away their most valuable effects. their most valuable effects.

"The Towne of Carlisle had agreed to surrender to the Rebells on Fryday last, but the Castle was determined to hold out to ye last extremity. Marshall Wade was to march out on Saturday from Newcastle in order to relieve Carlisle, and had sent two regiments of Dragoons and two of foot under Genl. Handyside for ye security of Edinburgh, and that Sir John Ligneer was comeing forward with all possible expedition.

"Its reported by ye same advise that Ld. George Murray was kill'd before Carlisle. The Rebells have put all the countrey under military execution, and have seized on all the country people, who they oblige to doe all their drudgery, and treat them barbarously. Tho some of the Cumberland light horse who took the Quarter-master of the Rebells prisoner, and carryed to Newcastle, were taken prisoners themselves, as they were returning from Newcastle by the Rebells.

"The Highlanders have been coming in here from 4 in th afternoon till 9 some houses have 100 each, the whole body wee believe is moveing Southwards; wee have but 3,000 in town, whats in the neighbourhood wee cannot yet judge, tomorrow is to bring severall 1,000 more. An express sent to Marshall Wade at 7 in the evening.

"Kendall Nov. 21st, 6 in the evening.

"The Rebels were at Hornby 3 miles in this side Shap, 8 of them Followed ye messenger down the town, he says there was two of em in Highland dresses, one of em a Gentleman well dressed, 3 servants, and two others that were midling dressed and a lead horse, the messenger went to ye Inn in Shap and took Horse. . . .

"We have in certain accounts got where Genl. Wade with his army now is, its believed they returned from Hoxham to Newcastle again, after a most terrible march both in regard to Weather and want of common necessarys, Capt. Wentworth give his father a most dismall account from Hoxham, but could not say where they was to goe next. The reasons given why Genl. Wade does not make forwards is that the rebells may penetrate far enough into England, and be thereby the better secured, and how that will be God only knows. People here about begin to be in great fears, and some are removing their most portable of their valuables done towards Hull and towards other parts of ye Eastern coast.

"Further accounts from Kendall advise that the young pretender was come there with his whole army amounting to 7 or 8 thousand at most including women and boys, they had been counted twice in their march over two different bridges, and have no more than sixteen field-pieces with em and thirty one carriages with their baggage. His van guard march on Saturday morning for Burton in Kentdale half way between Kendall and Lancaster, and twas thought they would get to Lancaster on Sunday night if they could, so that our fears of their coming this way are now over for ye present.

"The Chevalier with the main body came to Kendall about 10 o'clock on Saturday morning just at ye time the van Guard march'd for Burton. He was proclaimed that day and the mayor and recorder obliged to attend them. Their baggage and artillery was not got up when the express came away. So much wee had on Monday afternoon.

"Yesterday wee had a further account which advised that a person who had been and had spent a day among the Rebells said they were all come into Kendall with part of their baggage and artillery, that 1,800 were march'd for Burton and Lancaster, 53 of them with Ld. E. at Hornby Castle on Sunday, and 3,000 were at Kendall and says some of em are very stout men, one seven feet high, but the greatest part of em are pittyfall, shabbrag boys and old men and doe not exceed 6,000 of all sorts, and seem to be confirmed from different quarters." Etc., etc. STUART (CHARLES EDWARD, "THE YOUNG PRETENDER")-continued.

2254 BOOTLE (Sir Thomas). A SERIES OF 16 AUTOGRAPH LETTERS SIGNED from Thomas Stanley, Thomas Garden, Thomas Simpson and Matthew Lyon, addressed to Sir Thomas Bootle during the Rebellion of 1745-6.

Extending to 27 pp., folio and 4to.

Dated from Culcheth, London, Penrith, Kirkbysteven, between 24th September, 1745, and 2nd January, 1746.

- ALSO PRINTED PROCLAMATION ANNOUNCING THE DUKE OF CUMBER-LAND'S VICTORY OVER THE REBELS AT CULLODEN, 16TH APRIL, 1746. 8 pp., folio. And in addition,
- A COMMISSION SIGNED BY JAMES II AND BY HIS SECRETARY OF STATE, EARL OF MELFORT, for the appointment of officers in his Army intended to invade England dated 20th June, 1692. (This Commission was found on a Beam in the Roof of Standish Hall in 1810).

A most interesting series of letters written to Sir Thomas Bootle during the Rebellion of 1745-1746, informing him of movements of the Rebel troops and referring to their entrance into Edinburgh, and the Battle of Preston Pans where Charles defeated Sir John Cope, and Culloden where the Rebels were completely outnumbered by the Duke of Cumberland's forces, and the cause of the Prince lost its last and only hope.

"Mr. Culcheth and I, proposed to have had the pleasure of waiting on you at Latham to-morrow, but as the country hereabouts seems to be in a sort of a ferment, and a talk prevailing as if there was a design of stealing horses, Mr. Culcheth is afraid itt may not be proper to stir abroad att this time." Etc.

"As Lord Bath was sitting down to write to you, he was call'd away, to assist at a Cabinet Council, which meets this evening, at the Duke of New Castle's Office, on the subject of the melancholy news brought by express this day from Scotland, of the Defeat, or rather Shamefull retreat of General Cope's Army.

"My Lord as therefore directed me to acquaint you (and he hopes you'l excuse his doing it this manner) that the particulars of this affair are not yet come to hand, but Sir John and Lord Loudon only waite in general, that last Saturday, by Daybreak, the Rebels attack'd him at Preston pans (a little place between Edinburgh and Dunbar, where he has two or three days before, landed his Troops from the North) and that on their first fire, Hamilton's and Gardner's Dragoons fell back on his foot, put them in disorder, and that in the meantime, the Highlanders advanc'd with their Broadswords, and oblig'd the whole to take flight. The loss, My Lord says, General Cope does not mention, but whatever number may be taken prisoners, thinks there are but few killed.

"When the Highlanders got possession of the Town of Edinburgh, they took 22 pieces of Cannon besides 1,500 Stand of Arms, this will add so much to their strength, that my Lord thinks, it may cause a great deal more blood to be spilt, than would otherwise have been, and they be longer before they are quell'd but does not believe, it can have any other bad consequences, because the three Battalions of Guards, and seven marching Regiments from Flanders, landed here yesterday, and are to be commanded by Generals Sigonier and Sulteney, and the six thousand Dutch, are all, by this time in England, and the first Division of those that Landed here, set out this morning for Lancashire, whither the second follows to-morrow." Etc. "... We have been in the utmost Confusion, however, since Genl. Cope's defeat, as we expect to be plunder'd very shortly by the Highlanders. If

If the Gen<sup>lls</sup> conduct in that engagement be represented at London as here he had better have shared the Fate of the most unfortunate of his Troops. Our Accts. from Scotld. to-day tell us that the Rebels have plundr'd very greedily since the Batle & a great many of them returned Home with the Booty. "I have only just time to acquaint you yt by an Express reced. here this Moment a Party of the Rebels consisting (as supposed) of 5000<sup>d</sup> floot & 1000<sup>d</sup> Horse were advanced within 4 miles of Carlisle at 10 o'clock this morning. Our Accts. say that this Party is to be joined by another Party wch. marched to Kelso & so proceed Southward. As these people march prodigiously quick they certainly may avoid Gen<sup>11</sup>. Wade's army if they please, but one of their Quarter Masters taken Prison(er) by our Light Horse yesterday says they'l not endeavour to avoid them. This Prisoner calls the Rebel's Army a very great one, but we hope he magnifys their Numbers in order to terrify us. As I shall be obliged to withdraw out of this Town this Morning I fear it will not be in my Power to write further on this subject till the Town be rid of these troublesome Visitors."

