Report of the Medical Superintendent for the Year ending 31st January, 1919.

GENTLEMEN,

I have the honour to submit to you my Report for the year ending 31st January, 1919, which includes a summary giving various particulars about those who have been discharged from this Institution during the past thirty-five years.

Admissions.—Not including re-admissions, thirty-eight patients have placed themselves under treatment, and of these only five entered under the Inebriates' Act.

Both for the patients and their friends I consider admission under the Inebriates' Act preferable in a larger number of cases.

There is no distinction made as regards rules, terms, accommodation, diet, etc., between Act patients and those who are classed "private patients."

Those under the Act must remain in residence until the expiration of the period signed for, unless previously discharged or permitted to go away on leave of absence under the Act.

"Private patients" can terminate their stay at any time they wish to do so.

There is of course a very natural objection on the part of most persons, to the signing away of liberty of action for an indefinite or a fixed period, but there are many who are far too optimistic in their judgment of their own cases, in too much of a hurry to get well quickly, whose impulses and very natural desire to return to their ordinary life and vocation outweigh the caution that should be adopted in dealing with an issue where health, fortune and life are at stake. These persons are not fit judges as to the period when rehabilitation of self-control is sufficiently established, and the settlement of such a question should be placed beyond their decision, while of course their arguments, views and their special circumstances should receive due consideration. It is frequently preferable that the signature under the Act should be for a period in excess of that considered in all probability sufficient. A discharge can at any time be applied for and obtained if such a course is advisable, or when urgent private affairs necessitate a premature termination of treatment, or a leave of absence (to which I have just referred) can be granted under which the patient is permitted to live elsewhere on the condition that he abstains from alcohol; should he not keep this condition, a return to the Retreat can be enforced. This leave is most useful in certain circumstances and is a valuable after treatment method of practically discharging a patient, and yet keeping in touch with him.

ISLAND AND BOAT HOUSE

Method of Admission under the Act.—The patient must sign a request for admission, for any period not exceeding two years, in the presence of a Stipendiary Magistrate, or, better still, and without any publicity, before any Justice of the Peace, at his private house or elsewhere. Two persons (of either sex—relatives are quite eligible) must sign a Statutory Declaration, and this can be done before any Justice of the Peace or any Commissioner for Oaths. There is no necessity for the three signatures to be made at the same time or place, one or all can be signed at Rickmansworth if preferred,

I mention this here as I am frequently questioned on these points. The request for Admission and the Statutory Declaration forms, I send to all applicants.

Discharges have numbered thirty-three (again omitting re-admissions who have left the Retreat) and three are away on leave of absence under the Act.

One of those discharged left on account of ill health, one was insane and unsuitable for treatment, and six left prematurely on the ground of urgent private affairs.

Treatment.—It has always been my aim to wean a man from alcohol, or from the particular drug for which he has an addiction, with as little discomfort to him as possible.

Subsequently the first consideration is to cure him, when possible, of any diseased condition that may be at the root of his drink or drug impulse, and restore him to a sound physical condition, and whether such a cause is discoverable or not, to train his mind to resist any such impulse by the cultivation of self-control, to strengthen his will power and determination and to make him realise that part of his cure lies in his own hands, and that total abstinence from alcohol (and of course from drugs in the case of a drug taker) is an absolute necessity.

This alcohol abstinence applies also to the drug habitué, who readily falls a victim to alcohol excess, when a relapse to his drug is the inevitable sequel.

To achieve this end, no single rule of thumb method can be successful. Various forms of therapy have to be employed according to the cause and nature of the case.

To a certain extent all are deprived of their liberty, but each patient is treated per se; in the case of some, a considerable amount of freedom may be granted a few days after admission, and the large majority can be given parole after two to four weeks residence.

My object is to make life for the patient as pleasant as possible, consistent with the necessary control, and it is not unusual for a patient to express genuine regret at having to leave. I have frequently been informed by men, that they would have come here long before they did had they known what the place was like.

