The Letter is dated from 1, Devonshire Terrace, Feb. 3rd, 1844:—

"No, indeed, Trust me you were not wrong in believing—in feeling well assured, I hope—that the testimony you bear to the success of my little book, would sink deep into my heart, and fill it with a sad delight. Nothing could touch me half so nearly. No roar of approbation that human voices could set up would affect me like the faintest whisper from a home such as yours. . . I shall ever prize your letter. I thank God for the high privilege of speaking to the secret hearts of those who are in grief like yours; and I thank you earnestly, for the courage you have given me."

Inserted with the above is a Memorandum written and signed by MR. JOHN DILLON, relating the circumstances under which he had read the Carol, and concluding with a copy of his letter to Charles Dickens which evoked the above reply.

- 2455 Beaconsfield (Earl of) A.L.S., 2½ pp. 4to, 31A, Park Street, Grosvenor Square, May 5th, 1835, to Morgan O'Connell, son of the "Liberator," a most indignant letter, respecting "a very scurrilous attack which your father has made upon my conduct and character," and stating "that he leaves me no alternative but to request that you, his son, will resume your vicarious duties of yielding satisfaction for the insults, which your father has too long lavished with impunity upon his political opponents"

Presented by H. Osborn O'Hagan, Esq.

- 2456 Beaconsfield (Earl of) A.L.S., 3 pp. 4to, to the same, written on the same day, and on the same subject—A.L.S. 3 pp. 8vo, May 6th, 1835, a remarkable letter, on the same subject

"... It is my hope that I have insulted him [Daniel O'Connell], assuredly it was my intention to do so. I wished to express the utter scorn in which I hold his character, and the disgust with which his conduct inspires me... I shall take every opportunity of holding your father's name up to public contempt, and I fervently pray that you or some one of his blood may attempt to avenge the unextinguishable hatred with which I shall pursue his existence"

Presented by the Author.

- 2457 BENNETT (ARNOLD) HELEN with the HIGH HAND, originally entitled Love and Riches, the ORIGINAL HOLOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT, beautifully written in a small but very clear hand, on 161 pages, with duplicate title, "Love and Riches," and chapter headings, and initials in red ink, "the first and last writing; begun 10th May, 1907, finished 13th June, 1907," small 4to, new crimson Levant morocco, uncut, top edges gili, a most attractive M.S.

- 2478 BYRON (LORD) A.L. (a scrawl substituted for the signature) 4 pp. 4to, Venice, Oct. 29th, 1819, to JOHN MURRAY, A MAGNIFICENT LETTER, respecting DON JUAN, the VISION OF DANTE, his personal plans; suggests going to SOUTH AMERICA to start as a planter, and taking his natural daughter ALLEGRA with him, discussing very fully his famous MEMOIRS, etc.

Speaking of the Memoirs, and his Journal kept in 1814, he says:—"Neither are for publication during my life—but when I am cold—you may do what you please—In the mean time if you like to read them—you may—and show them to anybody you like—I care not—The Life is Memoranda and not Confessions. I have left out all my loves (except in a general way) and many other of the most important things (because I must not compromise other people) so that it is like the play of Hamlet—'the part of Hamlet omitted by particular desire'—But you will find many opinions—and some fun—with a detailed account of my marriage and its consequences. . . . I have never read over this life since it was written—so that I know not exactly what it may repeat or contain."—etc.

Presented by Miss Maud I. Lindsay.

- 2479 BYRON (LORD) A.L.S., 8 pp. 4to, Newstead Abbey, Aug. 21st, 1811, to R. C. Dallas, a SUPERB LETTER respecting his plans for the publication of Childe Harold, etc.

" . . . I don't think my name will answer the purpose, and you must be aware that my plaguy satire will bring the North and South Grubstreets down on the 'Pilgrimage,' but nevertheless if Murray makes a point of it, and you coincide with him, I will do it charmingly, so let it be entitled 'by the Author of E[nglish] Bards and Sc[otic]h R[eviewer]s . . . has Murray shown the work to anyone? he may—but I will have no traps for applause . . . the two stanzas of a buffooning cast (on London's Sunday) are as well left out.—I much wish to avoid identifying Childe Harold's character with mine, and that in sooth is my second objection to my name on the T[itle] Page. . . . I made a kind of prose apology for my scepticism at the end of the MSS. which on recollection is so much more like an attack than a defence that happily it might better be omitted . . . As for me 'I have supped full of 'Criticism,' and I don't think that the most 'dismal treatise' will stir and raise my 'fell of hair' till Birnam Wood do come to Dunsinane," etc.

Presented by Miss Eustace Smith.