"As soon as I was assured that the Rebels had appeared before Carlisle I retired from Penrith & after adventures came hither this Morning where a Gentleman sent amongst ye Rebels is just arrived, and tells us, that last Saturday sev<sup>II</sup>. considerable Parties of the Rebels appeared before Carlisle in Order (as supposed) to view the Ground & on Sunday the Town was encompass'd by a very large Army, the young Pretender sent a Letter into the Town, demanding admittance & threatening in case of Refusal to take the Place by Storm, but the Garrison (wch. by the bye consists only of our Militia, 80 Invalids & the Towne people) instead of entering into any Treaty began a very brisk Fire from their Canon wch. continued all that Night. Young Pretender wherein it was resolved to leave the Place & march off in quest of Gen<sup>11</sup>. "Our present Confusion & distress are inexpressible, all our Gentlemen are either Prisoners or fled for Fear of being made so, our whole Country plunder'd at Discretion, & the King's Army tho' it has laid within 50 miles of the Enemy ever since they came into our Country, has not given them the least Interruption. There's no doubt but that Marshal Wade's acting for the best, but I am sorry to tell you that our common People construe by Caution an indifference for our Sufferings & from his behaviour, & the boldness of the Rebels, begin to have most dismal Apprehensions.

"I cannot yet get any probable Acct. of the Number of the Rebels, but the Chiefs have certainly pswaded all their Comon Soldiers that they are greatly superior to Marshal Wade & from their Proceedings it is more than probable that they really intend to fight him before they advance much further into England, but from the Marshal's not offering to stir from the Relief of our County, wch. I am sure is as loyal now as any in England, some people imagine yt. he does not intend to engage till Sigonier's Army comes up and before that time we shall certainly be stript of all we have."

"The Castle of Carlisle was surrender'd to the Rebels last Friday at 10 c'clock at Night to the great Mortification of all our Countrey. The Officers of the Militia were all taken Prisoners but discharged on delivering up their Arms & Horses & giving their Parole of Honr. never to bear Arms agt, the Pretender or any of his Family & the Private Men were to be released upon the same Terms, but sevll. of them are as yet detained Prisoners. All our Gentlemen were obliged to walk on Foot from Carlisle to Penrith. "My last acquainted you of the Rebells being at Macclesfield where they advanced to Leek and Ashburn, and from thence to Derby, at which place they have plunder'd (by receiving his Majesty's Duties, &c.) to the amount of 9 or 1000 pounds. From thence their advanced Guard went as far as Worsup Bridge near six miles behind Derby, where a party of the Duke's light Horse were aware of 'em; upon which they immediately alarm'd his Highness and he thereupon retreated with his whole Body as far as Lichfield. Coventry and Daventry, in order to get before the Rebells, and give 'em meeting about Northampton, as we are inform'd. The Rebells going with their advanc'd Guard as far as Worsup Bridge, we now have reason to imagine, with no other design than to alarm our Army, and oblige 'em to do what they did, in order to give themselves sufficient time to retreat which they have since done and have took quite the same Rout back, as they did forward, and are this Moment at Garstang, from whence they go to Lancaster, where they'll be this Night. They have done much more mischief in their return than as they went; for they have been guilty of almost all things that are base excepting Fire and Murder. The Duke of Kingston's Regiment Light Horse were last night at Wiggan, the Vanguard at Manchester, and the Duke with the Body at Macclesfield; so that most of the hopes we now have are, that Wade's army will be able to give 'em meeting before they get home, of which (I) shall give you the particulars as soon as they come to hand. The falling down (of) our Bridge has certainly saved us a visit from the Rebells, both backwards as well as forwards; and also has kept too our own Forces from coming to us likewise, which we account as a great piece of Providence." Etc.

SUCKLING (Sir John), 1609-1642.

"But when a writer cannot be a great dramatist, it is something to be a true lyric poet, and this distinction Suckling rightfully enjoys. There is no finer poem of its kind than the "Ballad upon a Wedding," while many of the shorter pieces of this writer will compare favourably with the lyrics of Herrick and Waller."— G. B. Smith.

PEACE OF NIMEGUEN.

2262 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED TO THE EARL OF DANBY.

4 pp., 4to. Paris, August, 1678.

A very fine letter of great historical interest concerning the negotiations for the Peace of Nimeguen which concluded the war between France, and Holland and Spain. England looked with alarm upon a French acquisition of Flanders and signed a treaty of alliance with Holland for resisting the exorbitant pretensions of France. In May, 1678, Louis XIV offered to give up Ghent, as well as Cam-brai, Charleroi, Oudenarde and Limburg, and a truce was concluded. However, in June, at Nimeguen, Louis signified that he could not give up the towns he had promised to evacuate until the demands of Sweden upon Brandenburg were estisfed satisfied

In this letter Sunderland gives an account of an interview with Louis XIV. in which he represented the impossibility of England's accepting a peace without total restitution of the towns in Flanders. Sunderland expresses an opinion that the French would agree to these terms and also refers to a private treaty by which in that case Charles II was to receive £600,000.

SWIFT (Jonathan), 1667-1745.

As a man of letters, Swift occupies a high place. As a satirist and a wit. his power was tremendous. In originality and strength he has no superior, and in irony no equal. Unscrupulous sarcasm and vituperation, crushing logic, knowledge of men and life, vehement expression, made him the most formidable pamphleteer that ever lived. Undoubtedly the greatest and most durable monument of his style and originality of conception, is "Gulliver's Travels," a universal satire.

" Jo. Swift Pr. 3s."

In his Remarks upon a book intituled "The Rights of the Christian Church," 1708, speaking of Viscount Molesworth's "An Account of Denmark," Swift says: "Molesworth's preface full of stale profligate topics. That Author wrote his book in spite to a nation, as this doth to religion, and both perhaps on poor personal piques."

Molesworth had been ambassador at Copenhagen, but was forced to resign on account of a dispute with the "Danish king." On his return to England in 1694, he published "An Account of Denmark," an attack on the Danish system of Government. Molesworth had been strongly imbued with the republican teachings of Algernon Sidney and his book affords ample proof of the influence. It's publication aroused much indignation, and a heated controversy ensued, in which Swift's friend, Dr. William King, took an active part.

The Danish envoy supplied materials to King, who received the thanks of the University of Copenhagen. Prince George of Denmark also obtained his appointment as secretary to the Princess Anne.

Having regard to the fact that Swift's friend was actively engaged in this controversy, it is obvious why Swift possessed a copy of the offending book and why he speaks so slightingly of it's author. His opinions of Molesworth seem to have changed in later years, for on the subject of Molesworth's Considerations for Promoting Agriculture, 1723, he writes: "An excellent discourse, full of most useful hints." Swift also addressed his sixth Drapier's letter to him: "A letter to the Right Honourable the Lord Viscount Molesworth, at His House at Brackdentown near Swords," 1724. SWIFTIANA—continued.

The signature of the famous Reformer and Biblical Translator Richard Taverner is excessively rare.

By the deed the two Taverners sell to Milo Forrest, of Morbourn, the tene-ment called Clerkes Howse, with lands, etc., in the parish of Stilton, Hunts, formerly belonging to the suppressed monastery of Busschemeade, Beds, on the same conditions as they hold it on by the King's Letters Patent under the Great Seal, dated 3 Sept. 37 Henry VIII (1545). The D.N.B. mentions several grants of land to Taverner about this date, but does not notice this particular grant.

