Dr. GRAHAM has had the honour of publicly exhibiting and explaining to the Inhabitants of BATH and BRISTOL, and to the Nobility and Gentry who resort to those famous Cities from most parts of Europe, the nature and effects of Earth Bathing, daily, for about four months, even in the most severe weather of Nov. Dec. Jan. and Feb. last; and the following are a few of the Cures which Dr. G. has had the happiness, under God! of performing by Earth-Bathing, and by well-adapted Medicines, regimen, &c. And most of the Patients have repeatedly urged Dr. G. to the publication of their Cures, from motives of gratitude to Dr. G. and of compassion for, and the encouragement of their fellow creatures, who are similarly afflicted with diseases which cannot be cured by other Doctors, nor by any other human means; and it is hoped that Christian humanity will induce healthy persons, into whose hands this may come, to send it to the sick, weak, or lame, to whom it may be of essential service.

1. MR. CHARLES CHISLETT, No. 20, Corn-street, Bath, formerly Apprentice and now Journeyman to Mr. Richard Cruttwell, Printer, is now perfectly cured by Dr. Graham, of a confirmed Consumption. His cough was very bad and troublesome. He spit up much blood and corrupted matter. Had a violent fixed pain in his side. Profuse night sweats. Falling off of his hair. Palpitation at his heart. Lost his flesh, and was extremely weak. Mr. Chislett had tried many Doctors in London and at Bath. The country air and milk diet for months. Three bottles of Godbold's famous Syrup, &c. &c. but all totally in vain; but Dr. Graham's Medicines, regimen, and Earth-Bathing, were so blessed by God to his perfect cure, that he now and has long wrought in Mr. Cruttwell's Office, as well as ever he did in his life.

2. Mr. BENJAMIN DYKE, Brazier and Tinman, in Broad-street, Bath, after having been near eight years violently afflicted with the large outward piles, and a most extremely violent, unsufferable, and almost constant itching, rawness, burning heat, and scurf on all the lower parts of his body, and on one arm; and after having tried the waters and the Doctors of Bath, and the strongest medicines, &c. in vain for several years, is radically cured by Dr. G. without Earth-Bathing, and is now as easy, sound, healthy, and happy, as ever he was in his whole life.

3. Mr. SHIPWAY, Joiner, No. 10, Balance-street, near the Riding-School, Bath, is now perfectly cured by Dr. G's. medicines, &c. without Earth-Bathing, of a confirmed and universal Dropsy of his body and lower limbs, asthmatic difficulty of breathing, and jaundice-like yellowness, after he had in vain followed the advice, and used the medicines, of two of the principal Physicians in Bath; and had despaired of his own recovery. Mr. S. is now as strong and well as ever he was in his life.

4. Mr. JOS. POW, Carpenter, No. 8, Murford-street, Bath, after two fits of the Gout, declined into the most deplorable state of weakness, total loss of appetite, pain, oppression, dejection, and was emaciated to a skeleton. All the advice, medicines, and Bath-waters, were of no service to him; but Dr. G.'s medicines and advice have perfectly recovered his appetite, flesh, spirits, and strength, and he now works at his business as usual.

5. Mr. ABRAHAM FARTHING, Copper-plate-printer, No. 23, Corn-street, Bath, his Daughter, aged 10 years, was for many months afflicted with scrophulous gatherings and sores in seven different parts of her body, and three in her arms near the joints, at one time, which discharged prodigious quantities of matter, and were so very sore and painful that she could scarce bear to lie in bed: and her eyes, too, were prodigiously inflamed and weak. All the Medical and Surgical advices, and all the medicines and applications that were used were of no service, but she grew worse and worse, till her father applied to Dr. G. who has so radically cured her in a short time, without Earth-Baths, that she is now sound, plump, rosy and well, in all respects. Mr. Cruttwell will attest the truth of this cure.

6. EDWARD MANLEY, Chairman, Corner of High-street, Landsdown-road, near Spencer's Belle-vue, is now cured by Dr. G.'s Medicines and Earth-Bathing, of a far-gone confirmed Consumption; and now works at his business as usual.

7. Mr. ABRAHAM HOOD, Atwood-Court, near St. James's Church, Bath, afflicted for five years with the most painful Rheumatism in his shoulders, arms, and hips; and was so bruised by the fall of a piece of Timber on him, that blood came upwards and downwards from him for two weeks, and reduced him to keep his bed for three weeks; but by Dr. G.'s applications and Earth-Baths, he is now perfectly cured of the Rheumatism, bruise, weakness and pain, and he works as strong and well as ever he before did.

8. Mr. BENJAMIN HOBBS, at Mr. Hallbit's, in Bathwick, is now completely cured by Earth-Bathing, under Dr. G.'s eye, of a most violent and obstinate Scorbutic eruption and intolerable itching, which had afflicted and tormented him for many years.—He had tried bathing in these hot mineral waters twenty times, and many medicines, in vain.

9. A YOUNG MAN, a Servant in Bath, who was brought to the extremest weakness, decrepitude, and very near death, by the Rheumatism, and by the bleedings, sweatings, &c. of the Apothecaries; was soon eased and cured so as to follow his usual business, by the Earth-Bathing alone, without medicines.

10. Mr. ROBERTSON, Printer, at Mr. Cruttwell's, but now at Mr. Trewman's, in Exeter, was for twelve months, or longer, consumptive, asthmatic, emaciated, and dejected; and had lost his appetite and digestion altogether, applied to Dr. G. who soon perfectly cured and restored him, as Mr. Cruttwell and his Men will attest; and he is now fat, fresh, and strong.

11. Dr. GRAHAM had yesterday the honour and the pleasure of receiving the thanks of a Gentleman, near Standerwick Common, on the Salisbury-road, for being instrumental in saving his aimable Wife's life, in a consumptive, nervous, and very obstinate Scorbutic case, by his Medicines, advice, and frequently repeated Earth-Bathing, so that her complaints seem now to be quite eradicated. Her pregnancy did not hinder her from bathing in the Earth two or three times a week till she was cured.

12. Mr. WILLIAM MAYO, at Westgate-House, Westgate-Buildings, Bath, was happily cured near two years ago, by Dr. G. of a prodigious Gouty swelling, pain, and weakness of his knee, legs, and feet, so that he had long walked on crutches; and his general health was so very bad, that all his friends had despaired of his recovery.

13. Mrs. DYKE, No. 4, Balance-street, is cured by Dr. G. of a violent bilious disorder, pain, total loss of appetite and digestion; every thing she ate being vomited, or turned sour and bitter—her flesh wasted, and her spirits exhausted.

14. Mrs. MARY KELLY, housekeeper to the late Mr. F. J. Paris, at Park-House, Widcomb, near Bath, was perfectly cured by Dr. G. of a confirmed stroke of the Palsy, which had deprived her of the use of one side of her body, and of the limbs of that side. She had an almost constant vomiting, was afflicted with spasms, and extreme irritability and weakness, and was moreover consumptive and dropsical. Dr. G. saw Mrs. Kelly a few days ago in good health and strong.