"I have just come back from Paris, where the Readings—Copperfield—Dombey and Trial—and Carol and Trial—have made a sensation which modesty (my natural modesty) renders it impossible for me to describe. You know what a noble audience the Paris audience is! They were at their very noblest with me . . . Going to see him [Stanfield] when he was very despondent, I told him the story of Fechter's piece (then in rehearsal) with appropriate action: fighting a duel with the washing-stand; defying the bedstead, and saving the life of the sofa-cushion. This so tickled his old theatrical ardor, that I think he turned the corner on the spot."—etc.

2583 JOHNSON (DR. SAMUEL) 3 ALL.S., 11 pp. 4to, A SERIES OF MOST REMARKABLE INTEREST AND IMPORTANCE, RELATING TO WHAT HE JUSTLY TERMS GEORGE III.'S "regal design," FOR THE FORMATION OF HIS ROYAL LIBRARY, NOW KNOWN AS THE KING'S LIBRARY, AT THE BRITISH MUSEUM

New Inn Hall, April 22nd 1768 to Mr. Weston.

"... It is a plan truly royal in its extent as well as its benevolence. What the Poet says of Cæsar that he was indocilis privata loqui, may now be applied a second time."—etc.

Oxford, April 28th 1768 [to the same].

"... I would not delay so long to express the respectful pleasure with which I read your account of his Majesty's reception of my service . . . That I may be able in any manner to promote so noble, so regal a design, you will surely believe me . . . let us have the pleasure of comparing the King under whom we have the happiness to live, with Lewis the fourteenth, taking Lewis in his fairest character, as a person of learning. Lewis indeed employed Boileau and Racine to write an a/c, but what life was his own, his liberality was prompted by the appetite of flatterers. But our King exerts his influence and liberality for the general illumination and improvement of man."—etc.

May 28th 1768 [to Mr., afterwards Sir Frederick Barnard, Librarian to King George III.]

"... I will try whether the present state of my health will suffer me to lay before you what observation or report have suggested to me, that may direct your inquiries or facilitate your success. Things of which the mere rarity makes the value, and which are prized at high rate by wantonness rather than by use, are always passing from poorer to richer countries, and therefore though Germany and Italy were principally productive of Typographical Curiosities, I do not much imagine that they are now to be found there in great abundance. An eagerness for scarce books and early editions which prevailed amongst the English half a century ago, filled our shops with all the splendour and nicety of Literature, and when the Harleian Catalogue was published many of the books were bought for the Library of the King of France . . . Of those books which have been often published and diversified by various modes of impression, a Royal Library should have at least the most curious edition, the most splendid and the most useful. The most curious edition is commonly the First, and the most useful may be selected amongst the last. Thus of Tully's Offices, the edition of Fust is the most curious, and that of Greevius the most useful. The most splendid the eye will discover," etc.

This truly magnificent letter extends to 9 pp. 4to., and is full of instructions and advice to Mr. Barnard before he sets out for the Continent, to buy Books, discussing with great wealth of detail the Books which he is likely to find in different countries, the Classes of Books he should obtain, details of individual Editions, Presses, former ownership of Books and their Bindings, the celebrated early Printers, the possibility of there being undiscovered editions of the Bible earlier in date than those recorded by Bibliographers—in fact every consideration that could occur to a man setting out on such an important and responsible quest is here reviewed and discussed. These Letters, which might well be termed "THE ROYAL BOOK-COLLECTOR'S VADE MECUM," should certainly find a final resting place among the treasures of the King's Library, at the British Museum, to which many refer

This letter was described by M. OCTAVE UYANNE as "Une superbe lettre inédite de Voltaire en Anglais," and was translated by him, and published in his review L'Art et l'Idée. It is published in its original form by M. Lucien Foulet, in "Correspondance de Voltaire, 1913," a copy of which, with presentation inscription to Mr. Sieveking, is sold with the lot

"... I am weary of courts, my Thiriot; all that is king, or belongs to a king, frights my republican philosophy. I won't drink the least draught of slavery in the land of liberty... let me believe I shall have the pleasure to see you in London, [drawing up] the strong spirit of this unaccountable nation: you will translate their thoughts better when you live among em. You will see a nation fond of their liberty, learned, witty, despising life and death, a nation of philosophers; not but there are some fools in England, every country has its madmen; it may be French folly is pleasanter than English madness, but by God English wisdom and English honesty is alone ours,"—etc.

"I am one of those that can accomplish nothing except by a genuine inspiration—along the rut of custom nothing succeeds with me . . . I require 3000 gulden, but am prepared to give a bill of exchange for it for a year. My name is good in the art world, but not in the finance world. In talking over this strange situation, in which I, borne up by applause, crowned with laurels, yet weighed down by these miserable cares (with a friend who was present at yesterday's performance of "Lohengrin") . . . it occurred to us, that amongst the public there might be more than one present, who, if informed of my position, would promptly help me . . . I beg you earnestly to help me, either from your own means, or by persuading some third person"—etc. [Translation]