The importance of Richard Taverner with regard to the history of the Eng-lish Bible and The Reformation is world famous. His translation of the Bible first appeared in 1539.

". . . In the meantime all that I shall trouble your Grace with at this time is that the Countess of Clanbrasil still persists in detaining the Grange—she hath in her house an independent Chaplaine which give great offence to many, and confirms the schismatical part of the neighbourhood in their pertinacy. I sent to her Ladyp. to send him to me; which yesterday she did; I found the fellow apt to take indifferent good words, but would doe nothing, & refused to subscribe to the articles of the Church. . . .

Fleetwood's mismanagement of the Drury Lane Theatre led to the serious dispute of 1743. The actors, headed by Garrick and Macklin, seceded; but, failing to get a license to play elsewhere, were forced to return to Drury Lane. They had agreed to stand or fall together, and Fleetwood's refusal to receive Macklin again, to whom he ascribed the revolt, led to a violent dispute between Garrick and Macklin. "TIMES CHANGE AND WE DOE ALTER IN THE SAME." 2 verses. With illustration of a baby in a cradle, and an old man on crutches.

At the end are the following two verses :-

"The longest day in time resignes to-night,

The Fourth Edition. Folio. Half morocco.

London, Printed for J. Tonson, at Shakespear's-Head overagainst Catherine-street in the Strand, 1713.

Though the above piece supported the tory policy of peace, Addison spoke in warm praise of this "noble performance" in the "Spectator" (No. 523); and Pope said that the poem, which went into many editions in the year of its first publication (1713), contained some "most poetical images and fine pieces of painting."

Small 8vo. Original calf.

Bruxelles, Chez Françoise Foppens, 1736.

This remarkable and scarce work is said to be the Autobiography of Frederick Prince of Wales, but was probably written by Ralph, his secretary. It was the cause of an animated controversy between Lord Macaulay and John Wilson Croker, carried on through the Edinburgh and Quarterly Review and Blackwood's Magazine, from which the rarity of the book was clearly made manifest, one of the parties authoritatively asserting that it was never published at all, and that the manuscript was given up to the Government; whilst the other, in quoting the title-page, did it so incorrectly as to create a doubt whether he had really seen the book. This controversy must make the work of considerable interest in literary history.

This play, published anonymously, was written by Thomas Tomkis, organist of the Chapel Royal, and acted before King James on the day above mentioned. In the prologue to the edition of 1634, Dryden absurdly charges Jonson with having borrowed the idea of his "Alchemist" from Tomkis, whereas the converse is more probable.

TOPLADY (Augustus M.), 1740-1778. Divine and Hymn Writer.

2341 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED TO MR. RYLAND.

1 page, small 4to.

Westminster, 16th September, 1769.

Concerning his translation of a Latin treatise by Jerom Zanchius on Calvinism, the publication of which led to his violent controversy with Wesley, and concluding with a reference to a quarrel between his correspondent and a certain Mr. Ribright.

How well his English Dress fits him, must be submitted to the judgment of those who can compare the original with my Translation.

"I called lately on Mr. G. Ribright. And tho' I am resolved never to interfere in Disputes altogether extraneous to myself, I cannot help observing, 1, That I am sorry when I see good people fall out in their way to Heaven; and, 2, That I am persuaded ye present Difference is chiefly founded on a mutual misapprehension; and that you two need only be together for 5 minutes in order to settle the whole of ye mighty quarrel."

". . . In case it should happen at any time that our Revenue should not hold out to pay the whole establishment, you shall take care that the same be not applyed to the payment of any Pensions, untill the rest of the Civil and Military List be first payed, and if afterwards the same will not hold out to the payment of all the Pensions you shall cause a proportionable abatement to be made out of each of them. . . .

"You are likewise to take care that our Forces be quartered by such fit Rules, as have been heretofore, observed, and so as may be with the least burden and inconvenience to Our subjects, and to that end you are to give strict charge that they be orderly in their Quarters, according to such exact discipline as you shall find fit to prescribe them, and that the officers be not allowed or permitted to detain or keep in their hands the soldier's pay after it shall be due to, and actually paid out for them, and that no officer be permitted to be absent from his command without a licence first obtained from you, and in case any of the officers of Our said Forces shall at any time misbehave himself, you shall either cause him to be tried in due manner, or else immediately to be suspended as you shall find fit, till you have represented the matter to Us, and received Our Pleasure upon it.

"Being informed that there have been frequent Duels and Quarrels between the Officers of Our Army there, we have thought fit, in order to prevent the same for the future, hereby to authorise and empower you, to cashier from time to time, all such officers, as shall send, receive or deliver any challenge or give any real affront, to any other, the same being made appear to you, And our Pleasure also is, that you declare to such Officer or Officers so offending that he or they shall never be employed in Our Service.

"You shall with what speed conveniently you may, cause a Survey and account to be taken of the present state of our Castles, Forts and Places, of our Magazins, and also of the Military Stores and Trayn of Artillery; and you are to report to us what Fortifications are fit to be kept up and which dismantled. And for the better supplying of our Stores from henceforth with powder, you shall endeavour to erect and set up the Art of making Salt petre within that our Kingdom." Etc.

TRADESCANT (John), d. 1637?.

Traveller, naturalist, and gardener to Queen Henrietta Maria. Tradescant was the first in England to make any considerable study of natural history. He followed in his father's footsteps in the establishment of the famous garden and museum, the first of its kind in England.

2345 MUSAEUM TRADESCANTIANUM: or, a Collection of Rarities. Preserved at South-Lambeth neer London.

Illustrated with two portraits by Hollar and also the very rare portrait of Mrs. Tradescant.

12mo. Contemporary binding of morocco.

London, Printed by John Grismond, 1656.

112 128

Tradescant published this little book as a Catalogue of his Natural History Museum. It comprises 179 pages, and contains lists of birds, quadrupeds, fish, shells, insects, minerals, fruits, war instruments, habits, utensils, coins, and medals, followed by a catalogue in English and Latin of the plants in the garden. "The wonderful variety and incongruous juxtaposition of the objects," says Sir William Flower, "make the catalogue very amusing reading." "Among 'whole birds' is the famous 'Dodar from the Island Mauritius; it is not able to flie, being so big.' The collection naturally became famous. Herrick alludes to "Tradescant's curious shells" in an epigram upon Madame Ursly in his "Hesperides"; and Thomas Flatman in some verses "To Mr. Sam Austin of Wadham Col. Oxon. on his most unintelligible Poems," writes:—

"Thus John Tradeskin starves our greedy eyes By boxing up his new found Rarities."

(Colophon) Basileae apud Jo. Frobenium, mense Februario. Anno M.D.XIX.

Mary, the only surviving child of Henry VIII and Catherine of Aragen; and afterwards Mary I. Queen of England, was born at Greenwich Palace in 1516. Before she left her cradle she had become a recognised factor in her father's political intrigues with his two continental rivals, Francis I. and Charles V. On 28 Feb., 1517-1518, a son was born to Francis, and Wolsey straightway opened negotiations for a marriage between Mary and the new-born heir of France. On 5 Oct., 1518, bridal ceremonies took place at Greenwich amid a splendour which suggested to the Venetian ambassador a comparison with the court of Cleopatra or Caligula. Cuthbert Tunstall, who was present at the betrothal, delivered the above oration in praise of matrimony.

TUSSER (Thomas), 1524?-1580.

"Tusser's versification, however, is curiously elaborate for the time when he wrote. Warton has pointed this out. Small 4to. Original half calf.

