

M0006575: Cases of sleeping sickness in East Africa, Robert Koch expedition

Publication/Creation

30 January 1940

Persistent URL

<https://wellcomecollection.org/works/ymc6fqeq>

License and attribution

Wellcome Library; GB.

Wellcome Collection
183 Euston Road
London NW1 2BE UK
T +44 (0)20 7611 8722
E library@wellcomecollection.org
<https://wellcomecollection.org>

Man, serious case (right, treatment started when unconscious after a few doses of Abayl)

The same case after two months' treatment

Picture of Robert Koch's Expedition to the former German Protectorate East-Africa, in order to study the nature of Sleeping-Sickness and to organize the fight against it.

Serious Cases before treatment

Serious Cases after three months' treatment

Man, serious case before treatment

The same cases after two months' treatment

About Glossina Palpalis open reed-swamp

Cleared Reed-Swamp

Cleared Reed-Swamp

Landing Place through cutting down Primeval forest

Litter with Serious Case

Litter with Serious Case

Serious Case of Mother with Child in permanent state of sleep

Working-Tent of German Expedition Bugala 1906/07

Rob. Koch in Working Tent Bugala, German Expedition 1906/07

Sick People in front of Surgery, Bugala Camp.

Sick People inside Surgery, Bugala Camp.

Sick People in front of Hospital-Barrack Bugala Camp.

Concentration-Camp for Sleeping-Sickness at Kigarama, (Lake Victoria)