PREFACE.

No trouble or expense has been spared by the compilers in their endeavours to obtain the up-to-date information and make the List as correct and complete as possible, but it is unreasonable to expect absolute accuracy in a work of this description in the first edition. The publishers and compilers, therefore, cannot hold themselves responsible for errors and omissions. It is proposed that the List be issued annually; hence the information as to any omissions, corrections, additions and criticism to aid revision, with suggestions for further improvements, will be highly appreciated.

however, by no means certain that nature does not to some extent safeguard the race, for it is probable that the degenerated are relatively infertile—apart from the fact that they less seldom find persons to marry them.

It will, however, surprise many readers to learn that advanced opinion in America has been supported by law and that Acts have been passed and are in force to permit the asexualisation of degenerates, e.g., the State of Indiana passed an Act on February 10th, 1907, the State of California on 20th April 1909, and the State of Connecticut on 12th August 1909. The California Act is thus worded "An Act to permit asexualisation of the inmates of State Hospitals and the California home for the care and training of feeble-minded children and of convicts in the State prisons." The Indiana Act is "To prevent the procreation of confirmed criminals, idiots, imbeciles and rapists."

By these Acts the right of the State is recognised in the exercise of its duty as guardian of the privileges and rights of its citizens...to prevent the perpetuation of criminality and of degeneracy by inhibiting procreation in the criminal and in the defective subject.

The matter is one which must be strongly supported by public opinion. The question has arisen in Europe and is much discussed. It is interesting to learn that in democratic America state socialism has reached such developments.

disinfectants sold to the public complying with this or some similar and well-established test.

INDIAN MEDICAL DIRECTORY.

THIS is a useful publication, which is published by "Practical Medicine, Delhi." It is a list of qualified medical practitioners in India and is divided into two parts. Part I is devoted to medical practitioners, private and others and Part II to medical officers of the Indian Army; which latter purports to be a list of medical officers of the R.A.M.C. and I.M.S. It is alphabetically arranged. The entries for medical officers of the services seem to be bodily taken from Churchill's Medical Directory, and in some cases is very up-to-date. In one instance, we note the expression "Specialist in Tropical Diseases" after the name of a well-known Civil Surgeon in Bengal. It is obvious that such a list to be of any use must be issued annually or even quarterly. There is no use in giving the location "Civil Surgeon, Dastypore," as before the book is in print the officer may have been transferred. And the same applies to adding "on leave" after an officer's name. The inclusion of the names of R. A. M. C. officers is of too little use, unless the book is intended to be very frequently issued, and anyone wanting the information here given can obtain it in the annual Directory published by Messrs. J. & A. Churchill or in the current issues of the Army and Civil lists.

imported into a fresh locality about the persons of human beings, though the transference of infected rats and fleas in merchandise must be considered.

RACE BETTERMENT.

WE have received a little book written by Dr. J. Ewing Mears, of Philadelphia, U. S. A., entitled The Problem of Race Betterment, in which the writer in an interesting manner discusses the important question of improving the human race by selection and by preventing the multiplication of the unfit—that is of the weakly neurotic, criminal, insane and epileptic.

This is a question which confronts all civilised nations: as a rule, the poorer classes breed freely, almost recklessly, while the so-called "better" class exercise more moderation. The science of Eugenics is one which must commend itself to medical men, and there is no doubt that the world would be the better for being rid of the progeny of the weakling, the half imbecile or the insane.

The question of heredity is by no means settled, but there is no doubt that the offspring of the degenerate tend to be more so. It is

THE STANDARDISATION OF DISINFECTANTS.

THE number of so-called disinfectants placed upon the market is enormous. The public have a firm belief in them, especially those which are in reality deodorants, and hide rather than remove any insanitary condition.

Even medical men inundated as they are with circulars and advertisements lauding the virtue of some particular article are often at a loss what to use or what to recommend.

The time has certainly come for an attempt to standardise disinfectants so that a medical man in using or recommending the use of such may know what it is intended to do. It will be admitted that the following qualifications are necessary in any article to be used for such purposes:—

(1) It must be highly efficient, (2) non-poisonous, (3) uniform in strength, (4) permanently homogenous, (5) it must remain stable in the presence of organic matter, and (6) it should be cheap. How are we to test efficiency? The simplest and best way is to have a standard or way of measuring the direct action of any disinfectant upon living organisms. In what is now well known as the Rideal-Walker test a method of measuring the comparative germicidal values of disinfectants has been established, and we hope that the time is not far distant when legislation will insist upon all

READY

This book is almost as essential for a medical practitioner in India, as a stethoscope or clinical thermometer.