London, Printed for the Company of Stationers, 1630.

£10 105

The whole work, together with dedicatory epistles and an introduction, is in verse.

Southey, who appears to have been a careful student of Tusser, speaks of him as a "good, honest, homely, useful old rhymer." His verses are not without practical agricultural value, and he has even been styled "the British Varro." "There is nowhere to be found," says Sir Walter Scott, "excepting perhaps in Swift's 'Directions to Servants,' evidence of such rigid and minute attention to every department of domestic economy. Although neither beauty of description nor elegance of diction was Tusser's object, he has frequently attained, what better indeed suited his purpose, a sort of homely pointed and quaint expression, like that of the old English proverb, which the rhyme and the alliteration tend to fix on the memory of the reader." Many English proverbs can be traced back to Tusser.

The work concludes with "The Author's Life," in verse, and various other poetical pieces of a more general nature. This metrical biography does not appear in the first edition.

A few headlines slightly cut into.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. C.)

Of extreme rarity, copies having been publicly burnt at Dundee. James Tyrie, Jesuit theologian, was born in 1543, educated at St. Andrew's University, and with other young Scotsmen, went abroad with Edmund Hay, the latter acting as the companion and guide to the Jesuit Nicolas de Gouda, papal envoy to Mary Stuart in 1562. He became a Jesuit at Rome in 1563, afterwards returning to Paris. From theore he corresponded with his brother David with the ability of Paris. From thence he corresponded with his brother David, with the object of winning him back to the Roman Church. One of these controversial letters, deal-ing with the question of the visibility of the church, was submitted at the close of 1566 to John Knox in order that he might write a reply to it. This Knox did at once, but for some unexplained reason he set aside his manuscript until shortly before his death in 1572, when he printed it at St. Andrew's under the title "An Answer to a Letter of a Jesuit named Tyrie, be Johne Knox." The Jesuit immediately published the above rejoinder, the preface of which is " daitit at Paris the 8 of Merche, 1573," that is, after the death of Knox, and twelve months after that of David Tyrie, to whom the original letter was written. This publication caused considerable stir, several replies being written. publication caused considerable stir, several replies being written.

The Journey to Cadiz. The Island Journey. The Defeat at Turnhout. The Battle of Nieuport.

Sir Francis Vere was one of the most celebrated of the English generals during the reign of Elizabeth, and was the nephew of the Sixteenth Earl of Oxford. In 1589 he was placed in command of all Queen Elizabeth's soldiers in the Netherlands.

The first expedition described in this manuscript is that to Cadiz:

"On March 1st, 1596, Vere sailed for Middelburg with 1,000 of his veterans to join at Dover the Cadiz expedition under the joint command of Lord Howard of Effingham and Essex. Vere was lord-marshal, lieutenant-general, and one of the six members of Essex's council of war. He could not altogether escape the rivalries from which he was so happily exempt in the Low Countries, but he took the lead with an excellent steadying effect at the capture of the town of Cadiz, in which Essex himself impetuously led the stormers. The expedition, with Vere on the Rainbow, arrived safely at Plymouth, after the sack on 8 Aug., and Vere passed some of the succeeding winter at the court."

The second expedition is the famous "Island Voyage" in the Summer of 1597.

"He again served as a sea captain in the summer of 1597 in the Islands' voyage, and we are told that he applied himself in the interval to the study of 'sea-cases.' He sailed in the Mary Rose, master John Winter, on 9 July, 1597, and again, after putting back from stress of weather and a most severe 'bucketing,' on 17 Aug.; like his comrades, he had little opportunity by adding to his reputation by this injudiciously managed sea raid. On his return he defended the conduct of his general before Elizabeth. Nevertheless, the seeds of dissension seem to have been sewn during the voyage between Vere and Essex, who had hitherto been staunch friends and correspondents."

"Defeat at Turnhout."

This was the famous expedition in which Sir Walter Raleigh took part. He was also in the Cadiz expedition.

"Off Cape Finisterre the fleet was for the second time scattered by bad weather, and only by slow degrees was it collected at Flores, in the Azores, where it was determined to lie in wait for the Spanish treasure ships from the West Indies.

"In the autumn of 1597 Vere was once more in Holland, and at The Hague was in frequent intercourse with Barneveldt: it was mainly through the latter's influence in the States-General that at Vere's instance a more aggressive policy was decided upon in December against the formidable Spanish infantry. A force was accordingly secretly collected by Prince Maurice at Gertruydenburg to attack the advanced guard of the Spaniards under the Count of Varras at Turnhout. The English contingent, forming nearly a third of the little army of between five thousand and six thousand cavalry and infantry, was under the command of Vere and Sir Robert Sidney. A complete surprise was effected, and Varras had barely time to effect a retreat in the small hours of the morning of 24 Jan., 1598, before Maurice occupied the town. An immediate pursuit was counselled by Vere, who, with a small force of cavalry, succeeded in effectually cutting off the infantry of the enemy's rear-guard and securing six hundred prisoners. His action was warmly applauded, and Elizabeth wrote herself to signify her 'good liking' of Vere's services."

"The Battle of Nieuport."

"In the Summer of 1600 the States-General, upon the advice of Barneveldt, resolved to carry the war into the enemy's country by landing a powerful force on the Flemish coast and laying siege to Nieuport, a few miles south-west of Ostend. The Dutch army effected a landing in safety during the last days of June, and on 1 July arrived the news that the Archduke Albert was approaching with a large force from Ghent with a view of preventing their further advance. To Vere was entrusted the command of the allied vanguard, consisting of 4,350 men, of whom sixteen hundred were English, and when it was decided to give battle in the dunes, on 2 July, he planted his vanguard in an advantageous position on two sand hills and a ridge about two miles north of Nieuport. The bulk of the cavalry was drawn up on the seashore, and the reserves, under Prince Maurice, about three hundred yards south of Vere's forlorn hope on the 'East Hill.' The battle began about 2 p.m. with a desperate struggle at push of pike between the 250 English posted on this hill and the pick of the Spanish infantry. Vere designates this portion of the fight as the 'Bloody Morsel.' his men being gradually overborne by overwhelming numbers. Messenger after Messenger was despatched by Prince Maurice, but brought no reinforcement ; the commander rode in person down into the hollow to cheer his men, and when retreat became imperative, after receiving a musketshot in the thigh and another in the leg, he was with difficulty extricated from his dead horse. His wounds compelled his retirement from the field, but Prince Maurice at this juncture rallied the broken vanguard and advanced with his main force to the West Hill, where he made a determined stand. Furious charges by Sir Horace Vere, Ogle, Fairfax, and Sir Edward Cecil destroyed the cohesion of the Spanish tercios, and about four o'clock they broke and fled. The archduke made his escape to Bruges. Zapena and the admiral of Aragon were taken prisoners, while about a third of the Spanish army were put hors

Sir Francis Vere's "Commentaries" were edited by William Dillingham, and printed in 1657, from a manuscript which he found in the library of a friend.

This is another contemporary manuscript which was evidently in the Oxford family.

Vere spent his leisure in inditing his straightforward and soldierlike "Com-mentaries." These notes were jotted down for private circulation only, but in 1657 they were published at Cambridge by Dr. William Dillingham, who had accidentally lighted upon the manuscript.