15. The WIFE of ANTOINE TAHAN, painter, in Old Spa, aged 39, in the beginning of the third month of her last pregnancy, lost suddenly the use of her right hand and arm; and three weeks after, had the misfortune of an almost fatal miscarriage. Of this, however, she recovered very well; but her paralytic hand and arm remained exactly the same.—She had applied for charity to the Right Hon. Lady Spencer, and her Ladyship had the goodness to bring her to me. The palsy was by this time so confirmed, that she was insensible of pain in her hand when cut, pricked with a pin, or burnt; the whole limb was constantly as cold as lead, (even in that hot season) and her fingers were so fast clenched and contracted, that her husband with his strength was not able to open or straighten them, and the whole limb was considerably smaller than the other. Notwithstanding the case was a very bad one, having been declared incurable, and the woman abandoned by the two physicians who had prescribed for her from the beginning, yet being willing to try what could be done in a case in which the benevolent Countess had so humanely interested herself, I gave a powerful nervous ætherial medicine inwardly, and a restorative, vivifying perpetual bath, (to be worn on her hand and wrist day and night in a large bladder) and desired her to return in three days, in order to have the parts pervaded with the most powerful ætherial frictions, &c.—She came accordingly the third day, and went through the operations in the presence of Lord and Lady Spencer, and Marechale du Muy. Her constitution being warmed and invigorated, and the parts properly prepared for the influx of the blood and animal spirits through the arteries and nerves, by the medicines, applications, and regimen she had observed for the three preceding days, the operations had their desired effect:

for in about forty minutes the blood and spirits having forced their way so as to animate the muscles to their natural functions—spasms and tensions went off, her fingers became straight, warm and pliant, the circulations most genial and copious; and in a word, the cure was perfectly completed in the presence and to the great astonishment and satisfaction of those noble personages. As to the woman herself, she burst into tears of amazement and joy, and exclaimed, “Monfieur le Medicin est le bon Dieu, ou le Diable,” that the Doctor who had performed so wonderful a cure, must either be a god or a devil.—In order to prevent any relapse, the medicines, balsamic bath, and restorative regimen were continued, and she was directed to return the third day following to have a partial operation repeated. At the time appointed she came in a new gown and apron, which in the course of those three days she had made with her own hands, and although she continued to have the use of that hand and arm as well as of the other, yet I thought it prudent to pervade it once more with the proposed influences, similar to those which had already been used.—At the end of this, the final operation, the Prince of Hesse, the Archbishop, and other great personages, who had done me the high honor of being present, expressed the greatest satisfaction; and as the woman was now to be discharged, they had the goodness to enable her to begin the world anew, and to live more comfortably than she had ever before done: for her Grace the Duchess of Devonshire, Lady Spencer, and Lady Harriet Spencer, first giving her each a guinea, were followed by the English, French, Russian, Polish, and German nobility, and every one of the GREAT PERSONAGES who filled the spacious apartment the operation was performed in, at the Chateau de Limbourg, the whole of which I occupied during my residence at the German Spa.

16. Mr. ORCHARD, Baker, in Back-street, near St. James's-Parade, Bath, received the greatest benefit from Dr. G.'s Medicines and advice, in an extremely bad Cough, spitting, shortness of breath, and consumptive general weakness, under which he had many years laboured.—With Mr. Orchard's permission, Dr. G. has the pleasure and the honour of making this extraordinary Cure public.

17. Mr. PETER ANDREWS, Hardware and Toyman, middle of Broad-street, Bath, was soon and perfectly cured by Dr. G. of an almost fatal putrid Sore-throat, which he caught by riding in a coach with the corpse of a dead child to its burial, who had died of that disease. Mr. Andrew's throat was so much swelled, so spotted and putrid, and his voice and strength so much gone, that neither he nor his friends had any hopes of his recovery.

18. “To Dr. GRAHAM, Bath.—Sir, After having been long severely tormented with the GOUT, the disease fell intirely into my legs, about a year and a half ago, swelling them to a most monstrous size; and though they broke out into no less than 36 holes, wounds, or ulcers, yet the inflammation, pain, and intolerable fiery itching, day and night, rendered my life almost insupportable.—In that desperate and lamentable condition I applied to you, and in a short time you totally removed the inflammation, pain, and unsufferable itching, and soundly healed up every one of the sores or ulcers, so that I am now so easy and sound, that I walk about, and follow my business as formerly.—JOHN GRIFFITHS, No. 6, Peter's-street, near St. James's-Parade, Bath."

19. The SON of Mr. WM. STALLARD, at Mr. Thomas's, Cutler, on the Upper Borough-Walls, the third door left hand from the Market-place, Bath, is now restored to clear and perfect sight and strength of his Left Eye, and to good bodily health, by the blessing of God! on the means which Dr. Graham has prescribed and applied, in the course of three weeks, after he had been more than three months constantly under the care of one of the principal Medical Practitioners in Bath, without receiving any benefit, and when his parents had reason to dread the total loss of that most delicate and precious organ.

The case was a most severe and obstinate inflammation, with filmy specks on the sight,—a great swelling and discolouration of the eyelids and lashes, and so great a weakness, that he could neither open his eye nor bear the light. His general health was also greatly impaired and debilitated. But now being restored to perfect clearness and strength of sight, and of all the external parts of the eye, and to good bodily health and spirits, his parents desire to make this happy cure public for the general good of their fellow-creatures.

20. Mrs. HANNAH BRIGHT, wife of Mr. Bright, gardener, opposite the Fox, in Holloway, Bath, by a violent exertion and strain, half a year ago, brought on a profuse vomiting of blood, which returned every now and then to the greatest danger of her life, because her brother had died of a similar case, and she could obtain no cure in Bath till she applied to Dr. Graham; for even the day she first applied to him vast quantities of blood gushed or was easily coughed up. But by taking Dr. G.'s Medicines, and following his advice for a week or two, she has never, from the first moment of using them, had any, not even the smallest return of the very dangerous complaint, and is now as strong, fresh-coloured, and healthy as ever she was in her life,—and desires her astonishingly speedy and great cure to be made public.

21. Mr. H. a Gentleman who lodged at Mrs. Lewis's, upper end of Merchant's-Court, opposite the City-Hall, in Bath, was cured in a few weeks by Dr. G. of an universal, most frightful, and most distressing Leprosy, which the Bath waters, and the advice and medicines of the Physicians of Bath, had failed in even mitigating. His whole body and limbs were scaly, scabbed, cracked, or running with a corrosive humour; and the itching was so very intolerable both day and night, that the blood and matter gushed out after his nails, which were almost continually employed. Mr. H. found ease the very day from Dr. G.'s Medicines and applications; he was in a few weeks perfectly cured;—and went home blessing God and rejoicing. Mrs. Lewis will be so good as to attest the truth of this great and happy cure.

22. An IRISH Gentleman, of family and large fortune, well advanced in life, in precisely the same state of universal and most obstinate Leprosy, but emaciated to a mere skeleton, by the severity of the disease for six years, and by the hot bathings, mercurial and antimonial nial medicines, &c. which he had been using in Bath for six months, in vain, before he ventured to apply to Dr. G.—was perfectly cured by Dr. G. in six weeks, of his universal and most virulent Leprosy, intolerable heat, and chills, and itching, loss of appetite, rest, and spirits;—and restored to plumpness of flesh,—to sound, easy, smoothness of skin,—and to general strength and spirits, to the very great joy and astonishment of himself,—of his amiable Lady,—of his family, and numerous friends. A very intelligent Irish Gentleman, his friend, lately called on Dr. G. to tell him that he had lately been at Mr. M's. House in Ireland, and that he was in all respects well and happy.

