- 210 KEATE (George). An Account of the Pelew Islands, situated in the Western Part of the Pacific Ocean. Composed from the Journals and Communications of Captain Henry Wilson, and some of his Officers, who, in August, 1783, were there shipwrecked in the Antelope, a Packet belonging to the Honourable East India Company.

Fine stipple-engraved portrait, and 16 engraved plates and maps.

ORIGINAL EDITION. 4to, contemporary half calf.

London, G. Nicol, 1788.

£2 5s

In August, 1783, the "Antelope," commanded by Henry Wilson, of the East India Company's Marine, ran on a rock near one of the Pelew Islands and became a wreck. The group had been sighted by the Spaniards and others, but had never been explored. This was done by Captain Wilson, who, with his crew, had escaped safely to shore. He and his men were very well treated by the natives, and managed to build a small vessel from the wreck, in which they were able to reach Macao, taking with them Prince Le Boo, or Libu, one of the king's sons. Wilson brought him to England, where he was lionized and created a very good impression; he, however, unfortunately died of small-pox.

La Hontan was born in Gascony in 1666 and went out to Canada when he was 16.

He began his career as a private soldier, but afterwards commanded various forts in the interior, and journeyed to the Western extremity of the Lakes. In 1688 he set out with several soldiers and five Indians from Michillimakinac, reached the Mississippi via Wisconsin, and on Nov. 7th came across a river, which he named the "Rivière Longue," which from its size must have been the Minnesota. He tells that he went up this river, coming across various tribes of Indians, among whom were the Essenapes, and the Gnacsitaires, names entirely unknown to other travellers. There has been much controversy as to the truth of La Hontan's statements concerning this part of his journey, some authors, among them being Charlevoix, considering them as fiction.

London, John Stockdale, 20th June, 1798.

£6 6s

On the unexpected publication of the account of this famous voyage at Paris the previous year (1797), there was considerable competition among English Publishers to bring out the English translation. Three different translations were made and published during 1798-9, and different engravers were employed for reproducing the plates. Stockdale's edition appeared first, in June, 1798, and included several plates which were omitted in the other 8vo issue.

The Kawa-kawa, many inlets, Korororeka, and adjacent country were surveyed and mapped out with accuracy and artistic taste during a week's stay. Coleridge wrote very highly of this work, and remarked that it gave a much truer picture of Lewis' real character than his other writings did. It gives an interesting picture of the state of Jamaica after the abolition of the slave trade and before the emancipation of the negro.

Sabin, 47260. A remarkably fine large paper copy in uncut state.

"This narrative is a most important work. It was on these discoveries by Meares that the claim of Great Britain to Oregon mainly depended. In the treaty between England and Spain which followed the Nootka affair the Spanish claims were disallowed, and the Spaniards withdrew. Subsequently, in the arbitration on the Oregon question, England finally yielded to the United States much territory claimed under the discoveries made by Meares."

Like his French contemporary Capt. Péron, Meares was also engaged on the fur trade between British Columbia and Canton. His vessels were seized by the Spaniards at Nootka Sound, who claimed all that coast as Spanish. War nearly broke out between England and Spain over the question, and Spain had to give way.