The above copy is of especial interest, being presented by the editor to Major-General Philip Skippon, one of the most successful of the Parliamentary Generals during the Civil War, and from whose Manuscript this printed version of Vere's "Commentaries" was indirectly taken. The presentation inscription on the flyleaf is as follows :---

Shortly before Jaggard undertook the printing of the First Folio of Shake-speare, Vincent the Herald and Jaggard the printer had been jointly the object of a violent and slanderous attack by a perverse-tempered personage named Ralph Brooke. This Brooke was one of Vincent's colleagues at the College of Arms. He could never forgive the bestowal, some years earlier, of an office superior to his own could hever lorgive the bestowal, some years earlier, of an office superior to his own on an outsider, a stranger to the college, William Camden, the distinguished writer on history and archæology. From that time forth he made it the business of his life to attack in print Camden and his friends, of whom Vincent was one. He raised objection to the grant of arms to Shakespeare, for which Camden would seem to have been mainly responsible. His next step was to compile and publish a Catalogue of the Nobility, a sort of controversial Peerage, in which he claimed, with abusive vigour, to expose Camden and his friends' ignorance of the genealogies of the great families of England. Brooke's book was printed in 1619 by Laggard of the great families of England. Brooke's book was printed in 1619 by Jaggard. The Camden faction discovered in it abundance of discreditable errors. The errors were due, Brooke replied, in a corrected edition of 1622, to the incompetence of his printer, Jaggard. Then Augustine Vincent, Camden's friend, the first owner of the Sibthorp copy of the First Folio, set himself to prove Brooke's pretentious incompetence and malignity. Jaggard, who resented Brooke's aspersions on his professional skill in typography, not only printed and published Vincent's Dis-covery of Brooke's Errors, as Vincent entitled his reply, but inserted in Vincent's volume a personal vindication of his printing-office from Brooke's strictures. Vincent's denunciation of Brooke, to which Jaggard contributed his caustic pre-face, was published in 1622, and gave Brooke his quietus. Incidentally, Jaggard and his ally Vincent avenged Brooke's criticism of the great dramatist's right to the arms that the Heralds' College, at the instance of Vincent's friend Camden, had granted him long before. Jaggard, next year, engaged in a great enterprise of the Shakespeare First Folio, and he presented his friend and fellow-victor in the recent strife with an early copy of the volume. The Letter on Tragedy deals almost entirely with Shakespeare, and Voltaire concludes with part of the celebrated Soliloquy in Hamlet, in English, and gives his version of it in French. The quotation and the French translation occupy 4 pp., and the whole Letter on Tragedy occupies 15 pp. In the Preface, Voltaire remarks :— "These Letters were not design'd for the Public. They are the Result of the Author's Complacency and Friendship for Mr. Thiriot, who had desir'd him, during his Stay in England, to favour him with such Remarks as he might make on the Manners and Customs of the British Nation. 'Tis well known that in a Corre-spondence of this kind, the most just and regular Writer does not propose to observe any Method. Mr. de Voltaire in all Probability follow'd no other Rule in the Choice of his Subjects than his Particular Taste, or perhaps the Queries of his Friend. Be this as it will, 'twas thought that the most natural Order in which they could be plac'd would be that of their respective Dates. Several Particulars which are mention'd in them make it necessary for us to observe, that they were written between the latter End of 1728, and about 1731. The only Thing that can be regretted on this Occasion is, that so agreeable a Correspondence should have continued no longer." Etc. A perfect copy, with the woodcuts COLOURED BY A CONTEMPORARY HAND. This famous book of the "Lives of the Saints" was compiled by Jacobus de Voragine. Archbishop of Genoa, who composed it under the title of "Legenda Aurea," in the Latin tongue, about the year 1290. In the subsequent century it was translated into French by Jean de Vignay, and from this French translation it was converted into our own language by the indefatigable Caxton. The work is rightly called by Warton " an inexhaustible repository of religious fable"; and such was the almost sacred light in which it was considered abroad, for upwards of two centuries, that the learned Claude Espence, in the year 1555, was obliged to make a public recantation for calling it Legenda Ferrea!

In this Edition, printed by Wynkyn de Worde, are many very curious, amusing and extraordinary accounts, such as :---

Of Shakespearian interest, mentioning the death of Lucrece : "Lucrecia sheathed her knife in her own bowels to renown her Chastity."

This curious volume may be regarded as the forerunner of Burton's "Anatomy of Melancholy."

Dr. Farmer, in his "Essay on the Learning of Shakespeare," credited "T. Wombwell" with the authorship of Walkington's treatise on the "Optick Glasse," and referred to a passage (traceable to Scaliger) by way of illustrating Shylock's remarks on irrational antipathies.

Paris, 19th November, 1765.

"You are very kind to inquire so particularly after my gout. I wish I may not be too circumstantial in my answer; but you have tapp'd a dangerous topic: I can talk gout by the hour. It is my great mortification, and has disappointed all the hopes that I had built on temperance and hardness. I have resisted like a hermit, and exposed myself to all weathers and seasons like a smugler; and in vain.

"As to the Ministry, I know and care very little about them. I told you and told them long ago, that if ever a change happened, I would bid adieu to politics for ever. Do me the justice to allow that I have not altered with the Times. I was so impatient to put this resolution in execution that I hurried out of England, before I was sufficiently recovered. . . . The charms of Paris have not the least attraction for me, nor would keep me here an hour on their own account. For the city itself, I can not conceive where my eyes were: It is the ugliest, beastly town in the Universe. I have not seen a mouthfull of verdure out of it, nor have they anything green but their treillage and window shutters. Trees cut into fire shovels and struck into pedestals of chalk, compose their country. Their boasted knowledge of Society is reduced to talking of their suppers, and every malady they have about them, or know of. The Dauphin is at the point of death; every morning the Physicians frame an account of him, and happy is he or she, who can produce a copy of this lie, called a bulletin. . . Several of the women are agreeable, and some of the men; but the latter in general vain and ignorant. The scavants, I beg their pardons, the philosophes, are insupportable, superficial, loverbearing and fanatic; they preach incessantly, and their avowed doctrine is Atheism; you would not believe how openly—Don't wonder therefore, if I should return a Jesuit, Voltaire himself does not satisfy them : one of the lady-devotes said of him; il est bigot; c'est un Déiste." #### ON SIR CHRISTOPHER WREN'S GENIUS.

2409 AUTOGRAPH LETTER SIGNED TO CHRISTOPHER WREN, grandson of the great architect.

4 pp., 4to.

Strawberry Hill, 9th August, 1764.

A long letter on the genius of Sir Christopher Wren; mentioning Shakespeare and Inigo Jones in connection therewith.

". . . With regard to that great man, your grandfather. If I had not supposed, Sir, that you had exhausted the subject in that agreeable and instruct-ive work the Parentalia, I should have taken the liberty of consulting you on the life of Sr. Christopher Wren. I have already apologised in my Anecdotes for attempting an account of him as I could add nothing to what had already been written on his article. . . I have said in my book, where I certainly did not mean to flatter him or you, that he was a genius. I have not said, nor can say consistently with Truth, that he was faultless. Methinks even the few objections I have made to him confirm the Encomiums—a general panegyric al-ways passes for such, and does no honour to the person extolled. . . . My criticisms on Sr. Christopher are given, and could not be given otherwise, but as matters of opinion. . . The sole question on the article of Taste will be whether Sr. Christopher or I knew best what Taste is. . . "I will not defend myself on the distinction I might fairly make, that Sr. With regard to that great man, your grandfather. If I had not

"I will not defend myself on the distinction I might fairly make, that Sr. "I will not defend myself on the distinction I might fairly make, that Sr. Christopher Wren was a genius in some respects, and wanted taste in others, which yet I presume is all I have said in effect but it seems to me as if there was a sobriety in taste which wou'd be a shackle or a genius. That there has been now and then a genius (for a Genius itself is a curiosity) without taste, and often taste without genius, is evident from example. One of the greatest genius's that ever existed, Shakespeare, undoubtedly wanted taste. In the very class, which is the subject of this letter. I mean architecture Inico Jones seems to me that ever existed, Shakespeare, undoubtedly wanted taste. In the very class, which is the subject of this letter, I mean, architecture, Inigo Jones seems to me to have had more taste than genius. A genius is original, invents taste, selects. perhaps copies with judgment. If I am right, have I wronged your Ancestor? "Forgive me if I say that to prove Sr. Christopher had a taste for erecting palaces equal to what he had for Churches, some buildings ought to be specified in which he had exerted it. . . The truth is, the fault was in the age, and to that I have really imputed it, not to your grandfather. I shall, however, Sr., on your information, do justice to Sr. Christopher, as I should be glad to do if I was authorised in what I have heard, that he gave two other designs for (Continued over)

Giving a long and detailed description of the French people, and his presentation at the French court.