23. Mr. MICHAEL RYAN, in Crutch's Court, top of Stall-Street, Bath, received very great benefit from the Earth-Bathing, in a case of severe and long confirmed affection of his head, stomach, and bowels,—universal weakness of nerves, inward fits, low spirits, and despondency.

24. WILLIAM LINTERN, Chairman, who lives in Widcomb, beyond the Turnpike, was lame about seven years from a Rheumatism in the joint of his hips, knee, and foot, attended with such crampy spasms, violent pain, and extreme weakness, and wasting of that limb, that he had not been able to carry a chair for three quarters of a year; but after the first Earth-Bath of four hours, he carried four fares that same evening; and after the second Bath, he carried five fares; and was so stout that his leg never failed him once, nor dropt, as he called it.

25. Mrs. HARDING's Daughter, in Walcot-street, opposite St. Michael's Church, Bath, who had been afflicted for three years with a most troublesome deep-seated, hollow ulcer in her cheek, which penetrated to the upper jaw-bone, continually discharging outwardly variously conditioned matter, and who had applied to many eminent Surgeons in Bath for a cure, but in vain,—is now cured by Dr. G.'s dressings, Earth-Bathing, and the application of fresh fat Church-yard-earth to the part every, or every other night.

26. JOSEPH JONES, aged sixteen, at Mr. Trimble's, Baker, near Walcot-Church, Bath,—by a fall from a nut-tree a few years ago, had a constant gnawing pain in his loins and left knee, and the flesh of that leg and thigh shrunk and wasted away very considerably. He was for four months a patient in the Bath General Hospital, but was discharged as incurable, very little or no better. By bathing in the Earth, however, under Dr. G.'s direction, about twenty times, his pain, weakness, and lameness were cured, and his thigh and leg have recovered their former fleshiness and strength as the other.

27. A GENTLEMAN from London, who came to Bath for the benefit of the Waters, in a case of almost constant and great pain in his back, of several years continuance,—a complaint in his stomach and bowels, want of appetite and digestion, lowness of spirits, universally scorbutic, and very nervous,—but who was greatly hurt instead of benefited by the Bath-waters, was cured of the above Complaints, and restored to a strong appetite and digestion, and to great strength and constant good spirits, by ten or twelve Earth-Baths.

28. Mrs. MALLOCH, No. 9, Corn-street, Bath, is restored to good health and strength by a few of Dr. G.'s Medicines, and about thirty Earth-Baths, in the months of Dec. Jan. and Feb. last, after the

she had been given up for death by all the most eminent Physicians and Surgeons of Bath, and by every one who knew her, in consequence of a severe cold or chill, caught on a bad lying-in 12 months ago, which occasioned such constant pain, and such extreme weakness, as to compel her to pray earnestly for a release by Death. Mrs. Malloch, her affectionate husband, and family, cannot sufficiently express their gratitude to God! and to Dr. G. for her great and unexpected Cure.

The Case of JANE DAVIS, now perfectly cured of the LEPROSY.

29. Dr. GRAHAM having observed (on his first arrival at Bath) in both the Bath Newspapers, the Address to the Public (begging charity) of JANE DAVIS, a poor widow woman, aged 32, who had formerly lived a servant in some respectable families in Bath, but then reduced to the extremest weakness, lameness, and wretchedness, by a violent universal Leprosy, which had been coming on her two years, but which for the last six months had brought her so near death that she could neither dress nor undress herself, nor rise up without help, Dr. G. undertook, God willing! to cure her (gratis), as the greatest charity he could possibly bestow upon her.

Dr. G. finding all over her body and limbs, from the crown of her head to the end of every finger and toe, discoloured and covered with great white and yellow scales, scurf, livid spots, and ulcers,—her eyes inflamed, discharging corrupted matter, and almost closed up,—the smell and itching intolerable,—her pains and weakness extreme, not having slept an hour at a time in six months, although she took laudanum;—and the advice of the Physicians,—the medicines of the Pauper Charity, and the warm baths and mineral waters of Bath, all ineffectual even to alleviate in any degree her sufferings, and daily growing worse and worse,—he begged the favour of several humane and respectable house-keepers in Bath, to inspect and to be eye-witnesses of the deplorable and shockingly frightful condition she was in the day before Dr. G. began to use the means for her cure; and that day three weeks she waited again on the gentlemen to shew them that the horrid disease was entirely cleared off and cured, though she was still very weak in consequence of the disease and of the medicines, &c. which Dr. G. had employed for her cure, which was effected without any Earth or Mud-Bathing:—and after she had bathed in the earth daily for one week to strengthen her, Dr. G. himself had the honour and the happiness of presenting her to all the gentlemen, radically cured of the very dreadful Leprosy, and restored to perfect soundness, smoothness, and strength of her face, body, and limbs, and with her appetite and spirits as good as at any former period of her life! So that this very great and extraordinary Cure was begun, completed and confirmed in the short space of four weeks, by the Divine blessing on Dr. G.'s skill, medicines, and attention; and thus an useful member is again restored to health, to happiness, and to society.

We, whose names are hereunto subscribed, saw the dreadfully diseased and weak state that the above Jane Davis was in at the time Dr. Graham undertook her cure; and with the greatest surprise and pleasure we saw her to all appearance perfectly cured of the universal Leprosy,

Leprosy, and restored to comfortable flesh, strength and spirits, that day month the Doctor began to cure her.

HENRY KNIGHT, Bond-street,	} BATH.
HOOPER and KEENES, Kingsmead-street,
JAMES CREASE, Bridge-street,
SAMUEL WHITCHURCH, ditto,
WILLIAM GIBBS, Broad-street,

N. B. The truth of the above will also be attested by the Lady with whom Jane Davis lived servant, No. 1, Wood-street, Queen-square, Bath, by Mr. Meyler, bookseller, in the Grove; by Mr. Cruttwell, printer; by Mr. Walter Orchard, in the Abbey-Green; by Mrs. Forward, No. 3, Balance-street, at whose house she lodged while she was under cure; and by Mrs. Henderson, school-mistress, the uppermost house in Garrard-street; who frequently saw her when at the worst in her disease, and after she was perfectly cured.

✍ JANE DAVIS certifies the truth of her case and cure;—can find no words expressive enough of her gratitude to Dr. Graham;—returns her most grateful thanks for the kind donations she has received through the hands of Mr. Meyler and Mr. Cruttwell. These sums enabled her to support herself during her cure, and to redeem great part of her clothes which her distresses obliged her to pawn.

JANE DAVIS.

30. Mr. HAINES's DAUGHTER, of London, aged 21, now lodging in Broad-street, Bath, having been for six years afflicted with a dreadful Leprosy all over her head, body, and limbs, from drinking four small-beer in a cellar when excessively over heated with dancing,—was for four months a patient in the Bath General Hospital, but had the misfortune to be discharged worse than when admitted,—but she is now happy in having her head, body, and limbs very nearly totally freed from that dreadful disease the dry, scabbed, and inflamed Leprosy, by God's blessing on Dr. G's. medicines, and a few weeks Earth-Bathing.

31. A YOUNG MAN in Bath, reduced to death's door by a certain foul and often fatal Disease, contracted at Bristol, and long neglected and improperly treated, was perfectly cured in one month by Dr. G. to the great astonishment and joy of himself, family, and acquaintance.

