

M0011929: Reproduction of part of a letter from Edward Jenner (1749-1823) to Edward Davies, Esquire, from an unknown source

Publication/Creation

1951

Persistent URL

<https://wellcomecollection.org/works/fw38rqje>

License and attribution

Conditions of use: it is possible this item is protected by copyright and/or related rights. You are free to use this item in any way that is permitted by the copyright and related rights legislation that applies to your use. For other uses you need to obtain permission from the rights-holder(s).

Wellcome Collection
183 Euston Road
London NW1 2BE UK
T +44 (0)20 7611 8722
E library@wellcomecollection.org <https://wellcomecollection.org> my opinion is a circumstance not at all wholly to happen. Every obstacle that now presents itself is light as air compared with those which stood in the way a twelve-month ago. If the British Government had been so generous, or even so politic as to have allowed me in return for the grants of Napoleon, now & then to have sent back a French Officer a captive on our shores; I could have wiped away the tears of many a suffering family.

It grieves me to tell you that Mrs. Jane, after escaping from the danger threatened by that late inclement weather, was seized a few days since with her old complaint in the chest in a very severe way, which brought on a slight spitting of blood. She is still confined to her bed, tho' better in some respects, but prohibited from seeing any of her friends, even her Brother who was visiting her but for this unlucky occurrence.

As it would be tantalizing for you & Mrs.
Davis to be here, while Mrs. J. is in this state, I must beg you to postpone your intended visit to us. As soon as she is sufficiently recovered, we shall be all glad to see you. The last is still with us & appears now free from all complaints. I thank you for your attention to poor J. - it is really melancholy to see him. My endeavours shall not be wanting to procure him a living; but it is the destroyers of human life & not the preservers who have the best interest. Remember us kindly to y^r father & Mrs. Davis - She has acted wisely in giving up sucking, as you know from experience the Baby can get supplies from