". . . I am, as you certainly conclude, much more amused than pleased. At a certain time of life, sights and new objects may entertain one, but new people cannot find any place in one's affection. New faces with some name or other belonging to them, catch my attention for a minute. I can not say many preserve it. Five or Six of the Women that I have seen already, are very sens-ible. The men are in general much inferior, and not even agreeable. They sent us their best, I believe, at first, the Duc de Nivernois. Their authors, who, by the way are everywhere, are worse than their own writings, which I don't mean as a compliment to either. In general, the style of conversation is solemn, pedantic, and seldom animated, but by a dispute. I was expressing my aversion to disputes : Mr. Hume, who very gratefully admires the tone of Paris, having never known any other tone, said with great surprize, why what do you like, if you hate both disputes & whisk?

"You percieve that I have been presented. The Queen took great notice of me; none of the rest said a syllable. You are let into the King's bed-chamber just as he has put on his shirt; he dresses and talks good humouredly to a few, glares at strangers, goes to Mass, to dinner & a hunting. The good old Queen, who is like Lady Primrose in the face, Queen Caroline in the immensity of her cap, is at her dressing-table attended by two or three old ladies." Etc.

In 1633 Nathaniel Ward had his living taken away by Archbishop Laud, on account of his puritan views, and in 1634 he emigrated to Massachusetts, and settled as Minister at a place called Agawam, soon afterwards renamed Ipswich. He joined with the Rev. John Cotton of Boston in framing the first code of laws established in New England, which were passed by the General Court in 1641 under the title of "Body of Liberties." Six hundred acres of land granted him at Haverhill he afterwards gave to the University of Cambridge, Mass. During his stay in New England he took an important part in its history. Early in 1645 Ward began writing "The Simple Cobler of Aggavvam," a prose satire of the time, which he sent to England, and which immediately became popular, and will always associate his name with early American literature. He returned to England in 1646.

Ward was famous for his Wit, also for his judgment and gravity, but a becoming gentleness scarcely seems to have been one of his strong points. It was all his business will pass through your hands. I recommend him to you very particularly as a person of as great a merit as we have in the province and also because he will only act for the good of the Religion. He has stayed at the college in Brussels in secular habit; and he is going to Paris in the same at the request of H.R.H. I do not know if the superiors will think good for him to continue at Paris in that dress. I recommend it very humbly to your Reverence. The Rules are opposed to it, I admit, but there is a spirit, as opposed to the letter, which sometimes interprets laws in circumstances which they cannot provide for. ### Havre, 16th July, 1563.

A very fine military letter written from Havre, where he was besieged, and which he was forced through privations and sickness to evacuate a few days later (29 July). He returned to England with the remnant of his army who spread through London the plague that had devastated Havre. On his return there was some talk of his marriage to Mary Queen of Scots. The letter concerns the surrender of a prisoner, M. de Bassonpiere (his cor-respondent's nephew) who had been released on parole, further complaining of

As for yourself in particular I am your friend quite otherwise, always serving my duty, for the rest I again pray you to fulfil your promise and send me as above, for this is the last time I shall write to you on this subject. . . . "Sir, you have written me many times to make war loyally which I have always done, but I find that you do otherwise, for the other day at our last skirmish when your men had taken some 5 or 6 of mine they led them 50 or 60 paces and then shot them in the sight of 5 or 6 of my captains; it was too cruel; if the same should be done to you, do not blame me. As to the French they make use of brave words, but I hope shortly to answer them as fitting."

London, Thomas Harper, 1631.

Complete with the rare Index (7 leaves), which is generally missing. "To the historian and biographer the book is invaluable." (D.N.B.). It contains an interesting Shakespeare allusion:— "One lately having taken view of the Sepulchres of so many Kings, Nobles, and other eminent persons interred in this Abbey of Westminster, made these rimes following, which he called :— "" A Memento for Mortalite "

"' 'A Memento for Mortalite.'

Amid these mazes of the dead.

And these truly understood, More shall coole and quench the blood,

More shall coole and quench the block, And her many sports a day, And her nightly wanton play. Bid her paint till day of doome, To this fauour she must come.' "-Pages 492-493. (The last two lines are from Hamlet's: "Now get you to my lady's chamber, and tell her, let her paint an inch thick, to this favour she must come.") ### JOHN AND CHARLES WESLEY AND WESLEYAN METHODISM.

UNCUT COPY.

2444 WESLEY (Charles). AN ELEGY ON THE DEATH OF ROBERT JONES, Esq; of Fonmon-Castle in Glamorganshire, South Wales. By Charles Wesley, M.A. Student of Christ-Church, Oxford.

> FIRST EDITION. Small 4to, edges entirely uncut. Bristol, Printed by Felix Farley, 1742.

2445 ——— HYMNS FOR THE USE OF FAMILIES, and on Various Occasions.

> FIRST EDITION. Small 8vo. Original calf. Bristol, Printed by William Pine, 1767. £,5 158

There are 166 hymns in this collection: all following the 44th are distinguished as "Occasional Hymns," to many of which titles are prefixed.

"Mr. Charles Wesley's Family Hymn-Book consists to a great extent of hymns which he had written under circumstances of peculiar excitement, affecting him as a husband, a father, and the head of a family. They are all the genuine effusions of his heart—not one of the hymns containing a stanza that is either trite or mean. The most common concerns of life are dignified by Christian sentiment, expressed in language of almost unrivalled force and beauty."

2446 ——— SHORT HYMNS ON SELECT PASSAGES OF THE HOLY Scriptures.

> FIRST EDITION. 2 vols., small 8vo. Original calf. Bristol, Printed by E. Farley, in Small-Street, 1762. £4 105

Vol. I contains 1,160 hymns, and Vol. II, 870.

"In more than one instance in the course of these volumes the poet has for the moment superseded the theologian. It is, therefore, not surprising that, notwithstanding his intense admiration of his brother, John Wesley found it needful to caution some of the Society against being 'hurt by what they might find in these volumes contrary to the doctrine they had received.""

JOHN AND CHARLES WESLEY AND WESLEYAN METHODISM-continued.

WESLEY (John). A CONCISE ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY, from the 2447 Birth of Christ, to the Beginning of the present Century.

FIRST EDITION. 4 vols., small 8vo. Original calf.

London, Printed by J. Paramore, 1781.