32. Mrs. RUSSEL, who lodges at Mr. Parsons's, Bristol Carrier, in Corn-street, Bath, two years afflicted with ulcers in her kidneys and bladder, attended with the most excruciating forcing and pain, and exceeding leanness from the great discharge of slime, and corrupted matter, &c.—never found any cure or relief from any medicines or applications she had used, till happily she used the Earth and warm Mud-Baths, and Dr. G's. medicines.

33. Mr. and Mrs. BEACH, No. 25, in the Avenue, leading from Clare-street to St. Stephen's Church, Bristol, desire publicly to return thanks to God, and to Dr. Graham, for restoring their SON to perfectly good and acute hearing, after he had been very deaf from his infancy; and for curing Mrs. Beach herself, of a complication of disorders, came on her in consequence of a dangerous fever.—When Mrs. applied to Dr. Graham she could scarce walk, was fallow complexioned, plexioned, asthmatic, dropfical all over, and apoplectic; in short, little hopes were entertained of her recovery, till she most happily applied to Dr. G. who soon, under God! restored her to good health.

34. Mr. F. MADDEN, at Mrs. Tannard's, next door to the sign of the Ship, on the Bath side of Bristol-bridge,—his feet were eat with lime into seven deep holes or ulcers, so that his toes were near to drop off, and was quite lame and crippled for about a month;—the pain was excruciating, and he could find no relief from any thing which the surgeons or himself could apply. His feet, however, are now perfectly cured, and strong, and he works as well as ever, by five times bathing his feet and legs in the Earth, for four hours each time, and by applying at home fuller's earth, and wheat flour, made soft with milk and water, as ordered by Dr. Graham.

35. Mr. JOHN PERRINS, Temple-street, near the Neptune Pipe, Bristol, who had been afflicted with most severe and frightful Epileptic fits for about eighteen months, every night, without intermission,—by a few medicines from Dr. G. and Earth-Bathing for a few weeks, has not had but one fit in the course of near five weeks.

36. A YOUNG LADY, of Bristol, seven years old, was so weak in her loins, knees, &c. that she never had walked in her life; but by a fortnight's Earth-Bathing was so much strengthened as to walk across a large room.

37. A SAILOR in Bristol, who had long been laid up with inflammation, pain, weakness, and running sores in his legs, was perfectly cured in two weeks by daily Earth-bathing alone, without any medicine whatever.

38. Mr. PALSER, hat-maker, Narrow Wine-street, Bristol, had totally lost the use of all his limbs for six years, his speech, nerves, &c. were affected to the extremest degree, and besides all other remedies, he had used the Bath waters inwardly and outwardly, for 36 weeks, with very little benefit. But by the Divine blessing on Earth-bathing daily for three weeks, even in the coldest weather, he can now use both his arms well, and can bear the weight of his body on his lower limbs, especially on first getting out of the Earth; his speech and countenance are totally altered for the better; and he means to pursue the Earth-bathing in summer, in the country to complete, God willing! his cure.

An account of the names and residence of the numbers of persons cured by Dr. G. of the worst and most hopeless diseases, under the immediate eye, and attested by the hand writing of Her Grace the Duchess of Devonshire, Lord and Lady Spencer, Lady Clermont, &c. may be seen by applying to Dr. G. at his lodgings, where he may be consulted as usual in all difficult and dangerous cases: and it is most earnestly requested, that those persons who labour under any disease, weakness, swellings, sores, or lameness, which have baffled the skill of other physicians or surgeons, will be very speedy in their applications to Dr. Graham, as he purposes very soon to return to, and settle at Edinburgh; for if this opportunity of being cured be neglected, they may regret with unrivalling anguish of heart, that perhaps the only person in the world who could have restored them, under God! to perfect health, soundness, and strength, is then so very far distant from them.—Very poor persons, who labour under the scurvy, leprosy, King's evil, consumptions, ulcers, or nervous disorders, will be cured gratis, if they apply immediately.

✍ Dr. GRAHAM's Earth-Bathing Public Exhibition, will be continued, daily, next door to Mr. BEETHAM's, No. 27, in Fleet-street, opposite St. Dunstan's Church, London, from Eleven till Three o'Clock, —Admission One Shilling.

The following most desperate Cases of Disease, and the Means and Medicines employed by Dr. Graham for their speedy and radical Cure, are made public at the very earnest and repeated Request of the Patients, and their most respected Friends.

39 Mrs. CARTWRIGHT, the wife of Mr. Tho. Cartwright, at his Shoe Warehouse, No. 107, High Holborn, London, after lying in a few days, was seized with a putrid nervous fever, attended from the beginning with every fatal symptom, and which increased so alarmingly, that Sir John Elliot, Physician to the Prince of Wales, was brought to her from the Sardinian ambassador's house at twelve o'clock at night. Sir John declared as soon as he saw Mrs. C. that there were no hopes of her recovery. At his second visit, he was confirmed in his opinion; and the third day, Sir John told Mr. Cartwright, and the Surgeon-Apothecary, that as there was not the least shadow of hopes, he would decline his attendance.

Mrs. Cartwright's agonies of pain, spasms, and convulsions, were at times so very great, that the people of the neighbouring houses heard her cries; and she was so mad, as it were, in her fits of pain and phrenzy, that three or four strong persons could scarcely keep her down in bed. After that, she would die away, more calmly delirious, convulsed, putrid, and totally senseless. She had no passage for seven days, notwithstanding every effort to procure it. Every thing came up, whether drink or medicine. Spasms, inward convulsions, and extreme putrefaction, reduced her visibly every hour. Her eyes were half open, set, glazed, and dead in her head. Her limbs were clammy and cold; and her pulse gone. The putrid stench about her bed, and in the room, was so very intolerable, that Mr. Cartwright paid three pounds a-week for fresh herbs, vinegar, &c. to check it. Seven different nurses were employed at a great expence to attend her, but they would not, or could not stand it more than one day and night. Mr. Cartwright had not his clothes off for about fourteen days and nights: and he was called up more than twenty times to see her expire. At last, she was left as a cold, putrid, offensive, dead corpse to be laid out; and the shop, or shoe warehouse, was shut up for near four hours.

It was at this melancholy and awful crisis, that a pious and kind friend of Mr. Cartwright's brought Dr. Graham to see her; and the Doctor still perceiving life, although greatly doubting of even the possibility of recovery, advised, as he does in every case, that means might be used whilst one spark of life remained, though buried among the ruins or ashes of the human frame.

The nurse, the relations, and Mr. C. himself, as it were, laughed Dr. G. to scorn for his folly and cruelty in offering to disturb, what they considered, a dead woman. The Doctor nevertheless, with the consent of the friend who brought him, persisted. He immediately used great quantities of his Nervous Ætherial Balsam inwardly, and of his Ætherial Opodeldoc outwardly. He instantly employed several pounds of the best fresh beat Peruvian bark, true cinnamon, red roses, and of certain living roots, herbs and flowers, by way of hot rich fomentations, fumigations, and cataplasms or poultices, to her head, hands, and feet:—as frequent glysters also, and inwardly by the mouth, whether she swallowed these rich antidotes and cordials or not. At intervals, vast heaps of living herbs, with their roots LOADED WITH THEIR NATIVE EARTH, were applied to her nose, mouth, neck, hands, &c.—and the Doctor well knowing the supreme vitality of the fresh external air, every window and door was kept most widely open both night and day: and the next day he actually had her carried down into a post-chaise, covered her with the FRESH EARTH, and the living roots and leaves of aromatic herbs, and went with her round by Hampstead, and the Spaniard, frequently stopping to wash her face, neck, hands, and arms, with water, and his famous Æthereal Opodeldoc, and to give her generous sparkling wine, and his Nervous Ætherial Balsam;—and rousing her continually by talking to her, and rubbing her with the EARTH, herbs, &c.—and he had the happiness to bring her home astonishingly recovered; although the Doctor confessed beforehand to all her friends that he did not expect she could be got alive into the chaise, far less brought home that day alive.