With regard to period of treatment, this varies according to the case, duration of trouble, state of mental and physical health, and amount of existing will power; it is generally impossible to determine this point until the case has been studied. Patients range from those of a strong constitution with a quite recently contracted habit, who require merely three or four weeks to set them up again; to others who have been drink sodden for years, periodically or continuously, for whom a year or more is necessary before it can be hoped that self-control can be established.

Too frequently a man has to cut treatment short on account of business, domestic, or financial reasons.

I have found, as a rule, that the longer the residence in the Retreat, the better the average of good result.

This is shown in the following table, obtained from the after histories of a series of over 1,000 consecutive discharges, including drug cases.

Of those who remained under treatment :—

2 months or less	...	about 33	per cent.	are doing well.
2 to 3 months	...	41	" "	" "
3 to 6 months	...	43	" "	" "
6 to 12 months	...	45	" "	" "
over 12 months	...	47	" "	" "

As will be seen in my Summary, the average duration of stay is five to six months; generally speaking, a three months' treatment is essential while the longer periods are for the more severe conditions.

VIEW IN GROUNDS

The after treatment of these patients is of great importance and requires very careful consideration. Environment, unsuitable associates, climate, occupation, etc. etc., have to be thought about; sometimes domestic differences have to be smoothed over, or business and other worries arranged with the assistance of their friends; and there are too frequently insuperable difficulties, chiefly financial, in the way of placing a man under conditions which give him a fighting chance of success.

The man who becomes an Inebriate is rarely of a phlegmatic temperament; he is nearly always highly strung and nervous, and is readily upset under conditions which would leave the placid person unruffled.

A large number of those who come under treatment, honestly wish to be cured. They have struggled and have been beaten in their attempts to conquer their failing.

The temptation to drown care appeals strongly to them, and in the case of many, a single glass of liquor acts as a poison; one that impels the victim to excess. In some instances their condition is primarily due to self-indulgence that has enslaved them, and has sapped their will power; in others, it is the result of an inherited abnormality, of injury, or of disease.

Whatever the cause, they require sympathy, assistance and encouragement, to combat a desire, the strength of which is evidently not realised by those who class them all as merely vicious.

After History.—With regard to the table in this summary, which refers to results of treatment, it is obvious that in a condition such as inebriety in which continued total abstinence from alcohol or drugs is absolutely essential, reliable statistics cannot be obtained unless repeated enquiries are made as to progress.

I have therefore recently made enquiries as to the condition of patients, not only about those discharged since my last report was written, but, so far as possible, concerning those who have been reported as doing well during previous years.

During the year the health of the patients has been excellent; there has only been one case of serious illness.

In conclusion, I wish to thank the House Committee for their kind co-operation and valuable assistance.

I am, Gentlemen,

Your Obedient Servant,

F. S. D. HOGG.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

Times.—"A very pleasant house, standing in about five acres of beautiful grounds, admirably adapted to the purpose it is intended to fulfil."

Lancet.—"Practitioners having dipsomaniac patients cannot do them a greater kindness than to urge them to use this Home, with its regulated life and pleasant surroundings."

British Medical Journal.—"Charming grounds. A very pleasant view from the public rooms, the house standing on a terrace of 30 feet above the River Colne. Spacious dining hall and kitchen. The billiard-room is a prominent feature."

Morning Post.—"Admirably adapted to secure a fair trial of the provisions of the Habitual Drunkards Act."

Sanitary Record.—"A charming country residence, replete with every comfort."

Standard.—"Complete and satisfactory."

Medical Press.—"A charmingly-situated house, light and airy."

Journal of Inebriety.—"May well serve as a model. One of the best equipped inebriate asylums in Europe."

Daily News.—"Prettily situated and well furnished. Situation and comparative seclusion all that could be desired."

Daily Chronicle.—"Commodious and handsome."

City Press.—"Commodious and nicely furnished, with an exceedingly picturesque view."