1.3 35

£.4 IOS

The entire work is reduced to a compass of less than four volumes. Each century is dealt with separately, and in two parts, the External and the Internal History. The whole is divided into four books, embracing four remarkable periods; the first, from the rise of the Church to the time of Constantine the Great; the second to the reign of Charlemagne; the third to the time of Luther; and the fourth to the Eighteenth Century.

Appended is "A Short History of the People called Methodists," extending to 113 pp. It is for the most part extracted from Wesley's "Journals."

——— A CONCISE HISTORY OF ENGLAND, from the Earliest 2448 Times, to the Death of George II.

FIRST EDITION. 4 vols., small 8vo. Original calf. London, Printed by Robert Hawes, N.D. (1776). 1.3 155

A clear and concise record. Wesley has made free use of Goldsmith, Rapin, and Smollett. He maintains that he has omitted ten thousand dull passages "which could be inserted for no other purpose than to enlarge the volume, and consequently the price; to oblige the bookseller rather than the reader." "Let there be at least one Christian History of what is still called (tho' by a strong figure) a Christian country."

Interleaved throughout, with very numerous MS. notes in the hand of T. Cook. Twenty-three editions were published during Wesley's life time, each revised Twenty-three editions were published during Wesley's life time, each revised and corrected by the Author. This book, which Wesley affirms, "comes nearest an Universal Medicine of any known in the World," has excited the mirth of many persons by the curious nature of some of the remedies recommended. It consists of 725 receipts for 243 of the various ills to which the flesh is heir. Whatever may be said of the remedies, the advices on cold-bathing and the witty and sagacious preface deserve to be read and pondered, especially the "few plain, easy Rules" on the pre-servation of the health, which are chiefly transcribed from Dr. Cheyne.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Full red morocco gilt, g. e. London, Printed by T. Bensley, 1789.

"That White's 'Selborne' is the only work on natural history which has attained the rank of an English classic is admitted by general acclamation, as well as by competent critics, and numerous have been the attempts to discover the secret of its ever-growing reputation. . . White was a prince among observers, nearly always observing the right thing in the right way, and placing before us in a few words the living being he observed. Of the hundreds of statements recorded by White, the number which are undoubtedly mistaken may be counted almost on the fingers of one hand."

2477 LETTER SIGNED WITH AUTOGRAPH POSTSCRIPT TO THE SAME.

1 page, folio.

York, 3rd June, 1639.

Graphically describing King Charles I's invasion of Scotland in 1639.

Upon Monday last the King himself went with the army to a place called the Bircks, and westwards two miles up the river from Berwick, and there left it where it yet remains. The army was in some want of provisions in the march, which made them do much harm in the Country, this want was occasioned by the negligence or ignorance of those who were to make it, but they are now well supplied. The King himself came into Berwick upon Monday night last and lodgeth in the palace, and that same night Sir Simon Harcourt landed, and his regiment being 3,000 landed the next morning at the Holy Island.

"It is not yet known that the Scotts are drawen into any army, but they are scattered upp and downe the Country in small companies, and are (without doubt) a multitude of people. The kind's forces are not yet above fourteene thousand. Since my coming from Barwick the newes are that the king hath given you to a treaty of peace between six English Lords and six Scotch Lords Covenanters. . . . I know not what effect it hath produceth." Etc.

Hunter, in his notes on Othello, remarks :-

"There are several passages in Wilson's 'Rhetorique' which remind one of Shakespeare, so many that it might be affirmed to be a book which Shakespeare at some period of his life not only read but studied."

Drake ("Shakespeare and his Times ") remarks that Shakespeare perused this volume with avidity, and adds: "That he had not only read, but availed himself professionally of Wilson's 'Rhetoric,' will be evident, we think, from a passage quoted by Mr. Chalmers, from this critic, in support of a similar opinion. Wilson has mentioned Timon of Athens in such a manner as might lead Shakespeare to select this misanthrope for dramatic exhibition; but the very character and language of Dogberry seem to be anticipated in the following sketch: 'Another good fellow of the countrey, being an officer and mayor of a toune, and desirous to speak like a fine learned man, having just occasion to rebuke a runnegate fellowe, said in this wise in a great haste: 'Thou yngraine and vocation knave, if I take thee any more within the circumcision of my dampnation: I will so corrupt thee, that all other vacation knaves shall take ilsample by thee. "The Arte of Rhetorique" is described by Warton as "the first system of criticism in our language." The Author did good service by his denunciation of pedantry, "strange inkhorn terms," and the use of French and "Italianated" idiom, which "counterfeited the kinges Englishe," and in this way he stimulated the development of English prose—it has been maintained that Shakespeare himself owes something, including hints for Dogberry's character, to a study of Wilson's book.—(See Drake, "Shakespeare and his Time.") Describing the proceedings of Apollo's Court at the Trial of the false poets of the day, Tasso is despatched :---

"With all his Cavalry, to scoure the borders Of high Parnassus, and low Helicon, And to bring in alive, or dead, each one That had discovered been, or to defile The Presse with Pamphlets scarrilous, and vile, Or to have traduc'd with malignant spirits, Persons of honorable worth, and merits."

Shakespeare is mentioned as one of the Jurors. Sir Francis Bacon is Chancellor of Parnassus; Sir Philip Sidney, High Constable of Par; Ben Johnson, Keeper of the Trophonian Denne; John Taylour, Cryer of the Court; Edmund Spencer, Clerk to the Assises, etc.

> "John Taylour, then the Courts shrill Chanticleere, Did summon all the Jurors to appeare: Hee had the Cryers place: an office fit, For him that hath a better voyce, then wit. Hee, who was called first in all the list, George Withers hight, entitled Satyrist; Then Cary, May, and Davenant were call'd forth; Renowned Poets all, and men of worth, If Wit may passe for worth, Then Sylvester, Sands, Drayton, Beaumont, Fletcher, Massinger, Shakespeare, and Heywood, Poets good and free; Dramatick writers all, but the first three: These were empanell'd all, and being sworne A just and perfect verdict to returne." Etc.

The "Spye" refuses to be tried by "Histriomicke Poets :--

"These mercinary pen-men of the stage, That foster the grand vises of this age, Should in this Common-wealth no office beare, But rather, stand with us Delinquents here: Shakespear's a Mimicke, Massinger a Sot, Heywood for Aganippe takes a plot: Beaumont and Fletcher make one poet, they Single, dare not adventure on a Play." Etc., etc.

Sir Edwin During-Lawrence in his Book "Bacon is Shakespeare," devotes considerable space to the above work, maintaining that it proves Bacon as the greatest of Poets and Shakespeare as a mere non-entity. He writes :---

"In 1645 there was published 'The Great Assises holden in Parnassus by Apollo and his assessours.' . . . This work is anonymous but is usually ascribed to George Withers and in it Bacon as Lord Verulan is placed first and designated 'Chancellor of Parnassus' that is 'Greatest of Poets.'"

"A little examination will teach us that the jurors are really the same persons as the malefactors and that, on the reverse of the title, we ought to read right across the page as if the dividing line did not exist."

"William Shakespeare is 'The Writer of weekely accounts.' This exactly describes him, for the only literature for which he was responsible was the accounts sent out by his clerk or attorney."