Mrs. C. from that time, solely under Dr. G's direction and medicine, and enjoying the fresh air at Clapham; got well rapidly, has had several very fine children since, and is now in perfect health; and both Mr. and Mrs. Cartwright, and all their friends, have always thought it a great pity, and, indeed, injustice to Dr. Graham, and to mankind in general, especially to ladies under similar dreadful and generally fatal circumstances, that this most extraordinary cure was not made as public as possible long ago, although hundreds of persons are certain of the truth of the above wonderful and affecting facts.

That the above is a true, though very brief state of my Wife's almost miraculous, and altogether unexpected cure, by God's blessing on the means and medicines used by Dr. Graham, is most heartily and thankfully attested by me, THO. CARTWRIGHT.

40. About

40 About the beginning of March, Miss Beat, at Mr. Schroeder's Warehouse, (Robe and Habit-maker to Her Majesty) in Tavistock Street, Covent Garden, was seized with a severe putrid disorder, which broke out on one side of her face, and spread to her eye, ear, neck and throat. It was taken, and properly attended to, from the very beginning; but nevertheless in two or three weeks it had spread over both sides of her face and neck, which, with both her eyes and ears, it had swelled to a monstrous degree. The humour was so sharp and so excessively profuse, that day and night it would wet and run through twenty folds of cloth or handkerchiefs in one quarter of an hour, but notwithstanding that incredible discharge the swelling did not abate, and those under her ear and about her throat, were as hard as a stone. The catastrophe of the scene being now at hand, and the young lady herself, her affectionate father and her anxious friends, being alarmed and apprehensive of the most fatal consequences—the medical gentleman, who attended her was dismissed, and I was called in. The chilly shivering coldness which indeed had been a most unfavourable symptom from the beginning, encreased, now, very fast,—The terrible humour began to fall inward, and to be absorbed into her blood, which it dissolved and broke down into a putrid, watry, aqua fortis kind of gore; and on the Sunday morning I found her lying with scarce any pulse cold, sleepy-like, complaining that she could not now swallow, and of a dead coldness in her limbs, on her left side particularly,—and a want of smell and all sense of feeling in one side of her nose. Her face, neck, eyes and ears were entirely covered over with a thick black crust or scab—like a complete mask,—she had been quite blind for near two days, and on examining her throat inwardly, I found the mortification there far advanced. From these symptoms appearances, joined to what is called the rattles in the throat which had now come on, and the intolerable putrid smell which notwithstanding every precaution, began to spread all over the house, every body was persuaded that the melancholy scene would be closed in a few hours; and I myself was apprehensive that a deadly sweep in the house might be very great; a gentleman, a streets off, his wife, and some of their children and servants have been all swept into their grave by a putrid disorder within the space of one week, a few days before:—to whom I regret exceedingly that I had not the good fortune to be called. But to return. What was to be done!—Miss B. could not swallow but a few drops at a time, and that very slowly, and with the greatest danger of suffocation.

No time was to be lost with the patient, nor any thing left unprovided for the security of the family. Every window in the house, which Mrs. Schroeder had very judiciously thrown open, and the fra cence and other aromatics which she had wisely burned on the stairs, by way of fumigation, were, (with the addition of my Ætherial Opodeldoc to sprinkle with) all continued.

I immediately mixed a large phial of my NERVOUS ÆTHERIAL BALSAM, with an equal quantity of the syrup of capillaire, to soften it---Of that I gave Miss B. spoonful after spoonful, as fast as she could let it over---till she had taken the whole of it. That part of it which run out of her mouth was not lost; for it was absorbed by the neck and breast.

In the course of a quarter of an hour, I used no less than three whole phials of my Ætherial Opodeldoc, on her face, neck, throat, &c.---Another very large phial, containing four ounces of it, was held continually to her nostrils, and some of it a little diluted, was thrown into her nostrils upon her throat inwardly, with a syringe; and an infusion was immediately prepared, of half a pound of the finest Peruvian bark, and two ounces of true cinnamon, both in powder, and half a pound of red rose leaves.---To this when strained, no less than half a pint of Huxham's tincture of the bark was added. This was exhibited very often by way of glyster, and a cupful of it drank as often as possible. But before it could be prepared, I had given Miss B. another whole large phial of my nervous ætherial balsam, and had sprinkled the bed-cloaths well, all over, with my ætherial opodeldoc,---a large blister likewise was applied between her shoulders, and one under each collar bone. What were the effects of these bold---these great operations?---They were most happy!---They appeared miraculous!---They snatched an amiable young person---an useful member of society---I may say, from the very bottom of the grave. What would ordinary medicines---what would, what is called the regular practice, have done in this desperate case?---why---nothing. The patient MUST NEVITABLY HAVE DIED. How very fortunate it was for Miss B. that I was personally present to direct the proper exhibition of these great medicines--to which under God! she owes her life! In a quarter of an hour, from the time that my nervous ætherial balsam was first given to her,---she broke out into a general perspiration; her pulse was better;---the fulness, choaking, and inability of swallowing went off; the rattles ceased. At the end of another half hour, all these favourable appearances were more strikingly manifested:---and at the expiration of one hour more, so rapidly did the cold numbness and sleepiness go off, and the mortification, and putrefaction abate, that I conceived her to be even out of all danger. The putrid morbid matter which had fallen inward, and tried death to every vessel and fibre of the system being now so much overcome and subdued by the nervous ætherial balsam, and ætherial opodeldoc. I was determined to lose no time in carrying rying as much of it as possible out of the body. For that purpose, as Miss B. could not be supposed to be as yet capable of swallowing pills—and even if she could, it would have been a considerable time before they could have dissolved in her stomach: I therefore dissolved nine of my IMPERIAL PILLS in a proper vehicle, and gave the whole of them to her in the space of an hour. The consequence was, that they operated so properly and effectually, that I ventured to leave her that same night, being called into the city to attend to some cases of great importance.

I had ordered my servant to enquire after Miss B. by six in the morning, and a gentleman, (a surgeon in the East India Company's service) who had the goodness to sit up all night, being on a visit at Mr. Schroeder's (and to whose kind and judicious care we were all very much indebted,) sent me word that Miss B. was amazingly better, that she had slept sweetly great part of the night, that she was then refreshed and cheerful, with both her eyes quite open, and every unfavourable symptom entirely gone off.

I shall not trespass any longer on my reader's time; suffice it to assure him, that by continuing the medicines, &c. in one week or ten days more, Miss B. came down stairs quite recovered. The black crusty scabs or mask dropt off her face, neck, head, throat and ears entirely; she was once more perfectly herself,—and free from every spot or appearance—and with a good appetite, and high spirits, she has continued perfectly well ever since; and thinks that she even enjoys better health than she did before she was attacked with that terrible disorder:—and, it pleased God! that not one individual of that large and respectable family suffered an hour's illness from the imminent danger which had threatened them.