It gives all the important and valuable Ayurvedic and Yunani Medicinal Compounds, with their composition, uses and doses, that are favourite with the saidas and hakims of India, and are generally prescribed by them in the treatment of disease. A knowledge of these preparations is very essential for every practitioner, enabling him to diagnose and treat successfully, cases coming to him after a previous treatment by the Indian physicians.

The second part of the book deals with Indian drugs, alphabetically arranged by scientific names together with their synonyms in English and all vernacular languages of India. A general index for reference forms the third part.

imported into a fresh locality about the persons of human beings, though the transference of infected rats and fleas in merchandise must be considered.

(e) In districts which suffer annual epidemics of plague, the rat epidemic, on which the human epidemic depends, occurs during some part of that season when the prevalence of fleas is greatest."—(J. of Hygiene, Nov. 1910.)

RACE BETTERMENT.

WE have received a little book written by Dr. J. Ewing Mears, of Philadelphia, U. S. A., entitled The Problem of Race Betterment, in which the writer in an interesting manner discusses the important question of improving the human race by selection and by preventing the multiplication of the unfit—that is of the weakly neurotic, criminal, insane and epileptic.

This is a question which confronts all civilised nations: as a rule, the poorer classes breed freely, almost recklessly, while the so-called "better" class exercise more moderation. The science of Eugenics is one which must commend itself to medical men, and there is no doubt that the world would be the better for being rid of the progeny of the weakling, the half imbecile or the insane.

The question of heredity is by no means settled, but there is no doubt that the offspring of the degenerate tend to be more so. It is, however, by no means certain that nature does not to some extent safeguard the race, for it is probable that the degenerated are relatively infertile—apart from the fact that they less seldom find persons to marry them.

It will, however, surprise many readers to learn that advanced opinion in America has been supported by law and that Acts have been passed and are in force to permit the asexualisation of degenerates, e.g., the State of Indiana passed an Act on February 10th, 1907, the State of California on 20th April 1909, and the State of Connecticut on 12th August 1909. The California Act is thus worded "An Act to permit asexualisation of the inmates of State Hospitals and the California home for the care and training of feeble-minded children and of convicts in the State prisons." The Indiana Act is "To prevent the procreation of confirmed criminals, idiots, imbeciles and rapists."

By these Acts the right of the State is recognised in the exercise of its duty as guardian of the privileges and rights of its citizens...to prevent the perpetuation of criminality and of degeneracy by inhibiting procreation in the criminal and in the defective subject.

The matter is one which must be strongly supported by public opinion. The question has arisen in Europe and is much discussed. It is interesting to learn that in democratic America state socialism has reached such developments.

THE STANDARDISATION OF DISINFECTANTS.

THE number of so-called disinfectants placed upon the market is enormous. The public have a firm belief in them, especially those which are in reality deodorants, and hide rather than remove any insanitary condition.

Even medical men inundated as they are with circulars and advertisements lauding the virtue of some particular article are often at a loss what to use or what to recommend.

The time has certainly come for an attempt to standardise disinfectants so that a medical man in using or recommending the use of such may know what it is intended to do. It will be admitted that the following qualifications are necessary in any article to be used for such purposes:—

(1) It must be highly efficient, (2) non-poisonous, (3) uniform in strength, (4) permanently homogenous, (5) it must remain stable in the presence of organic matter, and (6) it should be cheap. How are we to test efficiency? The simplest and best way is to have a standard or way of measuring the direct action of any disinfectant upon living organisms. In what is now well known as the Rideal-Walker test a method of measuring the comparative germicidal values of disinfectants has been established, and we hope that the time is not far distant when legislation will insist upon all disinfectants sold to the public complying with this or some similar and well-established test.

INDIAN MEDICAL DIRECTORY.

THIS is a useful publication, which is published by "Practical Medicine, Delhi." It is a list of qualified medical practitioners in India and is divided into two parts. Part I is devoted to medical practitioners, private and others and Part II to medical officers of the Indian Army, which latter purports to be a list of medical officers of the R.A.M.C. and I.M.S. It is alphabetically arranged. The entries for medical officers of the services seem to be bodily taken from Churchill's Medical Directory, and in some cases is very up-to-date. In one instance, we note the expression "Specialist in Tropical Diseases" after the name of a well-known Civil Surgeon in Bengal. It is obvious that such a list to be of any use must be issued annually or even quarterly. There is no use in giving the location "Civil Surgeon, Dastypore," as before the book is in print the officer may have been transferred. And the same applies to adding "on leave" after an officer's name. The inclusion of the names of R. A. M. C. officers is of too little use, unless the book is intended to be very frequently issued, and anyone wanting the information here given can obtain it in the annual Directory published by Messrs. J. & A. Churchill or in the current issues of the Army and Civil lists.