"This clear statement that the actor Shakespeare was not a poet but only a tradesman who sent out his 'weekly accounts,' is, I think, here for the first time pointed out. It seems very difficult to conceive of a much higher Testimony to Bacon's pre-eminence in poetry than the fact that he is placed as 'Chancellor of Parnassus' under Apollo. But a still higher position is accorded to him when it is suggested that Apollo feared that he himself should lose his crown which would be placed on Bacon's head." Etc.

plants about him, & thinke ye Calfe tastes as well out of his owne slaughterhouse, as ye Butchers, & it may be if as cleanelie drest." "In giveing a due wellcome to all whom you admitt to yr Table, it will not be amisse to recommend of this dish, or that glasse of wine to ye severall Guests, and when you drinke to any stranger to lett it be ye health of his absent friende, at Patron. For by yt you oblige him, that's absent, who will most certainly be told, yt you dranke his health, & you grace ye person who sits by you, because you take notice of his relation or Friendship to soe worthy a person, & you give ye company occasion to respect him, if not for his owne, yet for his Friend, or Patron's sake."

"They who affect ye Character of being civil, will avoid giving occasion to disputes att board, for tis ten to one, none of ye Drs of ye Chaire will be there to moderate, & tis not proper for you to bestowe ye faith on one, because another is out of yr minde." Etc.

Instructions as to trading, etc. :---

" In any bargaine you make, where you finde, ye fraud & dishonesty of ye Mechanisk growing upon you, never say in  $y^{r}$  minde, tis but ye other crowne, or ye other twenty shillings, or ye other five pounds; For yt humour will make every thing deare; & when ye seller shall finde you are in love with his Ware, you shall buy yr owne affection as well as his commodity; & finde ye cheate soe propagated, that one Mechanisk to justify his dealings with you in this sorte, will finde out others with whom you deale, & so ye Prolick of being cheated must goe round to you from them all."

"You neede not choose ye proudest of ye Art to deale with, for then you must pay for his telling you y<sup>t</sup> ye thing, such a Duke, such a Lord, or such a Privy Counsellor had of ye same; & you must then either refuse ye bargaine, or be obliged to be cheated in complement to ye greate man, whom he names to you, & will be apt ye next time, he sees him, to tell him how meane, & huckster-like you dealt with him." Etc.

"You will take heede of calling y<sup>t</sup> Bounty & generosity in y<sup>r</sup> dealing, w<sup>ch</sup> he with whom you deale will be apt to call folly & indiscretion in you, & knowing yt he putts ve cheate upon you & enhances his price by making pay for yr Titles & Quality in wt you buy from him."

Words of wisdom as to the married state :-

"As you are come now into a married Estate, you must consider how farre the Duty of the 5th Comandm<sup>t</sup> is now enlarged upon you. You have now new relations to whom you owe the respect of a Son, of a Brother, of a & without any reflections on what is past, consider w<sup>t</sup> becomes you now to doe, tis not ye least meritt y<sup>t</sup> they stand soe neare allied to soe discrete a Lady as your wife, & remember you must love her in lesse pleasant objects, then herselfe." Nephew, of a Cosin, &c., all whom you must in their severall stations regard,

" If there arise any divisions or Feuds in ye Family remember Beati-Pacifici tis meane to open ye breach of y<sup>r</sup> owne advantage; y<sup>t</sup> therefore in every appearance of it must be avoided, because nothing will give colour to an unworthy Action."

"Remember in a wife, you choose for yr Life, & therefore every miscarriage here is not single, every little disgust laies ye foundation of a lasting Quarrell, & tis most irreconcilable, when betweene those yt did love best."

"A wise man will never make his Wife's Beauty or good Parts his theme. . . . A woman may more safely commend ye husband, because t'will be accounted her discretion." Etc.

WORCESTER (Thomas Percy, Earl of), 1344-1403.

Deserted Richard II and joined his brother Northumberland's rebellion against Henry IV, captured at Shrewsbury and beheaded 1403. One of the characters in Shakespeare's "Richard II."

2518 DOCUMENT SIGNED (ON VELLUM).

1/2-page, small oblong folio. 23rd March, 1380.

SIGNED ALSO BY WILLIAM LATIMER, 4TH BARON.

With remains of seal.

Two excessively rare signatures. The document acknowledges the receipt of the sum of 13,342 francs from the Duke of Brittany.

(Trans.):—" We, William Latimer and Thomas de Percy, acknowledge to have had and received from our very dear and much honoured lord, the Duke of Brittany, Earl of Montfort and Richmond, by the hand of Alein de Maigne, his Receiver General in Brittany, the sum of thirteen thousand three hundred and forty two francs in gold, and four thousand francs in currency." Etc.

Worcester was also a great friend of Geoffrey Chaucer, and went on a mission to Flanders with him in 1377.

Latimer was in great favour with John of Gaunt; in 1376 he was impeached by the Commons as a bad adviser (this being the earliest record of the impeachment of a minister of the crown by the Commons), the attempt to bring him to justice, however, failed, and he afterwards became governor of Calais.

WORCESTER (Marquis of).

2519 A CENTURY OF THE NAMES AND SCANTLINGS OF SUCH INVENTIONS, as at present I can call to mind to have tried and perfected which (my former notes being lost) I have, at the instance of a powerful Friend, endeavoured now in the year 1655 to set these down in such a way as may sufficiently instruct me to put any of them in practice.

FIRST EDITION. 12mo. Original calf (rebacked).

London, 1663.

A complete copy of the very rare first edition. Most copies end on page 72. This has the supplement of 34 pp. having to do with his invention of a "Watercommanding Engine."

WORSLEY (Edward), Jesuit, 1605-1676.

12mo. Calf.

London, Printed by T. R. and N. T. for Allen Banks, 1674.

£.5 5s

483

In the Preface there is an interesting reference to Ben Jonson :---

"Our Modern Dramatiques present us with greater Idaea's both of Vice and Vertue: Yet Ben. Johnson thought a considerable part of Seneca's Thyestes not improper for the English Stage in his time, when he took most of Sylla's Ghost from hence, and so well approved of this way of Introduction, that he served himself of it not only in his Tragedy of Cateline, but also in his Devill's an Ass, a Comedy, where he makes a Pug his Home d'Intrigue."

WYCHERLEY (William), 1640?-1715.

"A Gentleman, whom I may boldly reckon amongst the Poets of the First Rank."—Gerard Langbaine.

2524 THE COUNTRY-WIFE, a Comedy, Acted at the Theatre-Royal.

Small 4to. Calf.

London, Printed for T. Dring, 1688.

Davies observes that in this play is to be found a more genuine representation of the loose manners, obscene language, and dissolute practices, of Charles the Second's reign, than in any other drama known. It is chiefly taken from Molière's "Ecole des Femmes."

2525 LOVE IN A WOOD, or, St. James's Park. A Comedy, as it is Acted at the Theatre Royal, by his Majesties Servants.

2528 THE TRUE USE OF ARMORIE, Shewed by Historie, and plainly proved by example: the necessitie thereof also discoured: with the manner of differings in ancient time, the lawfulness of honorable funerals and moniments: with other matters of Antiquitie, incident to the aduancing of Banners, Ensignes, and marks of noblenesse and cheualrie.

> FIRST EDITION. Small 4to. Fine copy in the original calf. London, I. Jackson for Gabriell Cawood, 1592. £16 16s

A very rare autograph letter.

"This little work embodies some valuable historical research in regard to the early origin and significance of heraldic emblems. It was dedicated 'To the Right honourable the Lords and others, the professors of martiall discipline.' The 'True Use of Armorie ' only fills 28 pages, but to it Wyrley appended two historical Poems of his own composition; they were in seven-line stanzas, and were entitled respectively 'Lord Chandos ' and ' Capitall de Buz.' " (D.N.B.)

The title-page is within an ornamental border, this ornamentation being coloured. "The True Use of Arms" is adorned with numerous Coats of Arms, some of which have been emblazoned.