* * Miss Beat, who since has been happily married to Capt. William Temperly, and now lives at No. 1, ~~Old Great-lane~~, Wapping, has two fine healthy children, who, with herself, enjoy the most perfect health, desires that for the public good her very wonderful cure by Dr. Graham, may be made as public as possible; and that she will gladly satisfy every respectful enquirer.—Mr. Schroeder now lives at No. 26, Mercer-street, Long Acre, and will gladly attest the truth of this very great cure.

41. Mr. EDWARD BANGHAM, No. 3, Dorset-street, Spital-fields, was severely afflicted for more than sixteen years with an hereditary scurvy, which was the cause of his father's death. The disease had degenerated into a white leprous scurf and cracks on his face, arms, hands, thighs and legs; and the itching was so extremely intolerable, that he never could see or hear of any one who had been afflicted with any thing to be compared with it: he was weak, and tormented with wind and low spirits, and greatly reduced and emaciated by the medicines which he had in vain used in hopes of a cure. Mr. Bangham is now, however, perfectly cured of the insufferable itching ;—every appearance of the disease has disappeared ;—and he is restored to good health and comfort of his life, by the means, regimen, and medicines prescribed for him by Dr. GRAHAM.

42. A most worthy lady of fashion and fortune in Hanover square, in repeated and most violent inflammations of her liver and bowels, was bled about twenty times in one month, by which her whole frame was so exhausted and broken down as not to be able for many weeks to walk across her room; and notwithstanding every possible assistance from the first physicians, &c. the lady found herself growing daily of a deeper yellow with the jaundice, an increase of the perpetual fever, and of all the dropical symptoms, and the whole aggravated by so wretched a nervous complaint, that she could not rest one hour in a whole night. For many weeks the violent spasms or catchings, and drawing up of her legs, got to such a pitch of violence as to hinder her from sleeping altogether. In this low, distressed, and hopeless state, she applied to me (by the recommendation of a worthy gentleman from the East Indies, whom I had the happiness of curing of an asthmatic complaint) and she received a most perfect cure of all her complicated maladies, by means of a regular six weeks course of my Nervous Æthereal Balsam, Æthereal Opodeldoc, &c. after an almost fatal indisposition of near two years standing.

N. B. It is now several years since this most intelligent and most amiable lady was cured, and she has remained perfectly well ever since. In a letter which I had the honour of receiving from her with the above account of her case and cure, she had the goodness to say, that although she did not chuse to have her name exposed to the whole world, yet she gave me full liberty to refer any person to her who wished to have further particulars, or any other confirmation of this most important, and (to all her friends) seemingly miraculous cure.

43. Mr. BECK, jun. brazier, &c. opposite Bell-Dock, Wapping, about the middle of June, 1781, was seized with a severe pain in his stomach and side, insomuch that he could hardly breathe, stoop, sleep, or rest night or day. When he coughed, walked, drew his breath, or went in a coach, he had sharp and severe pains in his breast. Mr. Beck laboured under an almost continual fever, thirst, white rough tongue, cramps and spasms, his spirits and his flesh wasted every day, the decline was so rapid, and receiving no benefit from medicines, country air, &c. that he despaired of recovery, and even of ever seeing his friends again.—Mr. Beck, his father, however, wrote for him to come to town; the young gentleman came, and in a few weeks he had the good fortune to be perfectly fectly cured of this confirmed consumption, to the great joy of that worthy and respectable family, and of all his friends, who beheld with astonishment so important and so unexpected a cure, which was accomplished, under God! by my Nervous Æthereal Balsam, Æthereal Opodeldoc, and Pectoral Herbs; and Mr. Beck has remained strong and perfectly well ever since.

44. Mr. CLARKE, a worthy and most respectable tradesman at Milbank, Westminster, having been for fifteen years a martyr to the gout, was pleased several months ago to apply to me. His limbs, especially the joints of his toes and feet, were exceedingly feeble, swelled and stiff, and he walked very lamely indeed; but by a regular and persevering course of my Medicines, &c. and conforming strictly to my regimen, Mr. Clarke found great benefit from the first day; insomuch, that in a few weeks he actually walked from his own house in the extreme suburbs of Westminster to Whitechapel, and back again, which is many miles, with strength and ease, which he neither could, nor had attempted to do for more than twelve years before.---Several persons with the gout, rheumatism, &c. recommended by Mr. C. have likewise received the greatest benefit, especially Mr. Freestone, a wealthy and respectable farmer in Sussex, of the most severe gout.

45. A young Lady at Mrs. Turner's, No. 13, Quaker's Buildings, West Smithfield, has been most severely afflicted for four years with worms, and violent pains in her bowels, was emaciated as flesh, and pale or swarthy as to complexion, and, above all, laboured under a foul Scorbutic humour, which broke out on her head so violently, as to cover it intirely with large sores and scabs, which discharged a great deal of sharp offensive matter, as also from her nose; and the glands of her neck were tumefied and hard; but she is now perfectly cured by Dr. Graham's Medicines and Vices, in less than six weeks.

46. And, Mrs. Turner herself, as above, who has for many years been very hard of hearing, has received so much benefit from G. that she can now hear St. Paul's clock strike at the above distance and common conversation very comfortably.

An account of the names and residence of the numbers of persons cured by Dr. G. of the worst and most hopeless diseases, under immediate eye, and attested by the hand writing of Her Grace Duchess of Devonshire, Lord and Lady Spencer, Lady Clermont &c. may be seen by applying to Dr. G. at his lodgings, where may be consulted as usual in all difficult and dangerous cases: it is most earnestly requested, that those persons, who labour under any disease, weakness, swellings, sores, or lameness, which baffled the skill of other physicians or surgeons, will be very fr in their applications to Dr. Graham, as he purposes very soon to return to, and settle at Edinburgh; for if this opportunity of being cured be neglected, they may regret with unavailing anguish of heart, that perhaps the only person in the world who could have restored them, under God! to perfect health, soundness, and strength, is then so very far distant from them.---Very poor persons, who labour under the scurvy, leprosy, King's evil, consumptions, ulcers, or nervous disorders, will be cured gratis, if they apply immediately.

APPENDIX.

WHEN Dr. Graham considers the melancholy truth that almost every one of the numerous herd of Quacks in this capital, and of those persons who prowl about England, calling themselves Doctors, are as grossly ignorant of the true nature and cure of diseases, as they are totally unprincipled in regard to truth, honour, and honesty, often exasperating and rendering mortal diseases, and adding disappointment and poverty to the afflictions of the ignorant, credulous, and unwary patients who apply to them, he cannot but wonder that he has not many more prejudices to combat; and he is happy to think that by the many great cures he has done in London, Bath, Bristol, &c. and the unanimous and very hearty approbation of his books and pamphlets, and of his public Lectures on the Philosophy and Physic of the four Elements, and on Health, Long-life, and Happiness, the prejudices are now he hopes totally removed, and the genteeler and the more sensible part of the inhabitants, have been induced to apply to him for the cure of complaints which the other more stationary medical Gentlemen of these capitals could not remove, and publicly to espouse and to vindicate his cause, as that of a regular bred tho' eccentric Physician, and of a real benefactor to Mankind.