THE COMET-LIKE PATH OF A PARA.

SOME ten or eleven years ago we wrote a paragraph commenting on a remark made by Mr. E. B. Hankin of Agra, on the supposed presence of an antiseptic in the water of the Ganges. To our certain knowledge this remark has been revived and solemnly repeated by one newspaper after another, at least twice since it originally appeared, and doubtless each time some readers think it new. We do not know whether Mr. Hankin still believes in the "mysterious" antiseptic. Most people are content to attribute that "hostility" (such as it is) of Ganges water to cholera not to anything mysterious, but to the vast volume of the water and to the ever present aid of the disinfecting power of the sun's rays. In Madras Colonel W. G. King, I.M.S., found the same degree of "hostility" in waters, quite unsacred, and sensibly attributed it to the effect of intense sunlight on shallow waters.

We have only referred again to the subject to show how a paragraph may go the rounds of the newspapers and appear and re-appear at intervals, almost like a Halley's Comet.

IN the Journal of Tropical Veterinary Science, Vol. V, No. 4 (Nov. 1910), Major F. S. H. Baldrey, F.R.C.V.S., C. V. Dept., calls attention to an error of statement made by Capt. Patton, I.M.S., in his review of the work of the King Institute, Madras, on the subject of Bovine Paraplasmosis in India and shows by an amplitude of quotation that this subject has received a very considerable amount of attention from officers of the Veterinary Department in India.

As usual this issue of the Journal, T. V. S., contains a very complete resume of the current literature of parasitology.

WE desire to call attention to the Indian Section of the Festival of Empire and Imperial Exhibition, 1911, the profits of which will go to the King Edward VII Hospital Fund. It is proposed especially to illustrate (1) the History of India, (2) the Life of the Peoples, (3) Indian Art. The loan of manuscripts, models, books and portraits is requested. The Exhibition will be held at the Crystal Palace from May to November 1911.

The Chairman of the Committee is Lord Plymouth and the Chairman of the Indian Committee is Colonel T. Holbein Hendley, C.I.E., I.M.S. (retd.), a well-known authority on Indian Art and previously an I.M.S. officer, well-known in Rajputana and in Bengal.

THE attention of all interested in the classification of mosquitoes is directed to the Records of the Indian Museum, Vol. IV, No. 5 (Nov. 18, 1910), which is a monograph by Major S. P. James, I.M.S., on a "new arrangement of the Indian Anopheline." He is convinced that it would be very difficult if not impossible to correctly arrange the Indian species by the aid of the tabular statement used by Mr. Theobald, and he suggests a new classification. The subject is too technical for these columns and it would not be possible satisfactorily to make an abstract of it, but we commend the monograph to all interested.

THAT much talked of drug "606," to be known as Salvarsan, the new specific against spirochaeta pallida is now obtainable from Messrs. Meister Lucius and Bruning, Ltd., Hornby Road, Bombay.

Reviews.

The Prevention of Malaria.—By Major RONALD ROSS. London: J. Murray (Second Notice).

IN the second half of Major Ross's book some eighteen contributors mention what has been done to combat malaria and mosquitoes in their respective countries. The first article is by the American entomologist, Professor Howard, and is headed "Antimalarial Work in the United States." It seems that the Professor, like several other writers in this book, has not fully realised that antimosquito work is not always antimalarial work. At the end of his article he fears it will appear that in the United States nothing like the competent work has been done that should have been done,—a conclusion to which the reader will be led by noting that a great part of the article is occupied with an account of measures which, having regard to present knowledge, cannot be regarded as in any sense antimalarial. The second and third articles, by Colonel Gorgas and Mr. Le Prince, respectively, deal with the campaign on the Isthmus of Panama. The account by Colonel Gorgas is a model of brevity, and the important part played by quinine and by "screening" in the success of the campaign is clearly brought out. It is now well-known that the campaign was a complete one, in which every hygienic weapon was used regardless of expense, and we note that, by omitting to refer to the great improvements made in regard to the social and economic conditions of the labour force, Colonel Gorgas has not done justice to the minute attention given to every method of preventing sickness and death. His present estimate of the cost of sanitation on the Isthmus is 3½ dollars (about 14 shillings) per head of population per annum; and he has recently been reported as saying that such expenditure is well within the means of any tropical community. We fear that when Colonel Gorgas