Dr. Graham hath ever made it a rule never to mention even in private, the name or complaints of any of his patients, which he hath cured, whether they be poor or rich, far less to make any cure public, unless the patient particularly desires or heartily permits it. Dr. G. has lately practised at Plymouth on his way home from Lisbon to London and Edinburgh; and it is the earnest desire of the following patients and of their friends, that the very great benefit they have received under Dr. G's care, may be printed, that their fellow creatures, who are similarly afflicted, may know where to apply for a cure, even when the most celebrated medicines, and the most renowned Doctors and Surgeons of England have been had recourse to in vain.

47. Mrs. Rourke, wife of Mr. Rourke, master Taylor of marines, opposite the Red Lion, Chapple-street, Stone house, near Plymouth, is now perfectly recovered of a confirmed-forgone consumption and ulceration of the lungs, under which she had laboured since the month of May last, by God's blessing on the earth-bathing, the application of fresh turfs to her body, and by the medicines and regimen prescribed by Dr. Graham for her, in the course of little more than one month.

Her

Her almost fatal disease was occasioned, she thinks, by bad management and neglect, after a dangerous lying-in.

Her cough was almost continual; the spitting up of corrupted matter, and the pain of her side very great; and her breathing so very short, difficult and laborious, and her strength and flesh so exhausted that she could not walk even a few yards without stopping to pant as if expiring; her body swelled considerably at times; she had no rest in the night; her body and limbs on one side were often benumbed and dead-like. She had cold clammy weakenings, night and morning sweats, her appetite and digestion totally gone; her flesh, colour, and spirits were extremely reduced; and all the advice and medicines which she had, doing her very little or no good, she had reason to apprehend no other than a speedy fatal termination of her disorder and great sufferings. She has now however, recovered so very wonderfully in all respects, that she eats and drinks well, sleeps well, has recovered her flesh, colour, strength and spirits, and got so much the better of her cough, spitting, shortness of breath, &c. that she looks and walks about as briskly and as well, as ever she did in her life.

48. Mr. Stephen Henday, Mason, No. 1, Canterbury str. near Liberty-str. Plymouth-dock, owing, he thinks, to violently over-heating his blood, and sudden colds, was for eight years extremely afflicted with a very hot, itching, sharp, eating, fiery, scorbutic humour in his blood, which chiefly afflicted his legs, swelling them with a terrible fiery and hard inflammation to an enormous size; and the humour was so very hot and corrosive that it often made the skin, and partly the flesh, peel off from top to bottom with the dressings; and the humour came out in quantities through his stockings, and juggled in his shoes: and the crackt, raw, and ulcerated parts were so very painful, hot, and so very intolerably itching, that he could not forbear rubbing and tearing them with his finger nails till the blood poured out, and he was deprived of all rest, comfort and hope. The dreadful humour also appeared on his thighs, arms, and body; his general health was greatly impaired, his business interrupted, his complexion fallow, and his spirits low; and having tried many Surgeons and Doctors, and the strongest medicines inwardly and outwardly, and expended large sums of money for eight years past, but all in vain, he was at last totally heartless and in despair, and life itself was a tormenting burden.

In this deplorable state Mr. Henday applied to Dr. Graham, about a month ago, and now, by the divine blessing on the medicines, earth, and other applications which Dr. G.

gave him, and directed to be applied, this long and deep rooted and desperate disorder seems to be pretty well conquered and rooted out; for the monstrous swellings, hardness, and inflammation, and hot itching, fiery humours are destroyed; his legs are quite healed up, and are perfectly easy, without itching, and of the proper natural size and shape; and he is now so easy and strong, that he can work at his business as usual; and he permits and desires his very extraordinary case and cure to be made public for the benefit of the afflicted.

49. Mr. FROST, the first house in Stone-house-lane, from Plymouth, has been afflicted for near a year, with a disease in the neck of his bladder, and a weight bearing down in his fundament, which at last broke, and left a strange forenefs, and occasioned much pain, stoppage of his water, and such fore rawness and straining that several quarts of blood has at different times come away; and almost always wanting to make water, or to go to stool. But now, in two weeks by God's blessing on the medicines and means which Dr. G. has prescribed for him, he is now very easy, and has received far more benefit than from all that the Surgeons, Apothecaries, &c. there could do for him. Instead of being forced to make water seven or eight times in a night, he can now be easy with only once or twice; there is now no appearance of blood or matter, and he has every reason to think that his cure will be confirmed and perfected.

50. The son of Mr. TOWELL, Plaisterer, No. 69, South-side-Street, Plymouth, aged about twelve years, has been afflicted for six years and a half, with the most dreadful and most obstinate disease on his head, and in the glands of his neck, that can be conceived. Every part of his head, and the back part of his neck were covered over with sores, scabs, and hard swellings; attended with the most violent heat, and most intolerable itching, and often run down with blood and sharp humour. He was afflicted with frequent sickness, pains in his head, stomach, and sides; and always shivering and as it were dying with cold, so that his parents almost despaired of his life, as well as of the cure of his head and neck, having without any benefit applied to various Doctors in Plymouth, & Dock, and at Plympton, as well as to foreign travelling practitioners, and tried every medicine and application that was confidently recommended by any one, expending a vast deal of money but all in vain, till they applied to Dr. Graham who in less than a month has restored him to perfect health, colour, and spirits; cleansed and soundly healed up his head, dispersed and carried off the numerous glandular swellings his neck; and restored the Boy and his anxious and very thankful Parents to joy and comfort.

51. Maria DINNIS, aged about fourteen, step-daughter to Mr. Gerhardt, Baker, No. 29, Liberty-street, Plymouth-dock, was for three years afflicted with a large hard glandular swelling under her chin, and hardness of hearing and for one year with a most dreadful universal scurvy or leprosy, which broke out in dreadful itching, soreness, rawness, and scurf all over her body and limbs, and reduced her to a mere skeleton; and for three months, with that nervous spasmodic restless disorder called St. Vitus's dance; all of which accumulated a load of diseases brought on a great degree of mental imbecility or weakness, from no one of which dreadful and most obstinate complaints, all the advice and medicines, both inwardly used, and outwardly applied, did afford her even the least visible or temporary relief, till most happily her mother applied to Dr. Graham, for her whose partial and portable Earth-Baths, medicines, and advice, blessed of God! afforded the child sensible and visible relief even the first day they were used, and by diligently continuing them for about six weeks, every day growing better and better, she is now, from being a most miserable and most pitiable spectacle, her body and limbs being now as sound, smooth, clean and fair as any girl's can be, the large swellings under her chin quite healed and reduced to the size of a small shelled almond, her hearing improving daily; the St. Vitus's Dance perfectly cured; her mental faculties happily recovered and strengthened; is become quite fleshy, fat, good coloured, and as chearful and as well as ever she was, or her now happy parents can reasonably expect, who are desirous that all the world if possible should know of so very great a cure of such complicated and obstinate maladies, which have all yielded, under the divine blessing! to the sovereign powers of Dr. Graham's medicines, advice, and portable Earth-Baths.

Like a benign Plannet, they behold, "serene and unmoved, the baleful and blasting storms of the lower, and grosser Elements."

52. Mrs. HIDDEN, No. 3, Hollen-street, Soho, was afflicted for about a year, with a most dreadful Scorbutic disorder both her legs, attended with prodigious swelling, violent inflammation, agonizing pain, intolerable itching, and with white and discoloured scales and blotches, which at length broke out into twenty-two ill conditioned sores, wounds, or ulcers. She was emaciated and consumptive, had no appetite, and could neither sleep nor walk.

The

The advice of eminent Physicians, and the very costly medicines and long attendance of a respectable Surgeon-Apothecary, were of no sort of use to her ; but by the patient, hearty and judicious use of Dr. Graham's medicines and applications without the application of Earth, she was perfectly cured in every respect in less than one month, and her legs and health have continued sound and well ever since.

53. A young Man, an Upholsterer, being much intoxicated and sleeping for several hours with his head on his hand which lay on a great sheet of lead, was deprived of the use of that hand by a Paralytic numbness and extreme weakness. He was however soon perfectly cured, and restored to his full strength, by bathing or burying that hand and arm among fresh Earth.

54. Mrs. FENTON, recommended by Mrs. Hider, was long afflicted with extreme weakness in her joints, loins, and nervous system in general ; she was low-spirited, moping gloomy, and would frequently tremble, cry, and start, without external cause. By following Dr. G's advice for near two months, she is now restored to full health and strength, both of body and mind. She found herself greatly better and better from the first day.

55. D. K. Esq. returned several years ago from India, with a bilious and totally broken down constitution, and with spasmodic and humoural asthma which generally attacked him early every morning with a violence not to be described or imagined. Tho' reduced to a skeleton, and the weather cold, he was often forced to sit at an open window for hours blue and purple in his face and lips, struggling, tormented, and gasping, between disease and death. The best Physicians and the most powerful medicines did him but little or no good and at length he resolved and insisted on having Dr. Graham to visit him at his house at Hammer-smith ; and the learned, ingenious, and successful Mr. Cruikshank, teacher of Anatomy, and Surgeon in Leicester-Square, as the case was urgent and most important, had the goodness to come to Pall-mall and to carry Dr. Graham out in Mr. C's own, or in Dr. W. Hunter's Chariot, to see Mr. K.

Dr. G. had the happiness to give Mr. K. seemingly miraculous ease and relief in a few minutes, (as he always such cases does, and as he had done before to the Countess Hopetoun, and to several other persons of fortune and distinction in Scotland, as well as in England) and in a short time far perfected his cure, and recruited and invigorated his constitution, that Mr. K. went down to Sussex, bought an estate, and married.

married happily, has children, calls Dr. Graham his temporal viur, and enjoys comfortable health, and all that happiness which health, easy circumstances, and a mind conscious of innocence and rectitude, and replete with learning, liberality and religion, cannot fail to be blessed with.

Mrs. HART, Housekeeper at Mr. Turner's, No. 4, Capel Court, Bartholomew lane, behind the Royal Exchange, London, had been afflicted for eight months with a dreadful sore leg, occasioned by it's being terribly scalded with boiling water, and which large and offensive ulcer, the ointments and best efforts of the faculty could not heal; but it was perfectly healed by Dr. Graham in a very few weeks last summer, and as continued sound and strong ever since.

A GENTLEMAN, in Little Suffolk-street, opposite the Opera-house, Hay-market, in consequence of a long and almost fatal fever, had a large hard swelling and a sore or ulcer in the shin-bone of his leg, which his Surgeon's, (to whom he had paid large sums of money) could not cure, by all the inward medicines, and outward applications, they could apply. Dr. Graham, however, made a perfect cure of it in a short time; it remains sound ever since; and the Gentleman will be referred to, and will satisfy every respectful enquirers the truth of this cure.

Persons in great pain or extremely weak, or lame and crippled with the Gout or Rheumatism, are generally made easy, by Dr. G. in a few hours, and so suppled and strengthened in the course of a week as to be able to walk about stoutly and comfortably; and observing the Doctor's rules, hindered from returning. The most dreadful Jaundice and bilious disorders are cured, and all yellowness removed in a few days; and the most inveterate Scurvy or Leprosy, even when complicated with the Veneral Gouty, Rheumatic, or Scrophulous diseases—the most obstinate and rooted Veneral maladies; nervous relaxations and weakness and lower agitated tremulous spirits, Dropical and windy swellings of the body, or lower limbs; all sores and ulcers, and most Fistulae and Cancers; and most bowel and bladder complaints, are in general speedily, and safely, and effectually cured; and injured, and debilitated, and almost worne-out constitutions, comfortably repaired and renovated.

In a few days will be published, Price 1s. to be had of the Author, and at Mr. Richardson's, Royal-Exchange, and at Mr. Bookham's, New-bond-street, a Treatise on Dr. Graham's newly discovered Partial and Portable Earth Baths, for the cure cure of many internal and external diseases, and for purifying and invigorating the system.—To which are added a clear full, unreserved, and intelligible account of the means whereby Dr. Graham lately lived fourteen days, and fourteen nights, successively, without Eating or Drinking any thing, except a little cold raw simple water; (of which fact he hath made Oath before the Lord-Mayor of London) and by which any person may live for many weeks or months without Eating or Drinking any thing: and to the whole are subjoined, curious and important Rules, Maxims, and Aphorisms for the preservation of bodily and mental health, strength, and happiness, till extreme old-age, and pathetic exhortations to old-men to abstain from certain pleasures and efforts, with Dr. G.'s reasons at large for such friendly and most important expostulations and cautions.

DOCTOR GRAHAM'S LECTURES,
THIS AND EVERY EVENING,
MONDAY EVENINGS EXCEPTED.

THE Dr. has returned from Lisbon; and having lately at Plymouth, in his way from Falmouth to London, fasted 14 days and 14 nights successively, not having ate or drank even the smallest particle of any thing, except some cold raw simple water, (of which he hath made solemn oath before the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor of London) and being now again actually under the same curious experiment of totally fasting, he intends to Lecture this evening, precisely at 8 o'clock, in the Great-Room, top of Capel-Court, behind the Royal-Exchange, admision only 2s. on Health, Very-long-Life, and Happiness;—in which he will lead his Audience gently and affectionately, by the hand along the sweet, sober, and simple path of Great, venerable, ever-constant NATURE, up to the source of life and strength,—and to the very bosom of Health and Felicity,—under the genial influences of the ever-Orient Sun!—In the Lecture he will also clearly, fully, and satisfactorily explain to intelligent Ladies and Gentlemen, how those persons who, for the cure of certain diseases,---or who may be compelled to it in time of famine,--or when besieged and without food in Garrison, &c. may live for many weeks or months together, without eating, or receiving into their stomach or bowels, any thing whatever.

* * During the whole course of the Lecture the Dr. will himself appear in, and lay before the Public, his lately invented PARTIAL AND PORTABLE EARTH-BATHS, which, in the above cases, are the grand sources from whence NATURE, at her myriads of mouths, the pores of the skin, sucks in the purest and most active medicines, sufficient nourishment also to maintain life, and abundant vitality and strength for performing all ordinary business.

Dr. G. having travelled for more than thirty years over the principal parts of Europe, from Greenland and Russia, to Portugal, and in America, will have occasion in this Lecture to demonstrate the infinitely superior blessings, natural, civil, and ecclesiastical, which we enjoy in this admired and envied Island. in this verdant Garden of God! over every other country on this terraqueous Globe: and on the whole, he hopes, that this will be considered as the most curious and most useful Philosophical, Medical, and æconomical Exhibition and Lecture that perhaps ever were exhibited in the world.
